Army Purchase Of Trucks Is Aired Before Committee

REVEALS ONE COMPANY IS ABLE TO BID

Regulations Practically Exclude All Firms But Chevrolet, Witness Says

SEES NO INJUSTICE

Charge Made Prices Soar After Ford Motor Co. Barred by Government

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(UP)—Army regulations now in existence concerning purchase of light trucks have the practical effect of excluding all firms except the Chevrolet Motor company from bidding, Maj. Gen. Louis H. Bash, quartermaster general of the army, told a house military affairs investigating committee today.

Bash was the first witness as the committee began looking into the question of specification changes which assertedly "favor" certain companies. The committee is also bent on investigating reports that truck and auto bids have increased since the Ford Motor company was banned from government business due to failure to accept NRA restrictions.

Bash testified that the standard form of army contract now in use specifies that both the bidder and the manufacturer must sign accompanying statements declaring they employ no agents "on a contingent fee" to further their business with the government.

"Doesn't this, together with other regulations, have the practical effect that, as far as light trucks are concerned, Chevrolet is the only one who can bid?" asked Edward W. Goss, R., Conn., rep.

"Unless the others come in with clean hands, it does," the recently-named quartermaster general replied.

"However," Bash continued, "as far as I can see no injustice is done to anyone in these contracts or in drawing of specification."

"I can see no objections to these certificates. I believe they are an honest effort to protect the government in its purchases. My personal opinion is that the certificates can hurt no honest bidder."

Bash told the committee that this regulation, as well as the one regarding compliance with terms of NRA codes, has been submitted to the comptroller general for a final decision.

INMATE OF PRISON DIES OF POISONING
SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., June 25.—(UP)—A prison revenge plot which went awry, and killed the wrong man, was believed unearthed by officials today as they investigated the death by poisoned candy of Eddie Burns, Riverside life termer.

Burns dropped dead Saturday after he ate a bit of candy. Investigators believed the poisoned sweet was intended not for Burns, but for B. B. Ritchie, Los Angeles Negro who was transferred here recently from Folsom prison after he gave evidence which sent a Folsom prisoner to the death house.

Ritchie was said to have given Burns the candy. The Negro convict also tasted a bit of it. He was saved from death by administration of a stomach pump in the prison hospital.

Two other prisoners to whom Ritchie gave candy are ill in the hospital. The candy was said to have been received by Ritchie as a gift.

ONE MAN KILLED AND EIGHT INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

FAMOUS SPEED PILOT KILLED IN AIR CRASH

Jimmy Wedell Loses Life When Student "Freezes to Stick" Sunday

PATTERSON, La., June 25.—(UP)—The airplane crash which yesterday caused the death of James R. (Jimmy) Wedell, internationally famous speed pilot, was caused by a student aviator who "froze to the stick," Kenneth Wedell, the filer's brother, asserted today.

Wedell was killed and Frank Sneringer, 21, of Mobile, Ala., the student was seriously injured when the light Gypsy-Moth plane dived 200 feet into a rice field.

"Sneringer must have grabbed the control stick in fright and pulled it back so hard Jimmy could not get it free in time," the brother said.

The student filer had not regained consciousness early today but he will recover, physicians said.

The Gypsy-Moth plane had made a smooth take-off from the Wedell-Williams airport. Two hundred feet up it fell back suddenly on its tail, then nose-dived into a rice field. The motor was buried in the mud and Wedell was crushed against the instrument board.

Always the good pilot, he cut off the ignition before the crash, thus avoiding a fire and probably saving his student's life.

Kenneth Wedell, his brother, blamed Sneringer.

"The student must have grabbed the control stick in his fright," he said. "He must have froze it, pulling it back so hard that Jimmy could not get it free in time."

Wedell is survived by his wife. He considered his greatest race one that he ran against death and time. Last December in a borrowed plane, he flew Sue Trammell three months old infant, from Houston to Baltimore for a delicate operation that saved her life. He braved weather that forced every other plane along his route to the ground.

RICHARDSON NAMED STATE BANK CHIEF

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 25.—(UP)—Appointment of former governor Friend W. Richardson to the $10,000 position of state superintendent of banks was seen at the capitol today as the beginning of numerous changes in the state administration under the leadership of Governor Frank F. Merriam.

After promising a number of "changes in personnel" immediately after he assumed office following the death of Governor James Rolph Jr., Governor Merriam marked time until last Saturday when he revealed he would accept the resignation of Edward Rainey as superintendent of banks and elevate Richardson from his job as building and loan commissioner.

By breaking the ice with this appointment, Merriam was believed by observers here to be ready to take action on other important departmental appointments.

RUTLAND, Vt., June 25.—(UP)—A pilot and a photographer were killed yesterday when two airplanes collided in mid-air over the new municipal airport, a half hour before dedication services were to begin. Fifteen thousand spectators saw the crash.

The dead were Pilot William H. McMillen, 32, and R. L. Oakes, 30. Employed by the Aerial Exploration Survey company, Roosevelt Field, New York.

Their Bellanca cabin monoplane struck a national guard biplane piloted by Capt. Herbert A. Mills of Hartford, Conn., attached to the 43rd division air squadron. Mills jumped to safety.

TEXAS BANDITS FREED IN JAIL BREAK SUNDAY

Three Desperadoes Still at Large Today; Hostages Are Released

LUBBOCK, Tex., June 25.—(UP)—A condemned murderer of a Texas sheriff, boasting he would not be taken alive, led a villainous band of jail breakers in flight from the law today after a daring and skillful escape from the Lubbock jail.

Facing certain death in the electric chair if caught, Ed Stanton, whose odd appearance gave him the sobriquet of "Perchmouth," led three companions in slugging their way out of jail yesterday.

The escaping prisoners seized a sub-machinegun, rifles and other weapons, kidnaped a banker and a justice of the peace as human shields and fled in a stolen automobile.

The hostages were released unharmed last night, eight miles northeast of Big Spring. The fugitives released their captives on a lonely road, and got a three-hour start on pursuers before the hostages could reach a telephone.

"They treated us all right, but were perfectly willing to use us as shields and let us be killed first if a gun battle was necessary for their escape," Walter Posey, vice president of the First National Bank, said.

Campbell H. Elkins, assistant justice of the peace, was the other captive.

Stanton, sentenced to death for the murder at Tulsa last January of Sheriff John C. Moseley, boasted he never would be taken alive.

Since he is facing the electric chair if he fails to make good his boast, police expected him to "shoot it out" whenever he is found. The killer also was implicated in the slaying in January, 1933, of Deputy Sheriff Joe Brown at Rome.

His companions in the break for freedom were William E. Doupe, serving 10 years for robbery; A. H. Nelson, a robber whose crimes cover half a dozen counties; and J. B. Stephens, convicted of burglary.

They escaped from jail by slugging Deputy Sheriff Bedford Carpenter after smashing through two iron doors. They slugged the officer with iron pipes wrested from their cell burrs before he was aware they were free.

Taking his keys, they looted the jail arsenal, seizing two .30 calibre rifles, a submachine gun, two sawed off shotguns, two automatic pistols, and a large quantity of ammunition.

In the lobby they met Posey and Elkins. They forced them to go along and fled from the city in Elkins' car.

18 LOSE LIVES IN STORMS IN MIDDLE WEST

Damage Estimated at Million Reported in Three States on Sunday

CHICAGO, June 25.—(UP)—Death toll of two smashing summer storms rose to 12 today with addition of six fatalities in a week end gale which swept three states. Property loss was estimated at nearly $1,000,000.

Rain and hail which followed the wind failed to break a wide spread heat wave. At least 14 additional deaths, including the drowning of three children at Washington, Ind., were traceable directly to efforts to escape sultry city temperatures.

Small buildings were wrecked, growing crops beaten into the mud and hundreds of trees and telephone poles snapped by squalls which chased each other across Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois yesterday at velocities exceeding 50 miles an hour.

Many communities were isolated from communication while workmen struggled to repair dozens of broken wires.

One of three youths swept from a small motorboat by waves churned into mountains on southern Lake Michigan was rescued by the crew of an oil freighter after clinging to the water logged craft for six hours. In his arms when sighted was the body of a companion to which he had held doggedly. He lost it when he leached for a life line.

The youth rescued was Robert Warfield, 16. His drowned companions were Joseph Kuhns, 22, and Allen F. Thomas, 24.

Walter E. Hall, former assistant state's attorney of Lake county Ill., drowned with his wife in Fox lake. The body of a man who drowned in Pistakee bay was unidentified.

Berland Ayre, 19, was crushed to death in the collapse of a barn near Marshfield, Wis.

At Washington, Ind., Aden Shingleton, 7, Max Roberts, 15, and Jack Johnson, 10, drowned when a motorboat overturned.

Fire caused by lightning destroyed a dance hall and threw 500 merry-makers into panic near Mundelein, Ill., and caused $100,000 damage to a boat house at Lake Geneva, Wis.

A similar storm Thursday caused six deaths and incalculable property damage.

REGISTRATIONS OF AUTOS TAKE JUMP

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 25.—(UP)—Automobile registrations, considered a good index of business conditions, have increased 1.56 percent over last year, Russell Evans, registrar of motor vehicles, reported today.

Up to May 31 of this year, a total of 1,735,113 passenger automobiles were registered, an increase of 19,415, Evans said. The total fee paid registration was $1,334,747.

The greatest increases were noted in pneumatic-tired commercial vehicles and trailers, with respective gains of 9.01 and 13.23 per cent, it was reported.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 25.—(UP)—A marriage license was granted here today to John Jacob Astor, 3rd, and Miss Ellen Tuck French, whose wedding Saturday is to be a highlight of Newport's 1934 social season.

Miss French said she was "at home," while Astor gave his occupation as "real estate." In a recent interview he revealed that when he went to work it would be as a realtor.

Prominent Architect Loses Life

Eight Others Injured, Two Seriously in County Over Weekend

A PROMINENT Los Angeles architect was killed and eight persons were hurt, two seriously, as the result of automobile wrecks in the county over the weekend.

The death of Howard Hawley Wells, 35, member of a socially prominent Southland family and widely known architect, who was killed near Newport Beach last night, brought the total of traffic fatalities in the county this year to 28. There were 19 at this same time last year.

Wells was fatally injured when his car crashed into the rear end of a trailer and truck driven by Paul Caldwell, 45, El Monte, on the coast highway between the Balboa Island road and the Corona del Mar road. Caldwell told officers that all tail-lights on the truck were burning, since he checked them only a few minutes before the crash.

He was taken to the Newport Beach hospital for treatment and removed to the Santa Ana Valley hospital at 11 o'clock, where he passed away a few minutes later.

The body was removed to the Dixon mortuary in Costa Mesa, where an inquest will be held at a later date by Coroner Earl Abbe.

Wells lived at 624 South La Brea avenue, Los Angeles, where he has architectural studios. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Margaret Wells, and two children, Howard Hawley Jr., and Margaret.

Juan Rodriguez, 39, Encinitas, was hurt seriously at 11:30 a. m. yesterday when his car turned over on the 191 highway near Aliso Creek. He received a compound fracture of the arm, possible fractured ribs, and other injuries. After being given first aid treatment at the Orange County hospital, he was transferred to the

WORLD ROTARIANS GATHER IN DETROIT

DETROIT, June 25.—(UP)—A cosmopolitan army of thousands was billeted here awaiting the official opening of the 25th annual convention of Rotary International.

With several thousands already registered, hundreds more poured in by boat, bus and train as the hour drew close for the convention to formally convene. Approximately 10,000 delegates are expected.

Traveling under an international banner, they are arriving from all parts of the earth. Some started from their homes as far back as April such as L. D. Gammans, who followed a route from his home, Kuala Lumpur, Malay Straits, which led through French Indo-China, China, Manchukuo, Korea, Japan and across the Pacific.

The charge was brought by Miss MacMillan and her father, A. D. MacMillan, former mayor of Edison. They asked for damages without specifying an amount.

PARALYSIS SERUM RESULTS IN DEATH

HEALDSBURG, Cal., June 25.—(UP)—Haggard and grief-stricken, Dr. Byron L. Baldwin, who administered anti-infantile paralysis serum to his two sons, fought desperately today to save the life of his eldest boy after the younger died from the efforts of the serum.

Neither Jackie, 2, nor Robbie, 7, had the disease, which has been spreading in northern California after a serious outbreak in the Los Angeles area. Dr. Baldwin sought to immunize the boys from the disease.

The serum was believed contaminated. Jackie died Sunday. His older brother was in a critical condition. Their mother, en route to Chicago, was reached at Salt Lake City. She flew here by airplane and aided Dr. Baldwin in his fight to save the oldest boy's life.

"GADGET ERA" REFLECTED IN ANNUAL FURNITURE DISPLAY

CHICAGO, June 25.—(UP)—American furniture makers, entering upon a "gadget era," today offered their wondrous to buyers when the curtain was pulled aside on the 1934 exhibitions.

Keeping abreast of the mechanical age, the furniture men produced a contrivance whereby the housewife can do the family washing, bake a cake and listen to Brahms' symphony—all by one simple twist of the wrist.

A washing machine equipped with a food mixer and radio was one of the innovations.

Then there were the squeakless bed springs, said to be one of the greatest mechanical wonders since Fulton's steamboat.

The springs are set in a rubber cushion—something like automobile motors.

Combination beds and cedar chests and folding beds so compact that they almost can be carried in an overnight bag were other amazing innovations.

The displays of hundreds of manufacturers, quartered in the American furniture mart and merchandise mart buildings, showed that Mickey Mouse has established himself as a full-fledged furniture style like Georgian and early American.

Mickey, the impish mouse of the movies, was found at almost all the juvenile exhibits.

DEATH TOLL ON UNITED STATES HIGHWAYS HIT ASKS BRITAIN BY PRESIDENT FOR NAVY DATA

Letter Read at Opening of A. A. Convention Asks Safer Conditions

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(UP)—President Roosevelt, in a letter read at the opening of the American Automobile Association's annual convention today, said he was "deeply concerned" over the life and property toll of highway accidents.

"Those who use the highways must realize the responsibility they assume when they take the wheel," the president wrote to Thomas P. Henry, Detroit, president of the association.

"I am deeply concerned over the staggering toll of deaths, injuries and heavy property damage caused by highway accidents," the letter read, "we cannot longer afford to temporize with this problem. Those who use the highways must realize the responsibility they assume when they take the wheel."

"Safer conditions for travel undoubtedly would contribute to a greater use of the highways, now that shorter working hours and more leisure time is assured by the National Recovery program."

Henry in an address criticized diverting of highway funds for other purposes and assailed the fee system under which minor town and county officials receive a share of fines they levy on motorists.

"This kind of piracy has no place on the highways of America," said Henry commenting on operation of "roadside courts."

COOPERATION IS PROMISED TO M'CRADY

Plans to Force Movement of Freight on Vessels is Held in "Abeance"

GOV. Merriam Withholds Possible State Action as Peace Maneuvers Begin

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—(UP)—Offers of cooperation replaced threats of force today as representatives of employers and workers met with Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, seeking peaceful settlement of the Pacific coast longshoremen's strike.

McGrady, who arrived here by plane Sunday from Washington, settled down to "checking up the situation" before suggesting any settlement terms.

He was to meet the full joint committee of 50 members first today, then to confer with Thomas G. Plant, president of the Waterfront Employers' union.

The San Francisco Industrial association, which had announced completion of plans for forcible movement of freight from the waterfront, placed its arrangements "in abeyance" pending outcome of McGrady's negotiations.

Harry Bridges, chairman of the joint strike committee, said the longshoremen would give McGrady all possible cooperation. Previously the union had warned that 10,000 men would parade the waterfront, seeking to convince employers "by sheer force of numbers" that forcible opening of the port would be unwise.

Chief of Police John Quinn said he was "ready" to furnish police protection should the Industrial association attempt movement of cargoes, but that he had received no notice to post his men along the Embarcadero.

A clash between the strikers and employees, however, seemed imminent if McGrady's negotiations do not progress rapidly. A. E. Boynton, managing director of the Industrial association, said enforced movement of cargoes would be started "within a few days unless federal authorities can bring about a quick settlement."

Gov. Frank Merriam also withheld possible state action toward enforced opening of the port pending outcome of the new federal mediation effort. He had announced that National Guardsmen might be used to open up state property impounded by the strikers.

In Oakland 29 union teamsters refused to operate trucks of the Kellogg Express and Drayage company, charging the company had violated an agreement not to handle freight consignments unloaded by strikebreakers.

Lee J. Holman, organizer of a "conservative" longshoremen's union, announced that 50 members of the group now were working along the San Francisco waterfront. He said other members of the organization "had been given preference" in employment.

FEDERAL O. K. L. A. ARCHITECT GIVEN RELIEF LIVES IN WORK BUDGET AUTO ACCIDENT

Consolidated projects submitted by the United Cooperatives of Orange county, Newport Beach, Orange, Anaheim, Fullerton and La Habra, have received the stamp of approval by Washington officials. It was learned today at a meeting of the SERA committee.

Following the revelation that the government has agreed to extend a helping hand to the co-operators in their self-help program, the SERA board this morning immediately approved requisitions by the cooperatives for six trucks and 15 sewing machines.

These requisitions, accompanied by invoices, will be sent to the state SERA officials in charge of the cooperative division. The requisition for trucks amounted to $4748 for the purchase of six Dodge trucks. The total amount was $5345, but with a discount and through other means, the cost was reduced. The unemployed groups plan to send members to Detroit to bring the trucks back, thereby saving freight and handling charges.

The other requisition was for 12 Singer sewing machines at a total cost of $780 and three power sewing machines at $65 each, which, with the cost of two attachments, will make the total sewing project cost $935.50.

Last Thursday the local SERA committee approved requisitions for flour to make bread, for cans, sugar and salt.

The United Cooperatives budget for operation of their program was $35,000 when it went to Washington.

Thieves Cut Hole In Shop Wall To Ransack Grocery

Ingenious thieves who broke into a barber shop and then cut a hole through a wall into the Continental store in Buena Park Friday night, escaped with more than $100 of loot, it was estimated today by sheriff's officers after a thorough check of stock in the store.

Sloan's barber shop on Grand avenue was entered through a window and a pair of pliers and tweezers stolen. After the hole had been cut into the store, the thieves stole two cases of butter, $20 in cash, three hams, 37 cartons of cigarettes and 84 cans of pipe tobacco. A tire was stolen from a car at the rear of the store.

WILL ROGERS says:

HOLLYWOOD, June 25. (To the Editor of The Register:) Lots of news today about that South American war. I was down there almost two years ago and they were going strong then. Now how can they fight that long without getting all their war materials from other nations. That's why there will always be war. You got every nation that's not in it boosting for it, for everybody makes money out of a war but the nations fighting. We used to think war couldn't last long because no or both sides had no money. Why there is no industry under the sun you can get credit as quick for as you can war. This war down there has been on credit since twenty-four hours after it started.

Yours,
WILL.

FOUR AUTOISTS ARRESTED FOR DRUNK DRIVING

Four men charged with drunken driving were included in the total of 18 persons booked at the county jail over the weekend on liquor violations, while another alleged drunken driver was arrested and held in the Anaheim jail.

Santa Ana police arrested G. Mendez, 37, 1323 West First street, following a wreck at 7 o'clock last night at First and Artesia streets. Cars driven by Mendez and J. B. Romero, 1226 West Second street, collided and were badly damaged but no one was hurt. Mendez is alleged to have drawn a knife and threatened to kill Romero and his companion, Louis Manzo, according to police reports. When brought to the police station, Mendez was examined by a physician, pronounced intoxicated to a marked extent and unfit to drive a car. He admitted drinking wine all day, according to officers.

Mendez was arraigned in justice court this morning and charged with assault with a deadly weapon and drunken driving. His preliminary hearing was set for June 27, with bail being fixed at $500 on the drunken driving count and $1500 for the assault charge.

Ralph W. Moon, 32, 823 North Birch street, was jailed for drunken driving at 7:30 o'clock last night after his car was involved in a wreck at Delhi and South Main streets, in which no one was hurt. Moon was placed under arrest by California Highway Patrolman George Stinson and transferred to the jail by Deputy Sheriff James Musick. When examined by a physician, Moon was pronounced moderately intoxicated from drinking beer and wine, according to police reports.

Penprase, 53, Orange, was released Sunday under $150 bond to appear for trial before Judge Frank Tausch of Anaheim next Saturday at 9 a. m. Jury To See Pictures Of Fatal Crash

Superior Judge James L. Allen today ordered a special night session in his department of court in order for the jury members to see moving pictures George Peterkin, California highway patrolman, took of the car in which two women were burned to death and another was fatally injured and which resulted in murder charges being lodged against Al Brunner, 40, Long Beach fishing boat captain.

The night session will be held about 7:30 o'clock tonight in the courtroom in the courthouse. Judge Allen, with attorneys and other court officials, viewed the pictures in the highway patrol offices this morning to pass on whether or not they should be allowed to be entered as evidence in the murder trial.

It is likely that certain parts of the motion pictures, which show the skull and teeth of the charred bodies of the two women who were burned to death, will be omitted from the pictures, in the belief that they are too gruesome.

This morning, as the trial continued, Gilbert Sperry, who was second on the scene of the crash, Dr. Edward Thorstensen, internist at the county hospital, and James H. Fletcher, orderly at the hospital, were on the witness stand. They testified that they were unable to tell whether or not Brunner was drunk. Other officers who were on the scene previously had testified that Brunner was intoxicated.

Mrs. Jennie Orenstine, 45, and her daughter, Beverly Orenstine, 22, were burned to death in the accident on March 11 at Dana Point on the Coast Highway. Mildred Beckman Devitt, 26, wife of the driver of the car struck by Brunner, was fatally injured.

Dwyer BEGINS DEBT ADJUSTMENT WORK

J. J. Dwyer, prominent Anaheim rancher, who was appointed Orange county debt conciliator to succeed the late Lucien Flippin, now is officially on the job, after having taken his oath of office, it was announced today by R. D. Flaherty, secretary of the Orange County Farm Bureau.

Dwyer will maintain the same office in the Farm Bureau offices at 613 1-2 North Main street that formerly was occupied by Flippin. Tuesday will be his day for interviews with farmers who wish aid in adjusting their debts.

It was requested that anyone who has been conferring with Flippin but who has not made formal application for debt adjustment consult with Dwyer at once, so that there will be no delay in adjusting the debts. The list of preliminary prospects used by Flippin cannot be found, it was stated.

Dwyer was appointed debt conciliator of Orange county by Judge William P. James, district Federal judge, under the Federal bankruptcy laws.

LATE ATTEMPT GAS PRICES TO TAKE TWO CENT BOOST TUESDAY

When Charles Ocan, president of the Orange County Humane Society, of 1337 West Ninth street, routed Deputy County Clerk Al Hitchcock of Orange out of his bath Saturday night at 10 o'clock and filed with Ocan's nominating petition for the post of coroner of Orange county, two points of law were raised which have brought forth request for a ruling by the attorney general of the state, it was disclosed today.

The question was referred to the district attorney's office by County Clerk Joe Backs, and was in turn referred to the attorney general for interpretation of the law, it was learned.

One point upon which a ruling is asked is whether a petition filled out for the office of "coroner" shall be accepted when the office to be filled is "coroner and public administrator."

The second point involved is the time at which the petition was filed.

Under the state law Saturday was the last day for filing nomination petitions and the law says the time shall expire at "midnight" of that day. The law also provides that the county clerk's office shall close at noon on Saturday.

The attorney general stated last week that the closing time for petitions would be noon Saturday, yet the county clerk's office at Los Angeles remained open until 5 o'clock to accept petitions.

Believing that midnight Saturday was the closing time, Ocan secured the necessary papers from County Clerk Backs at 11:45 Saturday morning, secured the necessary 30 signatures Saturday afternoon, and filed the paper, together with the filing fee, with Deputy County Clerk Al Hitchcock at his home in Orange Saturday night about 10 o'clock, after he was unable to locate Backs or other deputies from his office.

Filings have been accepted in the past after the clerk's office is closed, it is reported.

FINAL WEEK FOR TAX EXEMPTIONS

County Assessor served notice today to ex-service men and unsecured personal property owners that this is the last week in which to file claims for exemption. After this week, he pointed out, no exemption would be allowed.

Veterans of wars are allowed $1000 exemption on their property provided the property does not have an assessed valuation of $5000 or more. Others are allowed, if they own unsecured personal property not assessed at more than $100, exemption to that extent.

CHURCH GROUPS TO MEET TONIGHT IN PARK AT ANAHEIM

All church men and their families are invited to attend the mass meeting and rally sponsored by the Orange County Church Brotherhood in the Anaheim City park beginning at 6 o'clock this evening. Picnic table accommodations have been arranged for 400 people.

Dr. Cleveland Kleihauer, pastor of the Beverly Christian church in Los Angeles, will speak on "The Challenge of the Modern Day to the Men of the Church" at a mass meeting in the Greek theater at 7:30 o'clock, and Dr. George A. Warner, minister of the First Methodist church of Santa Ana, will present a resolution dealing with the moral crisis in Orange county.

Prof. J. B. Nield, musical director of the First Presbyterian church of Hollywood, will be in charge of the musical program, according to A. M. Robinson, executive secretary of the Brotherhood.

THAT TIRED "OFFICE" LOOK—

— and then he Smoked a Camel!

NEED ENERGY?

Here's the latest word from Science on increasing Vim and Energy...quickly!

Today we call attention again to important facts which were presented to smokers in a recent item in this paper.

Perhaps you overlooked it. We repeat: You can release new vigor, when tired, by smoking a Camel.

This comes from the "energizing effect" in Camels as recently confirmed and described by a famous New York scientific laboratory. Everyone gets fatigued...cross...down in the dumps...when his energy is used up. But the way to turn on more energy has now been pointed out, by actual Camel smokers who tell of their own experiences. And by up-to-date research made in the laboratories of science.

And so—"get a lift with a Camel!" Any time you want to enjoy yourself or restore yourself. Steady smoking need not concern Camel smokers, since the finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS in Camels never get on your nerves.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS — Turkish and Domestic — than any other popular brand.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

-- News Behind The News --

WASHINGTON

By George Durkin

Gene Myers, Texas editor and photographer, recently brought James W. Weather's list of anti-trust torys to the attention of the National Whirligig. The list was a list of names of those who had been in the anti-trust movement.

These names were picked from the list in which the public is most interested. The list was a list of names of those who had been in the anti-trust movement.

President Roosevelt naturally knows the most carefully of any man in public life. The names in the list were picked from the list in which the public is most interested.

There are two other officials about whom all Washington travelers are asked, and who are the most quoted about in letters to the capital.

Speaking second to the President is General Hugh H. Johnson, boss of I.R.A. He has been an especially careful to catch the public fancy.

Everyone wants to know just what kind of a man the general really is and whether this and that story about him is true.

LUCKY

The third man arousing general inquisitiveness—judging from mail and reports of those who have seen on tour—Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, newly commissioned undersecretary of agriculture and popular choice for number one position in the Brain Trust.

Tugwell is to a considerable degree the beneficiary of a deliberate "build-up" by forces opposing the Roosevelt administration. These anti's haven't dared yet to attack Dr. H. directly and have played the handsome college professor as the most vulnerable of all.

To mix up an expression, Tugwell has come to the Washington newspaper men don't like him particularly because of his aloof manner. Under ordinary circumstances he would be the beneficiary of very little publicity.

Johnson makes news with almost every breath. He threatens, bluffs and actual deeds—coupled with his picturesque language on the speaking platform and over the radio—have whittled the public imagination for full details.

In this respect he is as apart from Tugwell as the pole. It took Dr. Wirt and "Gordon" Smith, plus the forces behind them, to really make the professor a national figure.

Tugwell acquitted himself admirably in the opinion of most observers the day his fitness for office was questioned by certain members of the senate. He got a big break from the most performance of his inquisitors. Had he stumbled at all the headlines would have read differently because Tugwell treats most reports as like backward students in his old classes at Columbia.

U. S. S. R.

Much ado has been made over the political quarters of Comrade Alexander Trotsky, new ambassador from Russia. He responded the magnificently appointed house used by envoys of the old czarist regime and has been an interesting study in how comrade is here. Diplomatic row has made it a practice for years to establish hot weather embassies and legations at the seashore or in the mountains, according to taste.

The Soviet ambassador's friends on the Russian steppes would die if they could see the summer estate he has just located in the Blue Ridge Mountains about 55 miles from Washington.

It is a 418-acre affair originally built by the late Frank C. Carpenter, the travel writer, located several miles from Blue Ridge, Va., at a 1,000-foot elevation overlooking the Shenandoah Valley.

A sumptuous stone building with all modern improvements serves as the master house. Another attractive structure is a library with additional guest rooms above. The third main building was set up as a children's house but serves admirably for the playtime of adults. A tennis court, lawn, garden, caretaker's lodge and similar supplementary features complete the mountain layout.

But the most impressive to the visitor is the gigantic swimming pool, built above ground. It is a very large tank made of field stone and cement, constructed on a hillside, one end may be entered from the ground. Unique landward permit access at the far end.

CAMP SITE

Mrs. Frances Carpenter Huntington, half secretary of her father's estate, did not stop with leaving the Carpenter place in Tugwell's. Having plans of her own, she undertook to give the Blue Ridge a real diplomatic residence.

While she and her husband, William Chapin Huntington, an when locally prominent writer, are leaving Europe in quest of material, their 200-acre estate, located in the adjacent Mount Weather is being occupied by the summer by Mrs. Rudolf Lettner, co-owner of the German embassy, and his family.

A spot on Mount Weather was picked out by Calvin Coolidge as a summer camp site for his son-in-law. He had conceived appropriate $25,000 to improve and modernize the buildings of an abandoned station of the U. S. Weather Bureau. Mr. Hoover did not care for the site, returned the $25,000 to the treasury and built his own camp on the Appalachian.

CINEMA

As soon as the Dayton board finally turns in its report you may expect national revamping of the movie code.

The Dayton board fired a heavy shot at administration of the movie-and-tell industry because its vote authority of it was controlled by representatives of the right big producers. In the closing hours of congress Senator Day also took occasion to attack I.R.A. Inquiry Administrator Red Ross.

Blue Eagle headquarters met this morning yesterday, denying everything. But there is reason to expect that an important revision of the code authority will be ordered soon. The theater owners as well as the independent producers have been opposing about lack of representation. Ross' visit will hold his job as long as Johnson does, according to the informed at I.R.A.

NEW YORK

UTILITIES

The Knoxville wrangle between TVA and Tennessee Public Service sounds like the trumpet of Armageddon to utility leaders.

Bitter is a pale word to describe their feelings. They claim that government camouflage about TVA and Tennessee Public Service utility rates is torn away at last.

TVA is revealed as a gun at the temple. Lewis L. Linscomb, final offer of $5,500,000 doesn't even cover the Tennessee company's outstanding bonds. "If that isn't a case of deliberately ruining investors, what is?" It is concluded that the company can't possibly meet direct TVA competition and survive. If the government establishes the threatened precedent it looks like the beginning of the end for the big holding companies.

Tennessee Public Service belongs to National Power and Light—a subsidiary in turn of Electric Bond and Share. There's no doubt that the parent company will fight for its offspring to the last ditch. But how?

BREATH

Top-notch legal talent doesn't believe the customary defense about confiscation without due process of law will work. TVA isn't going to seize the property. Instead it made an offer to purchase—which the Tennessee company was at liberty to accept or reject. It's hard to resist that into confusion, though, the lawyers will have a good game try.

Note that TVA was eager enough to pick on an operating unit wholly owned by a holding company. No individual stockholder will be hit directly. That means one large corporate opponent and not for the government instead of many small ones who might arouse sympathy. Tennessee Public Service is a relatively small concern and loss of its income won't damage National Power and Light irreparably. But the principle involved may be a matter of life or death to the holding group.

Electric Bond and Share is a member of the Edison Institute. The new Edison president—Thomas McGarvey—is likely to be heard from in an uncertain tone. But it looks in advance as if he will be wasting his breath.

LABOR

New York Democrats aren't unduly concerned about organized labor's threat to weak political vengeance on those who killed the Wagner bill and amendments to the Railway Labor Act.

They privately inquire just what labor expects to do about it. Although the railroad brotherhoods may think they've been given the run-around by Democratic leaders in congress their only hope of political legislative progress lies in continuing to play the Democratic party on the nose. Party leaders remark off the record that they think them more than they need labor.

Just as rate William Green's belligerence about the failure of the Wagner bill to pass chiefly as a gesture to appease the left wing of the A. F. of L. They contend that Green's real strategy involves constant backslaps cooperation with the administration on the understanding that labor's program will be pushed at the earliest opportunity and that he understands why further legislation had to be sidetracked at this session.

TURN

Competition for the new purchasing power created by recovery finds the motor industry with a jump on the field. The increased 55 per cent in motor car production for the first five months of 1934 compared to last year is rated a noble record but no great help to other lines of retail business.

Reports point out that cars are usually bought with a down payment that comes out of savings while subsequent installments are generally met out of current income. During this process there is that much less money available for general merchandise, recreation, etc. It will be over a year on the average before the present possession of the more than a million 1934 models already sold will be much up to department stores.

If any one industry has to be outstandingly prosperous at the expense of others the motor industry is the best from the recovery standpoint because of its heavy buying of steel, oil, rubber, wood, glass, etc. But general retailers can hardly be blamed for wondering when their turn will come.

L.A.

There is still a noticeable time lag in the effect of higher pay-desires. Old habits still take precedence over new purchases. The banks reflect this condition while department stores show a smaller number of sales, although about of last year in dollar volume because of increased prices.

KENNY SEEKS ELECTION AS ASSEMBLYMAN

Pledging his support of the Democratic candidates who may be nominated for state officers at the primary election August 28, and promising "fullest cooperation with the governor-elect, in effective plans to end poverty, remove fear, and provide security for struggling taxpayers," H. F. Kenny, progressive Democrat, has announced his candidacy for nomination and election as assemblyman for the seventy-fourth district, that portion of Orange county lying south and east of the Santa Ana river.

"The New Deal for all America, which is being engineered so wonderfully by our great humanitarian president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, must be supplemented by another Democratic achievement—a New Game, with a fresh clean deck, in California," he declared. Largely due to our favorable climate, California has and may always expect to have an unemployment problem distinctively and more acutely her own. Anyway, 120,000,000 people have no business sitting around waiting for the "Great White Paper" in Washington to feed them and do just about all their thinking for them. It is time to start using our native American resourcefulness and ingenuity," Kenny said.

Kenny is the author of a book entitled "Human Credits," which he produced some two years ago. Critics have commented on the unusual clearness with which Kenny has analyzed the economic situation, and the sanity of his conclusions. He claims to be a champion of genuine American democracy and constitutional procedure.

"Born and educated in Canada, where he had years of experience in farming and business, and in public and social service, he has taken an active part in the public life of Southern California during the past 10 years, more than six years of that time being in Orange county," the announcement reads. He organized the Capistrano Beach Sanitary district and was its first assessor and manager. He was federal census enumerator for San Juan township and the city of San Clemente in 1930. He was largely instrumental in securing the widening and improving of State Highway 101 through Doheny Park. He was active in the Orange County Coast association. Last year he served on the staff of the state resident engineer on a half-million dollar highway contract north of Santa Monica. He resides at 1048 West Myrtle street, Santa Ana, with his wife and daughter, who has graduated from the Capistrano union high school and the Santa Ana junior college.

"Our first duty as a state is to take the unemployed off the backs of taxpayers and restore their confidence and self respect. A straight line is the shortest distance between two points; and the only direct way to put the unemployed back to work is to provide them with land, and factories, and equipment so that they can produce for themselves, and live in abundance instead of penury. We can do that in California and point the nation back to "sane American prosperity," Kenny said today.

CANDIDATE

H. F. Kenny, below, of Santa Ana, today formally announced his candidacy for assemblyman from the seventy-fourth district subject to the Democratic primaries.

Other planks in Kenny's platform include:

"Reorganization and merging of our systems of state and local government for the reduction of overhead, the increase in efficiency, and the suppression of crime.

"A system of economic planning that will make a place for the school and college graduates and assure steady employment for all able bodied men, especially heads of young and growing families.

"Adequate pensions for the aged, the blind, and the widows.

"Revision of the public and private debt structure, and scaling down of interest rates.

"Revision of our tax system to protect the farmer and the small-home owner and assure basic production and social stability.

"Flood control and water conservation for all Orange county, and more public beaches, breakwaters and developments of our coastal area.

"An appreciation that the Golden Rule and the principles of Christian brotherhood are fundamental to successful human organization."

ARREST 18 ON DRUNK CHARGES OVER WEEKEND

Fourteen men were booked at the county jail over the week end on drunkenness charges, with an additional four being jailed for drunken driving. The total of 18 arrests is the largest week end booking for many weeks.

Of the arrests made on intoxication, six were by Santa Ana police, five by the sheriff's office, two from Placentia and one from Anaheim.

Deputy Sheriff James Musick, G. F. McKelvey and James Workman booked four men at the jail at 12:20 a. m. yesterday for drunkenness on the highway after being called to El Toro to quiet a disturbance. The men were Joe Silvers, 20, Frank Ramos, 19 and Chris Federico, 21, all of San Juan Capistrano, and Fred W. Burk, 34, El Toro, who gave his name as John Jones when first booked. He was later released on $25 bail.

D. A. Weaver, 39, Garden Grove, was arrested in a Garden Grove pool room Saturday and booked at the jail for drunkenness by Deputy Sheriff George Graupensperger.

Mike Monreal, 28, Delhi, was arrested at Fifth and Broadway late Saturday night and jailed for drunkenness by Officers Jess Buckles and F. L. Grouard. He was released without bail by Judge J. G. Mitchell and appeared in police court late today.

Fred Flores, 27, 911 Logan street, was arrested at the rear of the Red Lantern cafe at Fourth and French streets, where he had been fighting, according to police reports. He was jailed by Officers William Heard and W. E. B. Sherwood at midnight Saturday.

Alejo Roa, 42, Costa Mesa, posted a $25 bond and was released from jail Sunday after being booked Saturday night for drunkenness. He was arrested by Buckles and Grouard at Fourth and Birch streets.

Frank Townsley, 57, 632 North Birch street, is in the county jail for drunkenness and violation of probation, following his arrest yesterday. Townsley was given a 60-day suspended sentence by Judge J. G. Mitchell last Monday for drunkenness and was taken to the Orange County hospital yesterday by Mrs. Townsley when he became intoxicated. He was later transferred to the jail by Officer C. W. Wolford and served with the bench warrant for probation violation.

Cecil K. Moon, 34, 823 North Birch street, was arrested for drunkenness at 9 o'clock yesterday afternoon in his car on West Fourth street between Birch and Ross. Officers Wolford and Ray Hartley booked him at the jail. Four hours later Ralph W. Moon, 32, of the same address, was booked for drunken driving following a wreck at Delhi in which no one was hurt.

Blaine Cox, 36, Fourth and Baker streets, was arrested at 8:30 a. m. today in the Otis building at Fourth and Main streets. Officer J. P. McWilliams jailed Cox after a humorous incident with the elevator in the Otis building. When McWilliams pushed the "down" button from the first floor, Cox pushed the "up" button on the second floor and the elevator kept going up and down. McWilliams finally used the stairs.

Cencio Caranza, 32, and Ygnacio Espinoza, 45, both of Placentia, were booked at the jail for drunkenness yesterday afternoon by Officers Gus Barnes and Ralph Pantuso of Placentia.

John D. Cunningham, 67, 820 East Fourth street, was booked at the jail Saturday by Anaheim police to serve a 25-day sentence for intoxication.

Civil War Story To Be Here Soon

Marion Davies and Gary Grant are starred in "Operator 13," which will play at the Broadway theater soon. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The picture centers around the earlier years of the Civil War when the labors of spies, both Union and Confederate, provided many of the dramatic incidents of the strenuous times.

The spirit of the old South has been captured in the film, and is exemplified in a number of musical sequences, many of which are done by the famous Four Mills Brothers.

'HAP' WINTZ IS ANNOUNCER FOR AUTO PAGEANT

With the securing of "Happy" Wintz to act as master of ceremonies for the Mid-Summer Motor Pageant in the Municipal Bowl Wednesday night, American Legion and automotive association officials rushed preparations for the colorful outdoor show.

Wintz is well known here for his announcing and will be accompanied by a crew and loud speaker system. He will be at the microphone for the special program of midget auto races, parade of new cars and trucks, music by the Santa Ana band and fashion show of new styles by the candidates in the queen contest.

Final standings in the queen contest will be tabulated tomorrow and the winner will preside for the program. She will also receive a week's vacation trip to Catalina island, with second and third place winners receiving jewelry prizes. Miss Martha Zaket and Miss Helen Lee, both of Santa Ana, are holding a slight lead over the other 13 contestants from all parts of the county.

plaintiff had received two broken ribs, torn ligaments and other injuries in the automobile crash. He asks that the court award him the $4975 damage to pay for his loss of time, loss of use of the car and damages to the car and himself, as well as for medical attention.

GILMORE PRODUCTS USED IN FORD RUN

Austin Elmore, nationally known automotive test engineer, whose reputation dates back to the World War days, when he was the youngest instructor in Uncle Sam's naval aviation forces, added another triumph to his long list of engineering achievements when he checked in here this morning after driving a stock Ford V-8 sedan from Los Angeles to establish a new gasoline economy record of 33.3 miles to the gallon for the 443 miles between the two cities. It was emphasized by Elmore that this high mileage cannot be expected by the average driver because this run was made under the most favorable road and weather conditions by an experienced automotive engineer.

On his remarkable test run Elmore used Gilmore Red Lion "controlled power gasoline" and Gilmore Lion Head oil. He also used Gilmore products throughout, in the transmission, differential and on every working part.

In establishing the record of 33.3 miles to the gallon, which breaks the former low gas-consumption mark of 24.45 miles to the gallon established by Elmore with a 1933 Ford V-8 last year, the engineer averaged 32.43 miles an hour, covering the 443 miles in 14 hours 55 minutes and consuming only 13.3 gallons of gas and 1 1/2 pint of oil.

Put a GARDENER to Work!

Thousands of strangers EVERY DAY pass through Santa Ana.

Their eyes are open, and they are looking to see all they can see of this city: its stores and factories; its homes and gardens.

They see many beauties of Nature, but too often man's neglect does not give Nature a chance to make the best impression.

Nearly everything will grow here, but human care is necessary to get the most satisfying effect.

In the wild places, let Nature have her way, unmarred by the hand of man.

But in our yards and cities, it is necessary that man combine with Nature, and this combination brings the wondrous beauties, which attract thousands of new residents to Southern California each year.

Lawns must be planted smoothly and kept mowed. Hedges must be kept trimmed. Weeds must be kept down. Trees must have their dead wood cut away.

All such operations represent LABOR, and the employment of available labor is one of the big questions before the country today.

The number of unemployed includes men from all walks of life, but nearly all can run a lawnmower or manipulate a spade. Gardening offers them quick and immediate outlet for their desire for honest work, PROVIDING those who own gardens will hire them!

Nature knows no year of depression, and weeds, shrubs, and trees have been growing, just as always, and must be attended to.

Do the gardening work yourself if you must, but hire a man and put him on it if you can. Perhaps a half day will fix up a corner of the yard, but it's that much, and some man in Santa Ana will be glad to get even a half day's work.

Call up the free National Re-employment service—phone 4471—and they will send a man for just the kind of work you need; or call the Unemployed Association, 4823 or 5610.

Or call up a tree trimmer or pruner or nursery or landscape gardener, and put him to work on your specialized jobs.

*New
at no extra cost —

THE American Medical Association's official Journal recently said, editorially, that too many children still have rickets (faulty bone development) and would continue to have until some cheap, generally available, agreeable source of vitamin D is provided, suggesting that vitamin D milk offered promising possibilities of meeting those requirements.

To help meet that need, Pet Milk is now enriched with vitamin D by irradiation with ultra-violet rays—nature's method of creating this precious vitamin.

By using irradiated Pet Milk, you can now give your children—all your family—an extra supply of vitamin D—at no extra cost. The price of Pet Milk has not been increased because of the extra vitamin D.

Let your children have sunshine. It's good for them. Give them such other sources of vitamin D as your doctor may prescribe. Give them irradiated Pet Milk, too. All three sources may be needed to give them the vitamin D they need. All three together can't possibly do harm.

Many investigations have shown more than fifty per cent of young children suffering from rickets. Many cases exist that can be detected only by expert examination, but which cause faulty bones and bad teeth in later life. You can't afford not to give your children the extra protection which irradiated Pet Milk provides.

It is probable that this extra supply of vitamin D may be beneficial to adults as well as to children. Irradiated Pet Milk used for all milk and cream purposes will give your whole family an extra supply of this precious vitamin.

Pet Milk is pure, fresh cow's milk, concentrated and sterilized. Nothing whatever is added to the natural milk except the valuable vitamin D.

These valuable free books tell about this new extra quality in Pet Milk:
"More Nearly Perfect—When Baby Needs Milk from a Bottle"—gives complete information on the value of Pet Milk for babies, and twenty-five recipes especially designed for small children.
"New Summertime Recipes for the New Pet Milk"—beautifully illustrated—fifty-three tested and approved recipes for seasonal dishes appropriate for the whole family.

WHAT PRICE VICTORY?

Managers of losing baseball clubs never know where they will be in the morning. This fact once more was strikingly demonstrated in Pittsburgh the other day when the veteran George Gibson was removed in favor of the graceful third baseman, Harold Joseph Traynor, shortly before game time. The night before,

President William Benswanger said he had no intention of making a change. But players and patrons had lost confidence in Gibson, the Pirates' Iron Man catcher of the pennant and world championship days of Honus Wagner, Fred Clarke, Tommy Leach and Babe Adams.

It was the second time that this had happened. In May, 1922, in the midst of a slump similar to the one that resulted in his dismissal this trip, Gibson knickered into the late Barney Dreyfuss' office, and said, "I wish to resign. The players won't play for me." At the far end of the previous campaign, after the Pirates had sloughed off a substantial lead and collapsed like a real estate boom in a series with the victorious Giants in New York, Dreyfuss poked his head through the clubhouse door and hissed, "Quit-ter!"

Barney hadn't recovered from the shock when Gibson ambled into his office, so accepted the resignation, and placed Bill McKeechie in command.

But Dreyfuss never lost faith in Gibson, and one of his last acts was to call him back in November, 1931.

HOMER KNOCKS GIBSON OUT

Gibson's athletes did not consider him a smart baseball man. They believed he ruined his pitching staff by working Larry French and Ralph Binkofer out of turn. The Canadian's judgment either was poor at times or else he was indecisive. His strategy, if any, was made to look worse by comparison with the modern chess-board juggling of Bill Terry, the trigger-minded Georgian and disciple of the percentage system, who handles the Giants.

Gibson literally was knocked out of the game by Frank O'Doul, who has developed into a pinch-hitter of the Frank Merriwell type with the New York club. The despised Giants were leading, 3 to 2, in the sixth and had the bases filled with one out when O'Doul swung for Catcher Gus Mancuso. And you can imagine how the trade hopped upon Gibson when, after Helme Meine had tossed a couple of inside balls, O'Doul parked the next pitch in the right field seats.

TRAYNOR RATED HIGH

Traynor, who has been Pittsburgh's third baseman since 1921, is popular and should enjoy success at the helm.

As a player, renowned critics have rated "Pie" ahead of Burns and Latham, of the late '80s, the immortal Jimmy Collins and Bill Bradley. With the exception of John McGraw, he has been the best hitting third baseman in history.

A native of Farmingham, Mass., Traynor starred at short-stop for Somerville high school.

He quit a meat handling job in Boston's City Market to try out with the Boston Braves in the spring of 1920, but forgot to tell George Stallings about it. Seeing him out there one day and believing that he was annoying Rabbit Moravine, Stallings shouted, "Get the hell outa there and stay out!" Ed Barrow, as boss of the Red Sox, recommended Traynor to Portsmouth, of Virginia league, but neglected to attach a string to him.

McGraw sent Arthur Devlin to look at Traynor. Devlin offered the Portsmouth club $7500 for the recruit. Portsmouth demanded $10,000.

"No perk-water ball player is worth $10,000," snapped Devlin, but Pittsburgh paid it, and McGraw fired Devlin.

McGraw later told Traynor that Devlin's mistake cost the Giants $200,000. They paid that much for prospective third basemen who couldn't carry Traynor's bat—and Helme Groh.

NATIONALS NIP AMERICANS IN ALL-STAR TILT

Which plays the faster brand of night baseball—the National or American division of the Southern California association?

This long debated question was answered in favor of the National league today, if the results of a game between all-star teams of the two sister branches at Anaheim Saturday mean anything. The National All-Stars won, 1 to 0.

"Chico" Sabella, Huntington Beach pitcher, made the only run of the evening in the sixth inning. He tripled to right-center off little Phil Wire of Redlands, and raced home a minute later when Wire was guilty of a wild pitch.

Sabella, Louie Neva and Jim Coates shared the National league's hurling burden. Neva allowed two hits in four innings, Sabella four in 3, and Coates none in 2. Coates struck out five of the six to face him. Venn Botte of San Bernardino went five frames for the in-liners, Wire the other three.

Played as a benefit for Ora Sands, the National league's No. 1 baseman who is out of Olive's lineup indefinitely with a broken ankle, the contest netted $54.

The score:

Huntington Beach can clinch a tie for the championship of the National league's first-half by defeating Westminster at Huntington Beach tomorrow night. With only two more games to go, Joe Rodgers' Oilers are leading Anaheim by one full game. Anaheim meets Torrance at Anaheim, Santa Ana, which threatens to finish high among the leaders after a rather dismal start, meets Long Beach at the Bowl. Olive goes to Fullerton.

Four of the six teams still figure in the American league's race as the last week of the first-half season gets under way tomorrow. San Bernardino has a technical lead, having played once more than Pomona, which has lost the same number of games. Riverside and Redlands are both contenders. Statistics:

Golfer's Drive Sticks on End of Woman's Hairpin
JOHN BALL WON BET IN FOG

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 25.—Gene Sarazen played out of a sort of daze when he hit a hole in a Ryder Cup match; a poor fellow Noyes a match in the National Amateur; a gentleman at New Brunswick, N. J., sliced his drive into the river and killed a fine trout.

Just a few of the crazy things in the crazy game called golf that happened in America.

Here are a few from over here: At Huddersfield recently a ball was cut in two by striking the edge of a scythe which a green-keeper was wielding. . . .

A St. Andrews member, playing the first hole, drove a ball which struck a hatpin in the hat of a lady crossing the course. The ball stuck to the point. The lady was not injured. . . .

At Mid-Surrey course, a 78-year-old player holed his brassie tee shot on the 180-yard tenth hole. . . .

Imagine the surprise of the Wales golfer who, upon stepping into a trap to play his ball, began sinking out of sight. He was rescued just before his chin reached the quicksand. . . .

George Duncan hooked seven consecutive balls out of bounds on one hole of the first big tournament he ever won. . . .

A Hawick golfer, in driving to the second hole, placed his ball in the headlight of a passing car. The motorist drove 10 miles before stopping, giving the player the longest drive of his life. . . .

A Mr. McEvoy, playing his favorite Cork course, placed his masher pitch in the ear of a donkey who was wandering about the course. Mr. McEvoy was just figuring how to play it out when the donkey, probably reading his mind, galloped away. . . .

John Ball once wagered he could play Hoylake in a dense fog (1) under 90, (2) not lose a ball, (3) finish under two hours. He won all three bets, shooting an 81 with a black ball. . . .

A Hertfordshire golfer killed a partridge in flight with his tee shot and was fined by the game warden for not having a hunting license. . . .

Finding himself up against a poor opponent in the semi-final round of a tournament, Mr. Henry Dearth, as landed sporting gesture, put on a complete set of medieval armor. He was beaten, 2 and 1. . . .

And in 1914, just after the start of the war, J. N. Farrar accepted a wager that he could play the Royston course under 100 strokes while dressed in the full infantry marching equipment of blankets, haversacks, canteens, etc. He won, shooting 94. . . .

A Mr. Phillips and a Mr. Raymond Thomas held the distinction of playing the longest "hole" on record—20 miles. They made the "hole," which was from the first tee of their home club to the 18th green of a course in another village, in 608 strokes. . . .

At Duddington a player's second shot landed and stuck on the back of a sheep. The player, after much coaxing, managed to persuade the animal to stand still long enough for him to make a niblick shot to the green. (Copyright, 1934)

AMERICAN NET STARS ADVANCE AT WIMBLEDON

WIMBLEDON, England, June 25.—(UP)—The United States Davis Cup forces, its ranks unbroken, advanced today to the second round men's singles of the all-England tennis championships.

When towering Lester Stofen of Los Angeles eliminated Pierre Grandguillo of Egypt, it gave the American cup aggregation five first-round victories. Stofen won 6-3, 7-5, 11-9.

Frank Shields, fifth seeded player, successfully passed his first test by winning over Dr. Daniel Frenn, German ace, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Shields overwhelmed Dr. Frenn with a terrific service and flashing net play. Experts agreed this was the finest form the New Yorker has shown at Wimbledon. They recalled that last year he was so dissatisfied with his play here that he raced home on the first boat long before the Davis Cup play was started.

Wood Beats McGrath
Sidney Wood, another member of the U. S. Davis Cup team, advanced by beating young Vivian McGrath of Australia, 10-8, 6-4, 6-4.

Wood's stylish, steaming strokes finally broke down the Australian's double-fisted backhand.

Jack Crawford of Australia, another favorite, turned back Ignatz Florynski of Poland, 6-2, 7-5, 8-6.

"Bunny" Austin, prominent English player, downed Mohammed Slem of India, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

The first American player eliminated was W. L. Breese, formerly of Harvard, Marcel Bernard of France downed Breese, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

George Lott of Chicago advanced by beating R. O. Williams of England, 6-3, 6-1, 6-8, 7-5.

Christian Bousset, French southpaw, blasted the hopes of Charles Hare, lanky 18-year-old English player who recently defeated Fred Perry. Bousset won 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.

Fred Perry advanced. Perry, ace of the English cup forces and outstanding favorite to win the tourney, eliminated a fellow countryman, C. R. D. Tucker, 6-2, 6-2, 5-7, 6-0.

R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia, veteran non-playing captain of the U. S. Davis Cup team, eliminated the Indian prince of tennis, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0.

Henry Culley, Santa Barbara, Cal., unranked, was the second American eliminated. Don Turnbull of Australia downed Culley, 6-2, 6-2, 5-6.

The third American shunted out of the tourney was Clayton Burwell, former ace of Sewanee university, who was humbled by Ladislav Hecht, Czechoslovakian Davis cupper. Hecht won, 6-3, 13-11, 6-0.

Teams composed of Elks and Scots tangled Saturday, the B. P. O. E. winning, 26-23.

Frank Angell, A. J. Parker, Hunter Leach, Cornish Roehm, Kie Hinton, Luke Miller, Dr. Fred Earle, Jesse Elliott, Ken Miller, Y. L. Motry, R. E. Walker and Harold Brown played for the Elks. The Scots lineup included C. M. Derden, Wallie Kaufman, Ora Jennings, Claude McDowell, Dr. C. V. Doty, Dr. G. O. Grover, Henry Walker, J. E. Walker, Larry Golden, Walter Wright, Ed Morris, Ray Graham, Walter Wright, Wayne Gao, Ed Allen, Earl Livdige, H. C. Dale and Ralph Jones.

The donkey-baseball brigade goes into Los Angeles next week for a series of games at the new Gilmore stadium. A week in San Diego will be followed by a month in Hawaii. Santa Ana and Long Beach will get another dose of the troupe after its return from Honolulu.

Los Angeles, June 25.—(UP)—Stanford university was still winner of the National Collegiate Athletic association's track meet today, but the eagle eye of an electric timing camera had made monkeys out of the finish judges and robbed Glenn Hardin of Louisiana State of a possible world record in the 220-yard hurdles set in the meet Saturday.

Stanford's total of 63 points remained the same, but U.S.C. gained three points to maintain its second place position with a total of 17/720 and Louisiana State lost four to keep third place with 43.

Hardin had been timed at 22.7 seconds for the event. The unerring camera showed his official time was 23.16.

Louisiana State's total took a jolt when the camera proved that George Fisher, picked as the winner in the high hurdles, actually was third, with Sam Klopstock of Stanford first and Amsden Oliver of Miami second.

Numerous other second to sixth place winners in a block of events were altered by the mechanical judge, decision of which is final.

Other final standings were: Miami 16; U.C.L.A. 11 3/8; Kansas 8; Illinois 9 3/8; Auburn 9; Texas A. and M. 8; Dennison 3. Texas lost one point to drop to 9.

N.C.A.A. officials, pleased with the $2,000 attendance, predicted the meet would be brought back here again next year when an official vote is taken in December. Meanwhile, some of the athletes headed for home, others for the National A.A.U. meet at Milwaukee next Saturday.

'Marathon' For Swimmers Planned at 'Y'

An unusual water contest is announced for the Y. M. C. A. pool by Thomas Coffin, of Whittier college, swimming coach.

This is a "swimming marathon," in which all the men and older boys may participate. Each swimmer will keep account of this number of laps in the pool he swims daily, and will report his score for registration on the scoreboard. An imaginary island, five miles in circumference, is the goal, and the person who first completes the "trip" around the island will be hailed as champion of the marathon.

SANDWICH, England, June 25.—(UP)—A waverling 76 scored by the defending champion, Denny Shute of Philadelphia, and routine 75 carded by Gene Sarazen, the favorite, and Joe Kirkwood and MacDonald Smith, today kept alive America's hopes for another British Open golf championship.

Today's play consisted of the first preliminary round. A second will be played tomorrow. The low-scoring 100 players and ties then start the tourney proper Wednesday.

So the fact that the Americans were either nine or ten strokes back of Henry Cotton, the British pro, who posted a record-breaking 66, meant precisely nothing. He played the St. George's course here.

Shute's day was an unhappy one. Also playing St. George's, he started off with a 5, one stroke over par, and never got the stroke back. Only the good fortune of well-placed shots on two holes which left him with chances for birdie 2's which he made, enabled Shute to keep up his courage. Shute today showed the dissatisfaction he has felt over his present game.

Cotton's 66 was one of the most brilliant performances the National has ever known. Eight strokes below par, he made the great showing by getting birdies at six holes, and an eagle on one, the 238-yard, fourth hole.

Half of the field played St. George's today, and the other half the Royal Cinque Ports course at nearby Deal. The players swap courses for tomorrow's round.

Sarazen argued with his caddy on the choice of clubs frequently. Sarazen crossed up the bag-carrier on the tenth where he was badly bunkered.

"Niblick," said the caddy. "Give me that No. 6." Gene demanded.

"It's a dead certain niblick shot," the caddy insisted.

"No, 6," Gene insisted.

He played his six and put the ball within seven feet of the pin to par the hole.

Mac Smith played just qualifying golf for his 75. He played calmly and good putting often saved him after bad approaches.

Kirkwood scored a 75 despite a lame shoulder which bothered him considerably, especially with his woods. His worst shot of the round was a pulled drive at the 14th which went into deep rough. He gambled with a spoon and the ball splashed into the stream. He chipped out from the stream and deluged spectators and himself with mud and water. Just after he struck the ball he fell into the edge of the creek and his natty costume was a wreck.

Beginning the final first-half of the regular Santa Ana City league baseball schedule, the Union Oilers and the 20-30 club, both first place contenders, swing into action at the Municipal Bowl tonight.

The Oilers play the South Methodist Juniors at 7 o'clock. The Juniors threw the race wide open last week by upsetting the league-leading First National bank. The 20-30's take on the South Methodist Seniors at 8.

SHUTE, 76, AND SARAZEN WITH 75 OFF POORLY

ALICE MELLOTT, SAN DIEGO MAN WED IN CHURCH

COSTA MESA, June 25.—Miss Alice Mellett was married to Duward Cartwright, of San Diego, before a large group of friends and relatives in the Community church Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. The bride, attired in white silk and lace and carrying a bouquet of pink roses, was given in marriage by her father, W. B. Mellett. She was accompanied by Miss Ethel Kinley as bridesmaid and Miss Bernice Rathbun, of Santa Ana, as maid of honor.

The group marched in as the "Bridal March," by Lohengrin, was played on the organ by Mrs. Veda Thompson. Mr. Cartwright was accompanied by his brother, Donald Cartwright, and Walter Mellett. Little Miss Frances Wilcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Wilcox, the latter a cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl and little Mike Healey was ring bearer. The Rev. Russell Cartwright Stroup, assisted by the Rev. W. I. Lowe, performed the wedding ceremony.

Preceding the bride march Mrs. Thompson played "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," by Stuits, and "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond. Simeon Plas played "Indian Love Call," by Rudolf Friml, and "A Sweet Mystery of Life," by Victor Herbert, on the violin, accompanied by Mrs. Thompson, and Mrs. Rose Kinley Mellett sang, "At Dawning," accompanied by Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. Thompson also played Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the party marched away from the altar. Walter Mellett, brother of the bride, and Harold Long were ushers.

Shasta daisies and pink gladioli were used in the floral decorations. Huge bouquets of the flowers were placed about the altar and clusters were placed on the end of each pew along the main aisle of the auditorium. A six-pointed lighted candelabra was placed on either side of the altar. Mrs. George Merrick, assisted by Mrs. James Tallman, was in charge of the decorations.

Reunion Staged By Two Brothers

BUENA PARK, June 25.—Two brothers who had not seen each other for eighteen years are having a pleasant reunion talking over boyhood days back in South Dakota, at the C. O. White home at 400 Darlington avenue, Buena Park. Mr. White is enjoying a visit from his brother, W. E. White, of Des Moines, S. D., and his wife and two daughters. Mr. White has been a businessman of Des Moines for 38 years and is now the nominee of the Republican party there for county treasurer.

The Dakota visitor tells of turning on street lights at 11 a. m. during the dust storms, of fences being buried in piles of dust and other events of the year which California residents have heard about but not seen.

Car Wrecks Fronts Of 2 Beach Shops

LAGUNA BEACH, June 25.—Sliding tires on wet and slippery pavement coupled with an unsuccessful turn in the road in the downtown business section, early yesterday morning sent a large car crashing into the fronts of Bothamley's jewelry store and Neal's Barber shop, demolishing the front end of both establishments.

A small boothlike stand, operated by James Jones, was reduced to a heap of debris, strewn about the place. Wilbert G. Stewart, 44, connected with a bank in Perris, Riverside county, driver and sole passenger in the car, came out of the spectacular accident without a scratch, notwithstanding the fact that the front part of the car was badly damaged.

As a result of the impact, a good sized office safe, containing watches and jewelry repair work, located in Bothamley's store, was knocked out of place for about 10 feet. Damage to the building as well as to the two business establishments, not counting loss of time in operation, it was said, will run close to $600. C. H. Bothamley, who had made plans to move his store to another downtown location, said that it would be impossible to determine his loss until a careful check had been made of the store contents.

No arrest was made by Officers H. D. Allanson and Paul Johnson, on night patrol duty, who witnessed the accident.

NEWPORT RACES TO START NEXT SUNDAY

NEWPORT BEACH, June 25.—The last day of preliminary racing in preparation for the summer yachting season, which will start next Sunday, saw both star and P. C. class boats racing over the eight-mile course off Newport and Balboa Sunday with a better enrollment than in any of the previous events.

Ken Simpson, piloting the "Star," captured first place in the star event, in the snappy time of 4:04, followed by Frederick Lyons in the "Vola," time 4:08, and Howard Ingersoll, in the "Temple," a half-second later.

In the P. C. class races, H. Moffitt sprung a surprise by beating out the veteran Billy Lyon for first place, sailing the new No. 12 in its maiden venture. The time was 4:01, with Lyons trailing in the "Nina," 15 seconds behind.

According to C. M. Perkins, associate curator, the spiders are cannibalistic and are being watched with interest. "Each spider," he explained, "has appropriated, as her territory, half of the two placed in the jar, but apparently is afraid to pounce upon one of the meal worms dropped in as food for fear of trespassing on the other's realm. NEWPORT BAY EVENT DRAWS LARGE CROWD

NEWPORT BEACH, June 25.—Several hundred spectators were thrilled Saturday night by the second of a series of Venetian nights fete planned and sponsored by the Balboa Island Water Carnival association, which took place on Newport Bay off the island.

Ten gaily decorated floats carrying groups of performers toured the island in a delightful musical program lasting close to two hours. The audience was grouped at stations about the island for this event and thereby enabled to hear the entire program.

Among the entertainers were the Stigfried Chorus of 30 voices, under the direction of Harriet Stigfried Underwood, of Costa Mesa; the Terwilliger instrumental trio; Elinor Beckwith, well known piano-accompanist; Wintersburg vocal and instrumental quartet; Russell Briggs, flutist; the Pomona mountaineers; and Andri Mandel, soloist.

Much credit for the success of the affair is given to the music committee, under the chairmanship of Antonio Melillo, and the general committee, headed by A. S. Richardson, Conrad Shook, J. B. McNally and Joe Beek.

Inquiries revealed that such a request was made some time ago and that as a result a post office inspector was sent down to investigate the need of such a service and to submit recommendations. Lack of funds, it was explained by the post office authorities in

UNITY CLUB IS PROPOSED FOR LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, June 25.—Plans for forming a Unity breakfast club in Laguna Beach, to be composed of men and women interested in religious science and spiritual values, irrespective of religious beliefs and church affiliations, were discussed at a breakfast gathering held Sunday morning at the Crow's Nest Dining room, 509 Coast Boulevard, south, H. J. Gamble, well known Unity practitioner, formerly of Los Angeles, organizer of the proposed club movement, presided.

Explaining the purpose of the meeting, Gamble said that he had been approached by a number regarding the desirability of establishing a Unity center in Laguna as well as a Sunday morning breakfast club. Another speaker on the program was Carlton Grier, an address Sunday evening, now making his home in Laguna. In this connection it was announced that a brother of the speaker, the Rev. Albert C. Grier, nationally known religious leader and pastor of the Church of Truth in New York, is expected to spend next August here.

Another announcement was to the effect that Dr. Walter W. Raymond, pastor of the Christian Unity church in Los Angeles, will deliver an address Sunday evening, July 8, at the Women's clubhouse in Laguna Beach.

MILROY WELL AT H. B. FLOWS 500 BARRELS OF OIL

HUNTINGTON BEACH, June 25.—That good wells can be obtained from the tideland pool under the ocean is evidenced by the bringing in of the Milroy well yesterday when 500 barrels of oil and 2,000,000 cubic feet of gas were secured. The Milroy well located on the west side of Seventeenth street between Walnut and Olive, was drilled in three weeks ago but the production was not satisfactory and the well was killed and washed out and baled to bottom.

The oil shows no water and is about 25 gravity. The Milroy well was the subject of a legal suit by the state but a compromise has been reached and the well will be allowed to produce, paying the state a royalty of about 10 percent of the oil and 20 percent of the gas.

The first well was drilled into the ocean pool by the McVicker-Rood interests in February of 1933, creating an oil boom in the west end town lot field and resulting in the successful bringing in of 81 flowing wells. That the pool will produce flowing wells 17 months after discovery indicates the whiststocked wells may last a long time, probably several years, in view of the fact that the state authorities promise to prevent any further drilling into the pool.

BEACH CHURCH IN PROMOTION DAY EXERCISES

HUNTINGTON BEACH, June 25.—Promotion day for the Sunday school children of the First Methodist church was observed in all departments Sunday. Miss Mary Turner, for 17 years teacher in the beginners' department of the church, was presented with a basket of flowers by the students and her teacher associates in appreciation of her work.

When those whom Miss Turner had taught in the Sunday school were asked to rise and greet their former teacher, almost all the children at the promotion day ceremonies, from tiny tots to high school graduates, stood up.

At the Epworth league services in the evening 25 young people from the First Methodist church of Santa Ana were guests. A fellowship meeting followed the Epworth league program.

At the regular church services in the evening Henry Nagamatsu, member of the Wintersburg Presbyterian church and valedictorian of the high school graduating class this year, gave an address on the problems of the Japanese-Americans, young boys and girls born in the United States of Japanese parents.

Nagamatsu brought out that the Japanese children are in a peculiar position in that they are children without a country in a sense. Japan does not claim them and America only halfway accepts them, he said.

"We could not be happy in Japan," said Nagamatsu. "Their ways are not our ways. They would not understand us. They would not like us or associate with us. We would be unhappy in Japan, because we are brought up in America, have American ideas, learned in American schools and we are Americans."

"But America only half claims us. We are sort of social outcasts. We cannot enter the professions except to serve our own people. Only the Japanese people would engage a Japanese lawyer or doctor. We ask our friends, and may I say countrymen, to bear with us for our lot is just as pleasant as you make it for us. We have no choice. This is our country by birth, you people are our people and never can we have any other."

"No. The wind blew the branches off some trees and I had to dig the drifts away from the barn doors, but that was all."

"No, thanks." Bill took a pipe from his pocket, filled and lighted it and sat down in a chair by the window. When he had entered the office he had had no intention of speaking to the man he considered his rival. He had sent Pete after David on an impulse and now he was sorry he had done it. He felt incapable of handling a most unpleasant situation.

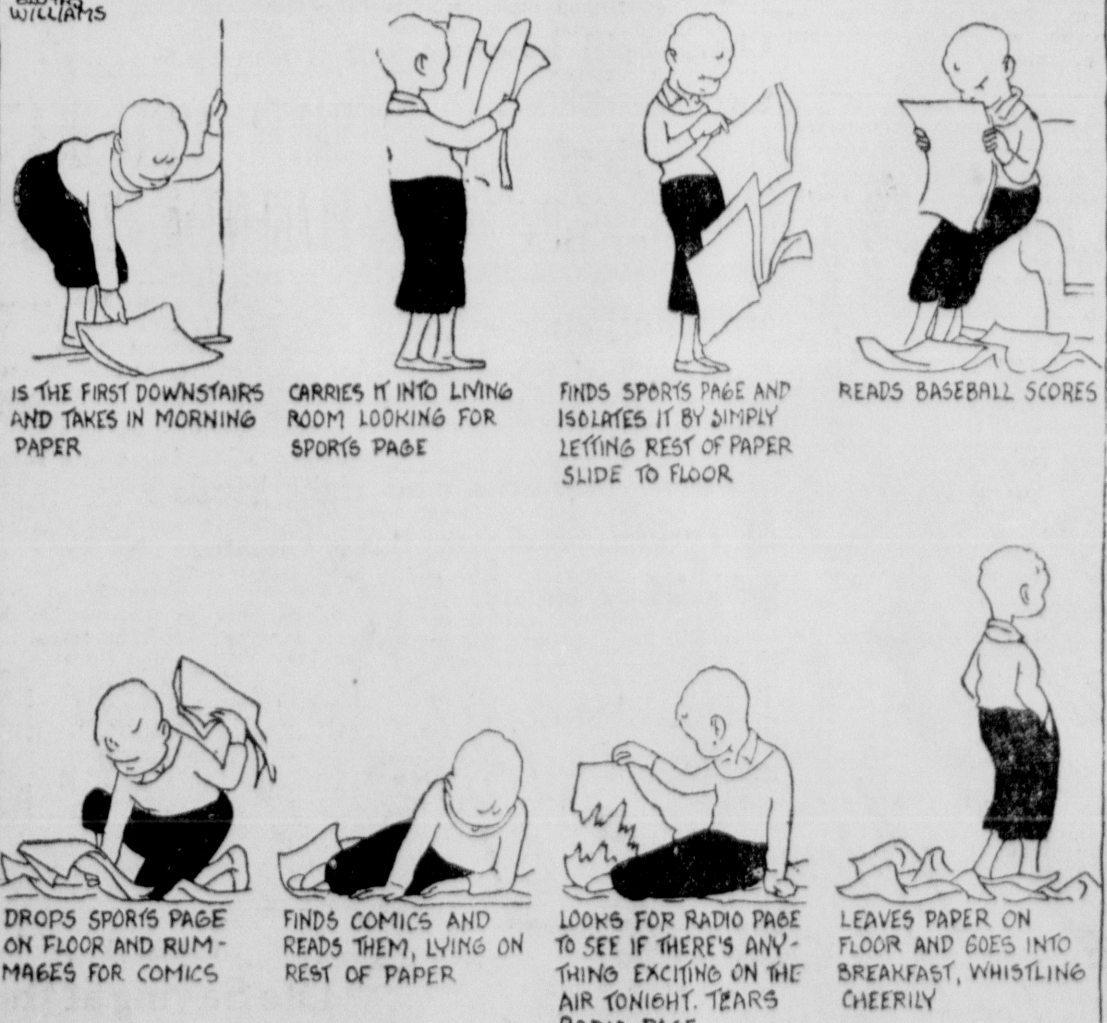

The grim proprietor, noting Bill's hot face and haggard eyes, wondered what had happened. When his son whispered that Bill Siddal had sent for the circus performer Rader anticipated a scene and preened himself to become a witness.

But he was to be disappointed. The board behind the desk registered a bell ringing in 44. Pete hurried off to answer it and came back to tell Bill that Mr. David wanted him to come up to his room.

Bill's steps lagged as he moved down the hall. His shoes seemed weighted with lead and his body scarcely less heavy. Con welcomed him in the doorway, offering his hand which Bill ignored.

"I asked you up here," Con said with an airy grace he did not feel, "because I imagined you had something to say to me privately."

WAYS TO GAIN GOD RULES MEN. SALVATION IS NOT LUCK, SAYS SERMON TOPIC S. A. ARMY MAN

Salvation will come by holding, even to the point of the supreme sacrifice, the way of the life of Jesus; by achieving the quality of life that following His program will release; by accepting the challenge of the principles that He espoused.

This message was brought to the congregation of the First Methodist church in a sermon by Dr. George A. Warner, minister of the church, yesterday morning.

Text used by Dr. Warner in the sermon was taken from First Corinthians 2:2, "I am determined to know nothing among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified."

The sermon, in part, follows:

"St. Paul, centered his ministry in this thought," he said, referring to the text, "He, however, did not hold that God was angry with mankind. He knew that man's immaturity, his perversities, even his viciousness caused the Heavenly Father suffering, but never anger. His interpretation was that 'God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself.' God never needed to be reconciled to man, but man to God."

"Three thoughts are immediately apparent."

"First, the crucifixion was kindled in a deep seated conviction. An adage has come down through the years, 'The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church.' Wherever worth is to be found it grows upon the plant conviction."

"Jesus could easily have missed being Saviour of the world by turning aside in the testing experience of Gethsemane. But Jesus thought that the way of life He proclaimed was worth dying for."

"Second, the crucifixion prophesied a quality of life."

"Eternal life as taught by Jesus was not synonymous with the idea of immortality of the Greeks. They felt that life would be forever prolonged. The content that they read into the type—'life beyond death' was not fascinating. It was a rather poor, miserable existence."

"The idea of Jesus was that His followers attained into a special quality of life here and now that might be abundant. Death made no real change. It gave the possibility for unimpeded development until all of the life's potentialities were realized."

"Third, the crucifixion is a challenge. Jesus had no misgivings about the supreme excellence of His program for the individual and for society."

JESUS' GREAT COMMISSION OUTLINED AT UNION CHURCH SERVICE HERE LAST NIGHT

Those who would take part in Christ's great commission must be ready either for service or sacrifice, the Rev. Samuel Edgar, minister of the Reformed Presbyterian church told a large audience at the union church services last night in the First Christian church. He discussed the subject, "The Message of Jesus for the Church and the World." The sermon, in part, follows:

"Let us keep in mind some things that concern the setting of the text. Note the authority of Him who gives the command 'Go ye'. It was given by Christ Himself. He claims all authority, who but He dare make such a claim? Matthew's gospel sets Him forth as King. Mark sets Him forth as the Servant. Luke presents Him as the Son of Man and John declares He is the divine Son of God. So behind His claim for authority are these things that assure us of His power and glory."

"Then as to those whom He sends forth. They were chosen men, sifted men, transformed men, frail men. Then as to the duty of man. People nowadays appear to have increased faith in the doctrine of chance. With many what is called business is a huge speculation. The world of amusement is thoroughly rotten because of the evil which permeates it."

"Is it any wonder that the keen sighted men and women among us declare that the growing public trust in chance is undermining our national character. And the same spirit that undermines the national character is also undermining the spiritual character of men and women, boys and girls. Certain is it that the gambling spirit with life is enticing thousands to hell."

"Life is not a lottery. Life is not made up of 'Bad Luck', or 'Good Luck'. It is wisely ordained by God, and ruled for moral and spiritual welfare of the human race. Man is a morally responsible being, and is accountable for the good or evil he does. His duty is to be saved. It is the unchecked operation of the law of sin which brings the sinner to his doom, and the accepted laws of salvation which bring the saved to Heaven."

"To believe in luck ruins one, a chance in this world and in the world to come. Everywhere men despise honest toil, because they imagine they may some day by a happy turn of fortune become rich."

"But they live in a fool's paradise. What is gold without the blessings of God? What would you think of a farmer who went out into his field to play not for any purpose to sow grain but in the hope of turning up a buried pot of gold? A builder, who sits on the site of a house waiting for a fairy to wave a wand and erect a palace. The gambler scanning the sporting papers for the winners, to the neglect of his employment and his character. Nothing—not even the misfortunes of life—are attributable to chance. Better to be a Lazarus, to pass from the street into heaven, than be a Dives to pass from a banquet hall into hell. Blessed are ye poor, for yours is the Kingdom of God."

"The peril of gambling with the fortunes of your own soul. Those who believe in the doctrine of chance, as applied to this world are very likely to trust their luck for the next. Without a doubt this is one of the main reasons why so little is being accomplished today because the professing Christians have allowed themselves to believe that they can partake of the things of this world and still by chance get to heaven. But they will be like the foolish virgins whose lamps had gone out, and the door will be shut against them, and with no chance of its ever being opened."

"They who sow poppies do not reap roses; nor do those who sow good wheat harvest tares. Be not deceived, God is not mocked. Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. Men may call evil good, and good evil; But there are no moral confusions with God, who in the judgment, will render every man according to his works. As certain as sin is punished, salvation is sure."

"The way of the cross leads home, it's a narrow way; we read in the word of God, 'An highway shall be there and a way, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein'—Isaiah, 35-8."

"Let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith"—Hebrews 12, 1-2."

"As certain as sin is punished, salvation is sure. They who build on the rock will not suffer the fate of those who build their house on the sand. It is not an open question as to whether there is mercy for you, for 'Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out.'"

Jesus Christ as his Saviour he wants then to tell somebody else about his wonderful find. Missionary annals abound with that which has drawn men and women into the uttermost parts of the earth for the sake of the lost and to be obedient to this last command of their Redeemer. No money could purchase the devotion and the loyalty and sacrifices that have been rendered in every land that the love of Jesus might be made known and the lost won to the Saviour. Men and women have left homes and luxuries and places of wealth compelled by the one great purpose to seek and to save that which is lost."

"Third—The church must be ready to serve and sacrifice in carrying out this commission."

"Kagawa, that great Japanese evangelist to the slums of his native land, was told that he could not live very long because of the dread disease that was already at work, then he replied, 'I must do all the more if I have only a short time to live'. And what a service for his own land. The Diet of Japan voted him twenty million yen to abolish the slums of the six principal cities, but he cries 'money is not enough—only boundless love and sacrifice'."

"Mrs. Leslie, a missionary of the Congregational church in Turkey at the beginning of the war, at the grave of her dead husband in Urfa consecrated her life to her Lord who had called her. Handing over her new-born child to the care of an old Armenian mammy, she rolled up her sleeves and turned to the serving of the thousand Armenian refugees that were lying around her there. Women young and old who had been driven from their homes without food or clothing or shelter; driven out by the Turks and left to die. To serve and sacrifice for them, she was glad her Lord had counted her worthy."

"On the Waldensian coat of arms are these figures engraved—an ox, an altar and a plough. Underneath are written these words: 'Ready for either'. The ox ready for service or for sacrifice. This is the attitude of those upon whom Jesus lays the 'Great Commission', and they enter into that glorious ministry glad to be counted worthy to suffer for His sake."

Christian Science

Paul's words to the Corinthians, "To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him," were the Golden Text in the lesson-sermon yesterday at the Santa Ana First Church of Christ, Scientist. The subject of the lesson-sermon was, "Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?"

One of the citations in the lesson-sermon included the verses from Genesis: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth . . . And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were of the sixth day. Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them."

A passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated, "The scientific fact that man and the universe are evolved from spirit, and so are spiritual, is as fixed in divine science as is the proof that mortals gain the sense of health only as they lose the sense of sin and disease."

WAYS TO LOWER COSTS OF WATER PUMPING TO BE SHOWN ORANGE COUNTY RANCHERS

Two demonstrations to show how lower pumping and water costs may be secured by many pump operators in Orange County will be held tomorrow and Wednesday, according to announcement from the Extension Service office.

Two pumping plants will be demonstrated by efficiency engineers at the demonstration meeting, one having been previously overhauled, and the other without changes made. Besides testing the pump and power units at the plant, methods will be shown to measure the water produced by the plant.

A recent survey made by the Extension Service of the Farm Bureau and power engineers indicates that many of the older installations can be made more efficient by adjustments and changes in the resultant cost of operation, according to Harold Wahl-

LYON GIVEN AGENCY FOR CABIN CRUISER

Southern California sales of Hunter pleasure boats, featuring the Hunter 24-foot cabin cruiser, will center at Newport harbor, according to announcement today that Roy Lyon of Balboa Island had been appointed Southern California distributor for this well known line of pleasure boats.

Lyon will maintain headquarters at the Balboa yacht basin. He said the Hunter cabin cruisers are made on the Ford production plan at the Hunter boat plant in Alameda, and he anticipates many sales inasmuch as quantity production enables them to offer very attractive prices and time payments. There are two berths in the special cruiser model which can accommodate a party of four.

The Hunters have been making quality boats for the past 47 years, said Lyon. "Everett Hunter started the business at Chicago in 1887, and his first boat is still operating. One of his sons now operates a large factory at McHenry, Ill., turning out 700 to 800 boats per year, and another son, Arthur D. Hunter, operates the Hunter plant at Alameda.

"By modern production methods, standardized parts, low unit overhead cost, etc., the price of these boats has been reduced sufficiently to place them within the reach of many thousands of water lovers. The sales plan provides for a small down payment and payments for 12 to 18 months."

Mining Machinery Deal Basis Of Damage Action

Tom Teighland today had filed suit in superior court against L. S. Findley, seeking a total of $1701.50 in damages allegedly suffered through failure of Findley to make a mining mill operate and failure to construct the mill in the time specified in the contract.

The suit is based on a contract entered into on November 22, 1933 whereby Findley was supposed to construct an ore mill of a 100 daily tonnage capacity. He failed to do this, the complaint alleged.

When finally the mill was completed on January 4, 1934, the complaint said, it would not operate and would not separate the milled ore from the gangue and allowed both to go over into the tailing pile. After January 20, 1934, the defendant turned over the mill and equipment to the plaintiff, it was stated.

The plaintiff is seeking $1200 damages for delay and waste and $501.50 for board, use of a truck, and advance of $310 in cash which is included in the $501.50, and for lumber.

The mining claim is located in the Clark Mountain district, San Bernardino county. A Thomas Teighland is listed in the directory at Huntington Beach, and a Lewis S. Findley is listed in Anaheim.

URGES WALNUT GROWERS ACT AGAINST PEST

Roy E. Black, deputy agricultural commissioner, today called the attention of walnut growers to the increasing manifestation of aphid in walnut orchards of Orange county and to the need for control measures against this troublesome pest where it occurs in sufficient numbers.

This past spring, he said, at the time treatment was given for codling moth worm control, aphid was hard to find in most orchards. However, inspections of walnut properties the last few days have shown infestations building up to such a degree that the heavy infestations may be expected to develop in many orchards.

"It must be remembered," he pointed out, "from past experience that heavy infestations of aphid can reduce the grade and value of the present crop and also weaken the trees for future production."

"The control of walnut aphid is somewhat different from that of other pests in that control measures have to be applied when it appears, and in many cases quick action is necessary before injury occurs."

"The standard control material for years for walnut aphid alone has been nicotine sulphate 40 per cent in dust form. Ducting with a three per cent dust before infestation becomes heavy will, in most cases, effectively and economically control this pest."

"In conclusion, we wish to urge all walnut growers to watch closely the development of walnut aphid in their orchards and to apply treatment before a heavy infestation occurs."

STRESS NEED OF SCRIPTURE STUDY AT OPENING MEET OF DISTRICT LUTHERAN SESSION

Delivering the inspirational sermon at the opening service of the fourth annual convention of the Southern California District of the Missouri Synod Lutheran church, in Zion Lutheran church at Anaheim last night, Vice President Frederick Randt of St. Paul, Minnesota, stressed as "the paramount duty of the Church to search the Scriptures." His text was John 5:39, "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me."

The venerable speaker referred briefly to the 400th anniversary of Luther's translation of the entire Bible into the German language and the influence of his monumental work upon other subsequent translations of the Scripture, particularly the English translation.

"Modernism," he said, "is not modern at all, but ancient lies, dressed in new garb; it has left the safe moorings of God's inspired and infallible word to sail out on the treacherous wastes of man's wisdom."

"The church needs pastors and teachers and members who are well versed in the Bible, who are mission minded, who will carry the flaming torch of a divine salvation into the world of spiritual darkness and death."

The choir of Zion Lutheran church, host to the convention, sang the anthem "Lift up Your Heads, O Ye Portals," with Mrs. Olive Kempin at the organ.

The following committee chairman were appointed by the Rev. G. Smukal of Los Angeles, president of the district:

Chaplain, Rev. O. Henkel of Fontana; organist, Teacher E. E. Wunderlich of St. John's church, Orange; registration, Rev. H. Fisher, Belvedere Gardens; program, Rev. Newspaper Extra Tells Autumn Wedding Date To Party Guests

Quite in keeping with the vocation of one and the interests and avocation of the other, was the manner in which Miss Velma Bishop and John Dunlap chose to acquaint friends with their betrothal and plans for an autumn wedding, by issuing a newspaper "extra" as a feature of the tea-musical presented Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Holmes Bishop and her daughter, Miss Velma Bishop, in their Fairhaven avenue home.

Each guest, upon arrival, received one of the clever little "extras" from the hands of Master Dick Newcom, son of the R. B. Newcoms. This miniature newspaper bore the widely known logo-type of the Santa Ana Daily Register upon which Mr. Dunlap is employed as police and city hall reporter. It carried the banner, "Velma and John To Wed," and bore in addition to pictures of the two well-known young people, the announcement of the wedding plans, an account of their school, Junior college and U. C. activities and the manner in which their romance started on Santa Ana Junior college campus when both were members of L'Hotel de Rambouillet, the French society.

Miss Bishop is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Holmes Bishop, Fairhaven avenue, and Mr. Dunlap is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dunlap, 2145 North Main street. Mrs. Dunlap was present Saturday afternoon to assist Mrs. Bishop and Miss Bishop in receiving their guests. Each of the three were pretty afternoon frocks of some one of the varying tones of blue, with corsage bouquets sent by Mr. Dunlap. He had chosen deep rosebuds for his fiancée, and light-colored roses for his mother and Mrs. Bishop.

Increasing the charm of the lovely big home, were the gladioluses and dahlias used in colorful profusion. In the dining room where Mrs. Robert Northcross and Mrs. John A. Tessmann presided at the beautifully arranged table, all the colors of a summer garden seemed gathered. Featherly asparagus and smaller blossoms were massed in the center of the table from which coffee and tea were dispensed with the ice, cake and other dainties of the tea menu. Serving was accomplished by the Misses Mary Nalle, Ruth Dunlap, Evelyn Fairley and Minnie Mounier, while assisting through the rooms were Mrs. Charles Nalle and Miss Elsie Meyer, the latter from Los Angeles and a houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Bishop.

Several close friends assisted in the delightful program given at intervals during the afternoon. Mrs. Charles C. Brisco, in her various groups, sang such appropriate songs as "Why I Love You," "Sweetheart," "You," "Last Night the Nightingale Woke Me," and "Comin' Through the Rye." Miss Adelaide Proctor was her accompanist. Mrs. M. E. Geeting gave several entertaining readings, including some of the famous "Cutting Family" stories and an amusing English sketch relating the romance of "Young Travers and Miss Peacock."

Miss Thelma Glasscock added both vocal and instrumental numbers, and for her songs was accompanied by Miss Esther Vogt. The solos included "April, My April," and Miss Glasscock's own arrangement of "My Love Is Like a Red Red Rose." For her piano solo she chose Chopin's "Revolutionary Etude."

Among guests invited to share this pleasant afternoon and hear the romantic secret which it revealed, were Mrs. George Effinger and Miss Inez Effinger, South Pasadena; Miss Ethel Meyer, Los Angeles; Miss Adelaide Proctor, Mrs. S. D. Andrews, Miss Lucille Reich, Mrs. Roy Bishop, Mrs. B. J. Brubaker, Orange; Mrs. Lewis Moulton, El Toro; Mrs. J. B. Morrey, Culver City; Mrs. Alfred Knight, Anaheim; Miss Minnie Mounier, Newport Beach; Mesdames Robert Northcross, John A. Tessmann, J. Parley Smith, Mac O. Robbins, R. H. McArthur, Carl Strock, R. B. Newcom, Frank Henderson, Terry Stephenson, Nettie Y. Shuey, J. E. Gowen, Charles Nalle, Earl Morrow, M. E. Geeting, Baxter Geeting (Corinne Nelson), O. H. Barr, Charles C. Brisco, O. H. Dinner Party Honors Summer Travelers

Miss Mildred McCullough and Miss Bernice L. Bronson, who are leaving soon for the east, were complimented charmingly the past week at a dinner party given by Mrs. McCullough's uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Nida, in their Garden Grove home.

It was an all-fresco affair, and diners were interested in the setting afforded by the lovely garden of the home.

Those sharing the hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Nida included Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McCullough, the Misses Mildred and Eleanor McCullough, C. A. McCullough and Master Earl McCullough. Mother and Daughter Sailing Wednesday For Pago Pago

An interesting experience awaits Mrs. E. W. Spruance, 2215 North Ross street, and her young daughter, Eloise, who are sailing Wednesday from Los Angeles harbor on the S. S. Mariposa to spend the summer months in Pago Pago, guests of Lieutenant Commander H. C. Lowry and Mrs. Lowry, now stationed in Samoa.

When Lieut.-Com. Lowry sailed last November to take his command, he and Mrs. Lowry were guests here in the Spruance home. At that time they extended invitation to Mrs. Spruance and Miss Eloise to come to them for this summer which will be the finest season in Samoa, as in that south equatorial clime, the seasons are reversed so that northern summer months correspond to their so-called winter season. Mrs. Spruance and her daughter will remain with them until late September and expect to include a trip to Auckland in their pleasures.

The voyage on the Mariposa will consume eleven days, with one day to be spent in Honolulu where Mrs. Spruance will renew old associations and friendships. Miss Eloise is anticipating the voyage with special pleasure, as she plans to spend the greater part of the trip in the big swimming pool of the steamer.

Arranged as a surprise compliment to Miss Ruth Dohmer, retiring queen of Santa Ana Bethel Job's Daughters was a party given last week when two of her cabinet members, Miss Frankie McDonald, senior princess, and Miss Audrey McDonald, junior princess, joined as hostesses.

Combination tally and place cards indicated places where guests were to start the bunco contest and where they would return for the refreshment hour. Decorations then were removed from the tables so that the game of the evening could be started.

Prize winners at bunco were Mrs. Marjorie Shepherd and Miss Marion Doty, scoring high and low. Special gifts were presented to Miss Dohmer, to Mrs. William Dean, guardian and to Frank Sawyer, associate guardian.

The hostesses spread the tables with linens and replaced the original bouquets for the serving of refreshments.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Breakfast
1-2 cantaloupe, or
2-3 cup raspberries or similar berry with
1-2 tsp. sugar, no cream
1-egg puffy omelette
1 slice toasted bread, dry
1 cup coffee with
1-4 cup hot skim milk, no sugar.
Calory total, 365.

This calory total is made with cantaloupe as the chosen fruit. If berries replace the melon, add 50 calories to the total.

Puffy Omelette
Separate yolk and white of 1 egg, and beat the yolk with 2 tbsp. soft milk, a pinch of salt, and pepper. Combine the two, and slide into a hot skillet in which is quickly melted a scant tsp. of butter. Brown the bottom, then transfer the skillet to a hot oven to finish baking the top of the omelette. Fold over, dust with salt and pepper and serve at once.

The Milk and Orange Juice Diet
Numerous inquiries have come in, asking for particulars about this diet. Replies have been held up until I was quite sure about its results, with myself as a clinic-of-one. My interest in the diet was not as a reducing agent, although it may be used as such. Long and painful attacks of neuritis induced me to try it. On the first morning, getting out of bed was somewhat of a problem, due to the crippling pain, but the day started with 1 cup of coffee with 1-4 cup hot skim milk, and 1-8 ounce glass of orange juice (7:30 a. m.). At 9 a. m. I had 3 ozs. of whole milk. At 10:30, 6 ozs. of orange juice. At noon, 1 glass of milk and 1 cup of coffee with milk (no sugar). At 2:30, a full glass of orange juice. At 5:30, a glass of milk and a cup of coffee. At bedtime a full glass of orange juice, and so to sleep.

My feelings as low as the proverbial snake, due to the removal of stimulating starch foods. But, the extreme pain was somewhat lessened, and that was something gained. (Continued tomorrow.)

TODAY'S RECIPE
Buttermilk Mayonnaise Dressing
Part I.
2 cups boiling water
6 tbsps. cornstarch mixed with 1-2 cup cold water

Part II.
4 egg yolks, whipped
1 tsp. prepared mustard
1 tsp. of salt and same of sugar
2 tbsps. paprika
3 cups salad oil
1-2 cup vinegar
—Ann Meredith formula.

Put ingredients of part 2, except the vinegar and buttermilk, into a mixing bowl and beat until smoothly mixed, adding the oil in small amounts as the beating proceeds. Always have this part mixed and ready. Stir the mixed corn starch into the rapidly boiling water and cook until it thickens and clears—a matter of half a minute—but the mixture must be stirred every second or it will jump. Turn this hot thick starch into the oil and beat hard until it merges, then begins to separate. At this stage, start adding the vinegar, a spoonful at a time, beating constantly. The beating and the acid vinegar will soon whiten and smooth the dressing. Let it cool, then beat in thick buttermilk (dred cold) in small amounts. The cold dressing will take a pint and possibly more of cold buttermilk. The point to stop is when the dressing is just thick enough to drip off the spoon tip like very thick cream. Chill but do not freeze. It separates when frozen.

This salad dressing has a calory value of 45. Full oil mayonnaise is valued at 125 calories per tbsp. It is less expensive to make and a boon to the woman who loves salads even though she is overweight.

Tuesday: Chocolate Peppermint Cake.

CHURCH ADDS NEW MEMBERS AS YEAR ENDS

ORANGE, June 25.—Reflecting the substantial and consistent membership growth which has featured the past year, the First Methodist Episcopal church received nine new members into the church yesterday, which was the closing Sunday of the conference year. Sixty-five new members have affiliated with this congregation during the past 12 months.

Dr. James Edwin Dunning, the minister, preached yesterday morning on the question, "Did Anyone Ever Mistake You for Jesus?" "What kind of impression do we give folks?" asks Dr. Dunning. "Do they ever mistake us for Jesus?" "Paul declared that it was his prayer for the Ephesians that they should 'know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye may be filled unto all the fullness of God.' Again, speaking of Jesus, he wrote, 'It pleased the Father that in Him the whole fulness should dwell.' All that God is in Christ; the organic whole of divine attributes and powers that constitute deity dwells permanently in Him.

"Is it not evident that a process of growth for Christians is to be expected? Can we any more hope to maintain a healthy spiritual life without growth than a healthy physical life without growth? Have not Christians been too content to begin the Christian life without expecting anything special to happen, or that the Christian life should make any significant difference?"

"When Jesus said 'Be ye perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect,' did he not clearly imply that there is a richness and abundance of life that his disciples may enjoy far beyond anything they have ever experienced or dreamed of? And does not his teaching and examples show that this abundant life must be utterly unselfish, eagerly seeking to interpret God's love in terms of human interest? How can we share the fulness of God and not have the love of God for men, his passionate desire for justice, mercy and righteousness?"

Exchange Houses To Ship 224 Cars Fruit This Week

ORANGE, June 25.—Valencia orange shipments this week will be reduced from the high quotas of recent weeks, according to reports figures made public here today. Several reasons are given as responsible for the reduction, including the national holiday next week with its reduced fruit sales, and recent lowering of prices on the Eastern market which made it advisable to curtail shipments to some extent.

Total prorate shipments for this week for Southern California are given as 1200 cars, as compared with 1490 cars last week. Houses affiliated with the Orange County Fruit exchange will ship 224 cars of fruit this week, a reduction of 72 cars from last week's figure of 307 cars.

'JESUS' WAY OF LIFE' IS TOPIC OF DR. MCAULAY

ORANGE, June 25.—"If we practice the teachings of Jesus, we will find many of our social problems solved," the Rev. Robert Burns McAulay declared Sunday morning at the Orange Presbyterian church, when he gave another of his series of sermons on great beliefs.

The topic of Sunday's sermon was "I Believe in Jesus' Way of Life For Me," with the Scripture lesson, Matthew 25:31-45. "Anyone who has done anything worth while of a social nature has had his life first touched by the Spirit of God," said Rev. McAulay. "Prison reform, homes for the insane, help for underprivileged children were all movements started by people who were following the teachings of Jesus."

Continuing, he said in part: "Many do not believe in the way of Christ for themselves; some because they say He lived so long ago. He has no knowledge of life today. Others say it is impractical, if it were an ideal world it would be all right, but His teachings are not practical in every day life. Yet He says, 'love your enemies, and are people to have enemies in an ideal world?' He talked of a world such as we have today.

"A young person may say 'It cannot apply to me unless all apply it. But the beginning of the problems of Christianity begin with the personal life of each of us. If our friends have doubts, perhaps it is because they have been led astray by our lives. Our Christian life is a matter of each one's attitude and personal experience. To be a Christian in 1934 is not a matter of rules, but our own attitude. Christ says He will give us a new heart.

"For 40 years Jeremiah stood before the people and urged economic reform, yet his secret power was the personal relationship he had with God. 'The value of personal religion is shown when we lose our temper, become jealous, show an evil spirit. Other people are repelled by these things, so we see how a Christian spirit can attract.

"Modern missionary work started about 100 years ago. They had to translate the Bible into the various languages. This called for schools to teach them to read, then disease must be fought and lives saved. These lives must be maintained, so the missionary became interested in the economic and social lives of the people, that they who knew Him not may have a wholesome happy life in Christ. Because Jesus inspires us to live a life of service, I believe in Him for me."

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KENN

The Knave of Hearts was filled with fright as little Copy Tiny-mite cried, "Now I have you down, young man. Don't try to get away. One move and you will get a whack. We told the queen we'd bring you back. Till you agree to go with us, right on the ground you'll stay."

"Oh, please have mercy," wailed the knave. "I know the queen will want and rave. I'm sorry that I stole her tarts. I'll do it never more."

"That's what you say," snapped scouty. "Gee, you're just as tricky as can be. This time you should be punished, 'cause you've stolen tarts before."

And then they pulled him to his feet. "Twill pay you, lad, to be discreet," said Copy. "Walk along now. To the castle we are bound."

"When you have learned what's wrong, and right, you'll not get in to such a plight." The knave, by now, was quite subdued. He didn't make a sound.

They shortly reached the castle door and from the entrance came a roar. "Ah, ha, you have the culprit." 'Twas the burly king who spoke.

"Just bring him in and you will see me put him right across my knee. For once and all I'll teach the knave that stealing is no joke."

"Oh, please be lenient with the lad. He's sorry and he feels real bad," said Doty, as the frightened knave was led off by the king.

"All right," replied the royal man. "I'll be as lenient as I can, but he'll be spanked at least until he howls like everything."

The spanking didn't last so long, but taught the knave that he'd done wrong. The Tinies, in the meantime, to the palace kitchen ran.

The queen gave them fine tarts galore and said, "Eat those. Then have some more." Soon Goidy said, "Oh, goodness me, I've eaten all I can."

If you think horseshoe pitching is something to high-hat, read this piece by the head man and you may change your tune

By Theodore Allen

World's Champion Horseshoe Pitcher.

YOU may not have suspected it, but a great many of your swanky neighbors have been slipping off at odd moments during the past two years and joining the boys for a little harmless horseshoe pitching. At least 1,000,000 Americans are in organized clubs, and probably 2,000,000 more "just pitch," without the formality of organization. The membership of both groups is increasing at an amazing rate.

In fact, the time has about arrived when your tilt-nosed neighbor, who used to affect golf knickers and polo shirts, can openly admit and boast of the fact that he now pitches horseshoes. It is a new sport, originated only about 5000 years ago; shame on us for not having popularized it sooner.

At this writing I am the head man of horseshoe pitching. I'm the world's champ. My pride in that fact is, I think, justifiable, because I have worked hard for my position and I believe that I can relinquish it with good grace when a better pitcher comes along. Several fellows are crowding me already.

And we are not "hicks." The yokels who formerly pitched shoes (off real equine feet) at a buggy axle stuck in the ground, out back of Sweeney's Livery Stable, are no longer representative of the growing new army of horseshoe sportsmen.

Many of us who are in the "upper brackets" of horseshoe pitching never set foot on a farm, never shod a horse, would not recognize a single tree if we saw one. I am an exception to that rule; I was born on a Kansas farm and grew up on one in California, but this fact is just a coincidence.

Horseshoe pitching is no longer a sport for the senile hayseeds, to be regarded with a sort of contemptuous grin. Strictly speaking, it never was.

IF you doubt that, come on out to the courts with me sometime.

In 20 minutes I will make a fool of you. I will have your arm aching, your back sore, your head swimming, your inferiority complex doing hysterical somersaults.

Not as violent as tennis or as spectacular as football, my sport nevertheless approaches perfection. Any competent physician or physical trainer will inform you that the ideal exercise is one that combines long, leisurely outdoor activity with a spirit of competitive play. That's horseshoes.

I have thrown 56 shoes, each weighing about what a brickbat weighs, the 40 feet from stake to stake and made a ringer every time. A ringer is a perfect throw—the shoe cleanly looped over or around the stake.

In 100 throws I have a score of 92 ringers. One of my good friends, and the one who seems most likely to knock me off my championship pedestal, has a record of 94 ringers in 100 throws. He is Jimmy Lecky, of Phoenix, Arizona, a boy of 21.

Incidentally, Jim has a crippled foot which forces him to reverse all the normally correct positions of throwing, to ignore the theoretically perfect stance. A right-handed pitcher, he miraculously throws with his right foot forward, instead of his left. Try it just once and you'll know what I mean.

MY world's championship was won last summer at the international tournament in Chicago, where I was fortunate enough to take the crown away from Blair Numamaker of Cleveland, Ohio, a pitcher whose shoe goes at the stake like a bullet, and whose mouth meanwhile does the most astonishing contortions you could imagine!

I have laughed many times at Blair's mouth. But when I have to pitch against him he is not funny. He is a menace.

It has taken me 12 years to win the highest prize.

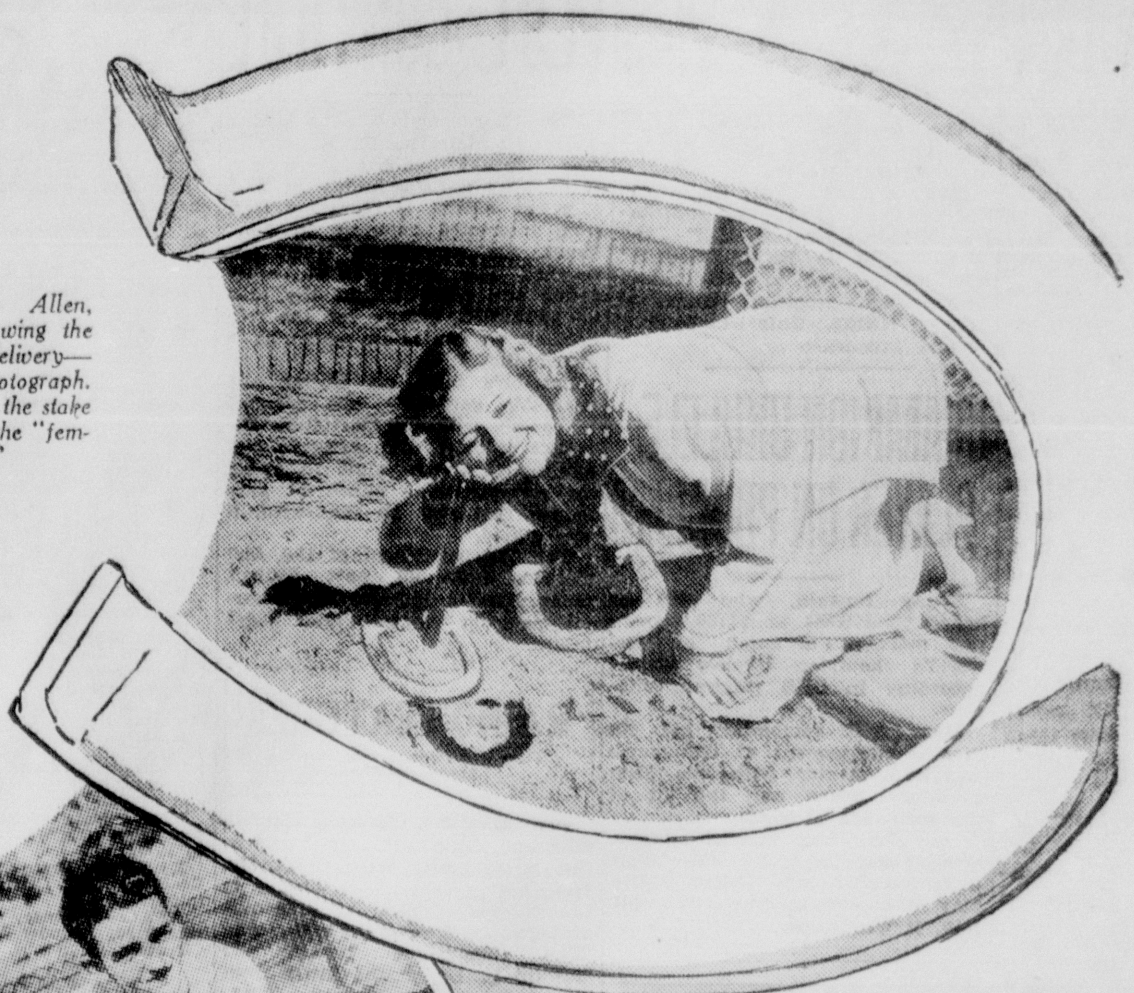

I started pitching when I was 13. In school, the teachers used to tell us that "Rome was not built in a day," that success came only after years of concentration and purposeful endeavor, but that there is always plenty of room at the top of the ladder. (You know what I mean, you remember all that old copybook stuff as well as I.)

Well, the copybooks and the teachers were wrong on just one point—there is not always plenty of room at the top!

When I got within sight, so to speak, of the horseshoe championship, the competition was still keen. A lot of other fellows evidently had used the same copybooks or had the same teachers, back in the pre-war days. But no matter; my point is that skill in horseshoe pitching, just as in boxing or banking or sailing or singing, comes only with patience and pains.

At left, Theodore Allen, horseshoe champ, showing the correct grip and delivery—sketched from a photograph. Right, he rings the stake from 40 feet despite the "feminine hazard."

This new-old sport of horseshoes just re-verifies for the many-millionth time the fact that we cannot have something for nothing. Trite as that is, I have profited from the tremendous moral lesson in it. The good old world can stand a few trite copybook maxims now, I'm thinking.

HORSESHOE pitching deserves the high-ranking place it seems about to claim in the category of American sports. The main reason is that it is much better as a game of participation than as a game of exhibition.

Baseball or football is fine for the players. But the proportion is very bad: 18 or 22 players to 18 or 22 thousand spectators. The latter get only synthetic exercise and vicarious thrill.

But horseshoe pitching is just mildly sensational to watch. The great and good fun in it lies in doing it yourself, and any man, woman or child of 10 or over, who is not actually in a wheel chair, can go onto the court and start right into the game!

One of the best horseshoe pitchers I know is clubfooted. I know at least two fellows who pitch but who have only one arm. And many, many a good fellow suffering or convalescing from some mild form of tuberculosis, asthma or other malady can and does pitch horseshoes, to his infinite betterment, especially in freshness and peace of mind.

Middle-aged mammas whose exercise is limited to shuffling the cards would save millions in doctor bills if social custom did not preclude their active participation in horseshoes. Even pot-bellied men can be rejuvenated at the horseshoe pits. (And I have no sign-the-coupon course to sell!)

I MENTIONED that horseshoe pitching had only limited exhibition value, but I do not mean that spectators cannot enjoy horseshoes.

Just a few days ago my friend Jimmie Lecky challenged me to an official set-to. That kid can drop two heavy horseshoes around the stake from 40 feet as nonchalantly as most boys his age light their cigarettes. To lick him I had to give my very best; I warn you ambitious pitchers everywhere—it won't do any good to drop poison in my coffee unless you put some in Lecky's too!

In that match we tied the world's record of (Copyright, 1934, by EveryWeek Magazine.)

11 straight "four deads," that is, pitches in which both contestants made two ringers. (In which event nobody scores.) Eleven straight double ringers, ladies and gentlemen, is plenty excellent, and I don't care who you are. Whenever you can beat it, let me know.

That showing made a fine exhibition for the grandstand, and I have never heard more enthusiastic applause than those fans gave us. Therefore, after the official games were over, Lecky and I volunteered to show them some of the "fancy" stunts we like to do just for our own fun.

I can (and did) put my $50 watch six inches in front of the iron stake, stand on the platform 40 feet away and toss four straight ringers, leaving my watch unharmed. Sometimes I ask a friendly spectator to lend me his watch, but that takes faith!

WE amazed the crowds, however, with another spectacular trick, really very simple if you can pitch shoes.

A pretty girl friend of ours (certainly we have 'em!) placed her dainty chin right on top of the stake, while Jimmy and I stood in the opposite pitching board, 40 feet away, and threw ringer after ringer under her nose. The crowd was agitated, but even the young lady's make-up was quite unharmed.

Either Lecky or I can make a loop of our arms about four feet in front of the stake, while the other tosses a half dozen or so ringers right through. For added interest we sometimes have the pitcher blindfolded.

I can stick four or five matches, heads up, in the ground by the stake, back off 40 feet and light them with the first shoe, which falls also as a ringer; then, with the second ringer, put the blaze out. This is extremely hard to do, I assure you. Sometimes Lecky or I combine this match stunt with the watch, for an added hazard.

Either of us can sit on the ground in front of the stake a few feet, wearing a dunce hat or a common paper sack which absolutely hides the stake from the pitcher's view, while the other throws a shoe that becomes a ringer and also knocks off the hat. Or, either of us can throw over a blanket which hides the stake completely, including the pit around it, and still make ringers.

These tricks of horseshoe pitching are good fun, but they have little to do with the game itself. They come only after years of intensive practice, so that handling a horseshoe is as simple or simpler than handling your knife and fork.

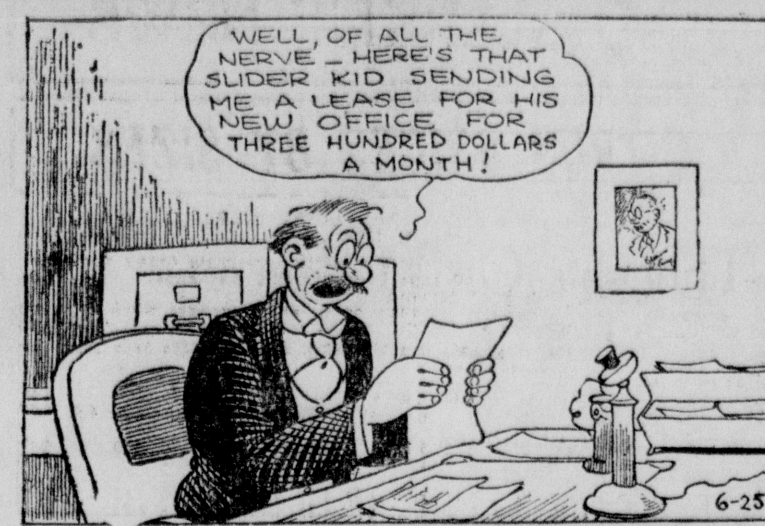

Of course, I have kept no record, but as nearly as I can estimate it I have thrown a total of 2,500,000 shoes during the 12 years since I first started pitching. You try anything 2,500,000 times and you are likely to become expert at it.

FOR the last few years, during which I was consciously aiming at the championship, I have taken especial pains to keep myself in perfect physical trim, have done extensive training in addition to the daily practice I do on the courts.

Like prize fighters, I do "road work." I do gymnastics, shadow boxing, bending exercises, leg strengtheners, everything I can to keep myself graceful and supple. I don't do it to show off before the girls, as some of the old cronies of the horseshoe courts accuse me, but to maintain my high percentage of perfect throws. That 20 minutes on the courts to which I invited you would also prove that leg muscles are about as important in horseshoe pitching as arm muscles and patience.

A baseball pitcher, for that matter, throws with his legs almost as much as he does with his arms. His fine control depends on grace and liteness and steady nerves—mortal enemies of dissipation and constipation. The same is true of me, or of any other skilled horseshoe pitcher.

TRADE

THE BOGEY MAN AND THE REAL VILLAIN

Dr. David Prescott Barrows, former president of the University of California, addressed some 500 bankers in Los Angeles Saturday.

Dr. Barrows is a conservative and would be called a "sane thinker," and in common with many of that group, he criticizes the so-called "Brain Trust." But in the midst of that talk to the bankers he declared this: "Communism does not offer a satisfactory theory of society. I do not believe in class warfare as a theory. Communism has failed, and consequently ITS MENACE TO US HAS LARGELY GONE."

There is no question but that Dr. Barrows, in referring here to "Communism," was thinking in terms of Communism as illustrated in the Russian plan, and not a program of the substitution for our democracy a dictatorship of the proletariat or worker.

Dr. Barrows would have to declare this in regard to Communism, if he were going to have the approval of his own self-respect intellectually. The truth is that there never has been the remotest danger of that kind of government or social program in this country.

It was superimposed upon Russia because of the character of Russia's government, and her society during the many decades of Czarist rule. The people of Russia were accustomed to the rule of a dictator. They were not trained and have never yet been prepared for a democracy.

Kerensky bridged the gap between the dictatorship of the Czar, which was cruel and inhuman and the dictatorship of Stalin, which was equally destructive of democracy, and which had to at the same time destroy religion, for real religion breeds democratic expression.

It would be utterly impossible to saddle such a regime upon the United States. The ones who have advocated it are small and insignificant in numbers, and fantastic in their ideas.

Dr. Barrows knows these facts and he was talking to a group which is equally aware of them. We will still hear about them. There will be an attempt to produce this scare of the "bogy man," but it is being produced always for a purpose.

Some big financiers are shaking this "bogy man" before the eyes of the public with their left hand, while their right hand is in the pockets of the public, filching their money from them by one process and another.

Candidates for public office, who are hand in glove with the criminals who prey upon society, while they cannot declare to the public that they are going to fight the law violators, do declare that they will protect the public from the "ravages" of the "Red menace."

The public officials and candidates who are in league with forces that ought to be driven out of society, are wonderfully patriotic and enthusiastic in their declaration of how they are going to protect society from "menaces" and "evils" and "dangers" which are simply figments of the imagination.

We have a picture in our mind of this kind of man, like Don Quixote, fighting the "windmills of the Red Menace," with the criminal class, through bootlegging and gambling and prostitution, robbing the people and breaking down the standards of society.

We one time saw a cartoon, in which the so-called "liberty-loving man" was holding before the citizen a glass of liquor marked "liberty," and was fascinating the man with that kind of "liberty." With the eyes of the man fastened upon the beer glass, the performer had the hand which was not holding the glass in the other man's pocket.

Beware of all people who will draw "the red herring across the trail!"

Look out for those who are trying to get you off on a false scent!

We are menaced by a number of things in our country, but not seriously by any means, with the man with disheveled hair, with a red bandana around his neck, with a cutlass in his teeth, a bomb in one hand and a torch in the other.

This is not the way that the real menace to America works. The real menace works under the guise of destroying that other fellow, and he is slick and smooth and fastidious. He may wear spats and carry a cane, dress in the latest style, and have the ablest lawyers to tell him what he can do and avoid jail and get away with it.

He may even act as a judge at an oratorical contest of which the subject is "The Constitution." No, society is well prepared to take care of the so-called "red menace," if there were one. But the real menace comes frequently like an "angel of light" and it is more dangerous because it is so angelic.

PROFIT SHOULD BE TAKEN OUT OF WAR

Bernard M. Baruch, who was head of the American War Industries board during the war, speaking at Washington before the army industrial school, declared that the nation should take the profit out of bloodshed.

Mr. Baruch emphasized to the graduating class that anything beyond a "reasonable" profit in the manufacture of munitions and arms and armaments should be confiscated by the government.

We do not have before us the full text of the address by Mr. Baruch. But we would like to suggest that if the idea is that this should only apply during the period when the nation is at war, it is entirely inadequate as any remedy for the terrible condition which now exists. The sentiment and spirit for war is initiated, fostered and developed by ammunition and armament makers during the period between wars, when they are reaping the great profits through frightening various nations and selling their products to all of the nations.

To suggest that during the period of conflict they be limited to "reasonable" profits is utterly ridiculous. Their damnable work is done in times of peace as well as in war. Again, the profits that Mr. Baruch has made would suggest that the word "reasonable," providing he claims to have made reasonable profits, is such that most of the munitions makers would agree with Mr. Baruch and say: "Why surely, we ought to have only reasonable profits."

The truth is that the president and most of his present advisors insist that only reasonable profits should be made out of any concern, that no group or institution should be permitted to go into the markets of the people and make "unreasonable" profits, because "unreasonable" profits are unconscionable profits.

Why should men engaged in the production of material for wholesale murder, which can only be committed by act of nations, make any money out of such a terrible traffic? If we have to do these things, why should the government itself not do them?

The government possesses the army; it owns the navy; it pays the soldiers and it pays the marines. They all are part of the government. Why should the whole element of war, including the manufacture of the poisonous gas, the deadly bomb, the destructive torpedo, the machine gun and all the rest of it not be a part of the government's outfit and made and possessed by nobody else?

We have reached certainly a point in our civilization where private enterprise should not profit one soumarque out of either the production or the propaganda for international slaughter. Mr. Baruch started on the right road but he didn't get past the office of the ammunition makers, it seems to us.

THE NEW AIR MAIL LAW

The new air mail act recently signed by the president is an improvement over the act which was responsible for the contracts cancelled by presidential order in January. In the first place, there is to be a reduction of two cents in air mail postage. Secondly, there is to be a huge saving of millions of dollars for the government in the lower charges for carrying the air mail. Thirdly, every company has been given a chance to bid on the contracts to carry the air mail, and no one company can hold more than three contracts. And fourthly, no official of any of the carrying companies is to be paid a salary over $17,500 per year. In other words, the public at large and all airplane companies have been given a just break.

Those interested in the public welfare will be grateful to the administration for this new deal. In times past the government has been giving too many subsidies to the few. It was about time that the public at large should become the recipients of the nation's bounty. That makes it what it was intended to be—a government for the people, and not a government for the benefit of a few favorites.

This new act is a new deal indeed. When we recall the lavish gifts given to the promoters of the transcontinental railroads following the Civil war; those given to the people who benefitted so greatly from the star route contracts in carrying the mails when the country was yet undeveloped; those given to the shipbuilding industry to keep an American merchant marine upon the seven seas; and the high protective tariffs which were real subsidies to a comparatively few, and to some extent still are—recalling these, we can realize what a new era has been ushered in by the new air mail law. It was Mr. Carnegie who said that had it not been for the protective tariff he never could have created his huge fortune. Mr. Carnegie was a frank Scotchman. Many to the manor born have not been so frank.

Speaking of Tomatoes

Portland Oregonian

The best salesman the greengrocer ever had, it seems probable, is that most colorful of all his commodities, the tomato. If it be a good tomato, well and soundly ripened, it entreats the passerby, "Stop and buy me." And on this transaction other commerce depends, as the purveying of lettuce and cucumbers, radishes and mustard greens. But it is the tomato that betrays the customer to enter the premises of trade—the tomato with its scarlet blandishment. We scarce would know what to do without the tomato nowadays.

Like its cousin, the potato, the tomato, which also has the deadly nightshade for a relative, was the gift of the South American wilderness.

Tomatoes were first tamed and grown as garden curiosities, and for the hue of the ripened fruit against the deeply green foliage—and your colonial grandmother would have threatened to swoon away at mention of eating one. For they were called "love apples" then, though why they were so christened is lost to record, and there was a popular belief that they were as baneful as they were beautiful.

It seems probable that the kinship of the tomato to the belladonna, that "fair lady" of lethal effect, may have given rise to this misunderstanding of one of the best vegetables that ever gladdened a soup or soothed a salad. But in time people began timidly to partake of them, praise be, and then the practical gardeners took up the improvement, for the tomato was a diminutive fruit at the first. This country alone packs more than 10,000,000 cases annually now, and you will find the abandoned tomato can in the remotest scenic sanctuary, as proof that others have taken refuge there before you, and have gone their ways refreshed.

Tobacco, pepper and eggplant are also cousins of the tomato, and it is very evident that the scarlet ones spring from a most distinguished family. Now and again there are reports of cousinly alliances between romantic potatoes and equally sentimental tomatoes, to such effect that the one one bears fruit above the ground while producing tubers below. But whether these reports be true or otherwise, nothing ever seems to come of them at length, and it is quite as well. When a vine has borne a bushel of scarlet tomatoes, each with the sunshine in its heart, it has done quite enough for humanity and is deserving of retirement.

Another Rugged Individualist Leaves Washington

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

ADVENTURE

You needn't have a shiny boat,
A dingy scow will do,
Just big enough to keep afloat
And run the ruffles through.
The scent of June is in the air,
The swallows skim and soar,
And lilacs blossom here and there
Along the quiet shore.

Sometimes a loon goes zooming by,
Little, nimble-winged and strong,
Or yonder in the cloudless sky
An eagle sails along,
Sometimes, surprised and stiff with fear,
Though far beyond your reach,
A little dappled, nursing deer
Stands trembling on the beach.

Again the minnows, timid souls,
Like flecks of glistening foam,
Leap up in swiftly moving shoals
And then dart off for home.
Or, deep among the border grass
You see a rush and rise,
And know that some great hungry bass
Is breakfasting on flies.

Wherever shines the June-tide sun
Upon a quiet creek,
And ruffles sparkle in the sun,
That spot you well may seek.
And by and by, in waking dreams,
When troubled or oppressed,
The memory of the sparkling streams
Will lure you to your rest.

If it is true that all of the vitamins are in the peeling, think what a blonde loses when she sunbathes.

Yet think what fun it would be to wash dishes if men claimed the job as a masculine privilege.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

LO! THE POOR COLLEGE MAN

I have just come with a heavy heart from the handing of diplomas to some fifteen hundred university graduates. With the handing of a diploma to every one of these fifteen hundred I was stabbed by a sense of the baffling difficulties this mass of young men and women will face as they seek to find a foothold in the enterprise of their time.

I did not have it in my heart to speak to them with a trumped-up optimism.

They, and multiplied thousands like them who in these days are being graduated from the colleges and universities of the nation, are heading into a phase of profound uncertainty.

Industrial uncertainty!

International uncertainty!

Individual uncertainty!

On the face of affairs there is not much that can be said to them.

And yet, for such encouragement as it may carry, I remind every young American who must this year seek a beginning for his or her adult career that the ages of greatest progress have always been ages of uncertainty.

It was out of the womb of want and risk and challenge that the more virile qualities of the American stock were, in pioneer days, developed.

A race of beachcombers, content to salvage a slim subsistence from what comes their way, never achieve greatness.

The college breed should thrill to the challenge to effect such changes in the broad policies of our time as will once again provide a chance to adventure in a fair field.

WANTING

DEAR CHILDREN: Do you know the difference between wanting and needing well enough to work with the idea of one and the other? Or do you want everything you see just because you see it? Children are a bundle of wants in the beginning but as they grow older this wanting, greediness to hold and keep and hoard ought to be leaving off a bit.

When you go into a store can you keep your mind on the few things you need and buy them and go? Or do you loo at everything in sight, handle them, sigh for them, and even buy some of them although you know you shouldn't and that you have no real use for the things?

I saw a 12 year old child do just that the other day. He needed a hard pencil, just one. He went into the shop with his week's spending money in his pocket. "I want a hard lead pencil, please," he said, and he said, "Did he get mad when he ran to a fire and then found out it was only a false alarm?"

He got perfectly furious, Mr. Riley said. Nothing makes a sensitive horse more angry than a false alarm. Old Leon used to take it personally. He seemed to think every false alarm was just a put up job to make a monkey out of him. The diskust on old Leon's face was a site to behold when we would gallop up to an alarm box and find out it was only another false call. For a while we got a half a dozen every day from different parts of the city but it seemed impossible to trap the low down scamp that was sending them in. Old Leon would hardly look at us, scarcely touched his meals, and one day he disappeared entirely, Mr. Riley said.

Oh do you mean he went away in diskust, I said, and Mr. Riley said, "That's what we thought, and we felt pretty bad about it, because it wasn't our fault and naturally we didn't want old Leon to misunderstand us. Everybody in the fire house was pretty blue all that day, and then along about supper time who comes trotting in but old Leon carrying a red headed kid by the seat of the pants. He's cawt the little devil in the very act. A big crowd was following them and cheering, and old Leon got his picture in the papers and a special medal to add to his collection, and that red headed kid felt so ashamed he mended his ways and today he's one of the best firemen in the department. Well, I'll see you again some time, Mr. Riley said.

Being a hint for me to keep on going.

Wich I did.

Want those things that are necessary, and want no more. Piling up things that you will outgrow, buying more than you need, coveting what others have and for which you have no use, is wasteful in many ways. Things will not make you rich nor powerful. The valuable things are those you cannot carry home from the shop. You earn them by learning how to live happily with other people, how to work sanely and justly. Self discipline, that is teaching yourself to know what you want, will make you powerful in spirit, and the strong in spirit rule the world.

Army Purchase Of Trucks Is Aired Before Committee

REVEALS ONE COMPANY IS ABLE TO BID

SEES NO INJUSTICE

Charge Made Prices Soar After Ford Motor Co. Barred by Government

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(UP)—Army regulations now in existence concerning purchase of light trucks have the practical effect of excluding all firms except the Chevrolet Motor company from bidding, Maj. Gen. Louis H. Bash, quartermaster general of the army, told a house military affairs investigating committee today.

Bash was the first witness as the committee began looking into the question of specification changes which assertedly "favor" certain companies. The committee is also bent on investigating reports that truck and auto bids have increased since the Ford Motor company was banned from government business due to failure to accept NRA restrictions.

Bash testified that the standard form of army contract now in use specifies that both the bidder and the manufacturer must sign accompanying statements declaring they employ no agents "on a contingent fee" to further their business with the government.

"Doesn't this, together with other regulations, have the practical effect that, as far as light trucks are concerned, Chevrolet is the only one who can bid?" Rep. Edward W. Gans R., Calif., asked.

"Unless the others come in with clean hands, it does," the recently named quartermaster general replied.

"However," Bash continued, "as far as I can see no injustice is done to anyone in these contracts or in drawing of specification."

"I can see no objections to these certificates, I believe they are an honest effort to protect the government in its purchases. My personal opinion is that the certificates can hurt no honest bidder."

Bash told the committee that this regulation, as well as the one regarding compliance with terms of NRA codes, has been submitted to the comptroller general for a final decision.

ONE MAN KILLED AND EIGHT INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

FAMOUS SPEED PILOT KILLED IN AIR CRASH

Jimmy Wedell Loses Life When Student "Freezes to Stick" Sunday

PATTERSON, La., June 25.—(UP)—The airplane crash which yesterday caused the death of James R. (Jimmy) Wedell, internationally famous speed pilot, was caused by a student aviator who "froze to the stick," Kenneth Wedell, the flier's brother, asserted today.

Wedell was killed and Frank Sneeringer, 21, of Mobile, Ala., the student was seriously injured when the light Gypsy-Moth plane dived 200 feet into a rice field.

"Sneeringer must have grabbed the control stick in fright and pulled it back so hard Jimmy could not get it free in time," the brother said.

The student flier had not regained consciousness early today but he will recover, physicians said.

The Gypsy-Moth plane had made a smooth take-off from the Wedell-Williams airport. Two hundred feet up it fell back suddenly on its tail, then nose-dived into a rice field. The motor was buried in the mire and Wedell was crushed against the instrument board.

Always the good pilot, he cut off the ignition before the crash, thus avoiding a fire and probably saving his student's life.

Kenneth Wedell, his brother, blamed Sneeringer.

"The student must have grabbed the control stick in his fright," he said. "He must have frozen it, pulling it back so hard that Jimmy could not get it free in time."

Wedell is survived by his wife.

He considered his greatest race one that he ran against death and time. Last December in a borrowed plane, he flew Sue Trammell three months old infant, from Houston to Baltimore for a delicate operation that saved her life. He braved weather that forced every other plane along his route to the ground.

RUTLAND, Vt., June 25.—(UP)—A pilot and a photographer were killed yesterday when two airplanes collided in mid-air over the new municipal airport, a half hour before dedication services were to begin. Fifteen thousand spectators saw the crash.

The dead were Pilot William H. McMullen, 32, and R. L. Oakes, 30, employed by the Aerial Exploration Survey company, Roosevelt Field, New York.

TEXAS BANDITS FREED IN JAIL BREAK SUNDAY

Three Desperadoes Still at Large Today; Hostages Are Released

LUBBOCK, Tex., June 25.—(UP)—A condemned murderer of a Texas sheriff, boasting he would not be taken alive, led a villainous band of jail breakers in flight from the law today after a daring and skillful escape from the Lubbock jail.

Facing certain death in the electric chair if caught, Ed Stanton, whose odd appearance gave him the sobriquet of "Perchmouth," led three companions in slugging their way out of jail yesterday.

The escaping prisoners seized a sub-machinegun, rifles and other weapons, kidnaped a banker and a justice of the peace as human shields and fled in a stolen automobile.

The hostages were released unharmed last night, eight miles northeast of Big Spring. The fugitives released their captives on a lonely road, and got a three-hour start on pursuers before the hostages could reach a telephone.

"They treated us all right, but we were perfectly willing to use us as shields and let us be killed first if a gun battle was necessary for their escape," Walter Posey, vice president of the First National Bank, said.

Campbell H. Elkins, assistant justice of the peace, was the other captive.

Stanton, sentenced to death for the murder at Tulsa last January of Sheriff John C. Moseley, boasted he never would be taken alive.

Since he is facing the electric chair if he fails to make good his boast, police expected him to "shoot it out" whenever he is found. The killer also was implicated in the slaying in January, 1933, of Deputy Sheriff Joe Brown at Rome.

His companions in the break for freedom were William E. Doupe, serving 10 years for robbery; A. H. Nelson, a robber whose crimes cover half a dozen counties; and J. B. Stephens, convicted of burglary.

They escaped from jail by slugging Deputy Sheriff Bedford Carpenter after smashing through two iron doors. They slugged the officer with iron pipes wrested from their cell bunks before he was aware they were free.

Taking his keys, they looted the jail arsenal, seizing two .30 calibre rifles, a sub-machinegun, two sawed off shotguns, two automatic pistols, and a large quantity of ammunition.

18 LOSE LIVES IN STORMS IN MIDDLE WEST

Damage Estimated at Million Reported in Three States on Sunday

CHICAGO, June 25.—(UP)—Death toll of two smashing summer storms rose to 12 today with addition of six fatalities in a week end gale which swept three states. Property loss was estimated at nearly $1,000,000.

Rain and hail which followed the wind failed to break a widespread heat wave. At least 14 additional deaths, including the drowning of three children at Washington, Ind., were traceable directly to efforts to escape sultry city temperatures.

Small buildings were wrecked, growing crops beaten into the mud and hundreds of trees and telephone poles snapped by squalls which chased each other across Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois at velocities exceeding 50 miles an hour.

Many communities were isolated from communication while workmen struggled to repair dozens of broken wires.

One of three youths swept from a small motorboat by waves churned into mountains on southern Lake Michigan was rescued by the crew of an oil freighter after clinging to the water logged craft for six hours. In his arms was sighted was the body of a companion to which he had held doggedly. He lost it when he reached for a life line.

The youth rescued was Robert Warfield, 16. His drowned companions were Joseph Kuhns, 22, and Allen F. Thomas, 24.

Wilfred E. Hall, former assistant state's attorney of Lake county, Ill., drowned with his wife in Fox lake. The body of a man who drowned in Pistakee bay was unidentified.

Berland Ayre, 19, was crushed to death in the collapse of a barn near Marshfield, Wis.

At Washington, Ind., Aden Singleton, 7, Max Roberts, 16, and Jack Johnson, 10, drowned when a motorboat overturned.

Fire caused by lightning destroyed a dance hall and threw 500 merry-makers into panic near Mundelein, Ill., and caused $100,000 damage to a boat house at Lake Geneva, Wis.

A similar storm Thursday caused six deaths and incalculable property damage.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 25.—(UP)—Automobile registrations, considered a good index of business conditions, have increased 1.36 per cent over last year, Russell Stevens, registrar of motor vehicles, reported today.

Up to May 31 of this year, a total of 1,735,113 passenger automobiles were registered, an increase of 19,418, Stevens said. The total fee paid registration was $194,747.

The greatest increases were noted in pneumatic-tired commercial vehicles and trailers, with respective gains of 9.01 and 13.23 per cent, it was reported.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR TO MARRY SATURDAY

NEWPORT, R. I., June 25.—(UP)—A marriage license was granted here today to John Jacob Astor, 3rd, and Miss Ellen Tuck French, whose wedding Saturday is to be a highlight of Newport's 1934 social season.

Prominent Architect Loses Life

Eight Others Injured, Two Seriously in County Over Weekend

A PROMINENT Los Angeles architect was killed and eight persons were hurt, two seriously, as the result of automobile wrecks in the county over the weekend.

The death of Howard Hawley Wells, 35, member of a socially prominent Southland family and widely known architect, who was killed near Newport Beach last night, brought the total of traffic fatalities in the county this year to 28. There were 19 at this same time last year.

Wells was fatally injured when his car crashed into the rear end of a trailer and truck driven by Paul Caldwell, 45, El Monte, on the coast highway between the Balboa Island road and the Corona del Mar road. Caldwell told officers that all tail-lights on the truck were burning, since he checked them only a few minutes before the crash.

Dies in Hospital

He was taken to the Newport Beach hospital for treatment and removed to the Santa Ana Valley hospital at 11 o'clock, where he passed away a few minutes later. The body was removed to the Dixon mortuary in Costa Mesa, where an inquest will be held at a later date by Coroner Earl Abbey.

Wells lived at 624 South La Brea avenue, Los Angeles, where he has architectural studios. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Margaret Wells, and two children, Howard Hawley Jr., and Margaret.

Juan Rodriguez, 29, Encinitas, was hurt seriously at 11:30 a. m. yesterday when his car turned over on the 191 highway near Aliso Creek. He received a compound fracture of the arm, possible fractured ribs, and other injuries. After being given first aid treatment at the Orange County hospital, he was transferred to the

WORLD ROTARIANS GATHER IN DETROIT

DETROIT, June 25.—(UP)—A cosmopolitan army of thousands was billeted here awaiting the official opening of the 25th annual convention of Rotary International.

With several thousand already registered, hundreds more poured in by boat, bus and train as the hour drew close for the convention to formally convene. Approximately 10,000 delegates are expected.

Traveling under an international banner, they are arriving from all parts of the earth. Some started from their homes as far back as April such as L. D. Gammans, who followed a route from his home, Kuala Lumpur, Malay Straits, which led through French Indo-China, China, Manchukuo, Korea, Japan and across the Pacific.

PARALYSIS SERUM RESULTS IN DEATH

HEALDSBURG, Cal., June 25.—(UP)—Hagard and grief-stricken Dr. Byron L. Baldwin, who administered anti-infantile paralysis serum to his two sons, fought desperately today to save the life of his eldest boy after the younger died from the efforts of the serum.

Neither Jackie, 2, nor Robbie, 7, had the disease, which has been spreading in northern California after a serious outbreak in the Los Angeles area. Dr. Baldwin sought to immunize the boys from the disease.

The serum was believed contaminated. Jackie died Sunday. His older brother was in a critical condition. Their mother, on her way to Chicago, was reached at Salt Lake City. She flew here by airplane and aided Dr. Baldwin in his fight to save the oldest boy's life.

"GADGET ERA" REFLECTED IN ANNUAL FURNITURE DISPLAY

CHICAGO, June 25.—(UP)—American furniture makers, entering upon a "gadget era," today offered their wondrous to buyers when the curtain was pulled aside on the 1934 exhibitions.

Keeping abreast of the mechanical age, the furniture men produced a contrivance whereby the housewife can do the family washing, bake a cake and listen to Brahms' symphony—all by one simple twist of the wrist.

A washing machine equipped with a food mixer and radio was one of the innovations.

Then there were the squeakless bed springs, said to be one of the greatest mechanical wonders since Fulton's steamboat.

The springs are set in a rubber cushion—something like automobile motors.

Combination beds and cedar chests and folding beds so compact that they almost can be carried in an overnight bag were other amazing innovations.

The displays of hundreds of manufacturers, quartered in the American furniture mart and merchandise mart buildings, showed that Mickey Mouse has established himself as a full-fledged furniture style like Georgian and early American.

Mickey, the impish mouse of the movies, was found at almost all the juvenile exhibits.

Letter Read at Opening of A. A. A. Convention Asks Safer Conditions

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(UP)—President Roosevelt, in a letter read at the opening of the American Automobile Association's annual convention today said he was "deeply concerned" over the life and property toll of highway accidents.

"Those who use the highways must realize the responsibility they assume when they take the wheel," the president wrote to Thomas P. Henry, Detroit, president of the association.

"I am deeply concerned over the staggering toll of deaths, injuries and heavy property damage caused by highway accidents," the letter read, "we cannot longer afford to temporize with this problem. Those who use the highways must realize the responsibility they assume when they take the wheel."

"Safer conditions for travel undoubtedly would contribute to a greater use of the highways, now that shorter working hours and more leisure time is assured by the National Recovery program."

Henry in an address criticized diverting of highway funds for other purposes and assailed the fee system under which minor town and county officials receive a share of fines they levy on motorists.

"This kind of piracy has no place on the highways of America," said Henry commenting on operation of "roadside courts."

OFFICIAL OF ALBERTA FACES COURT TODAY

EDMONTON, Alberta, June 25.—(UP)—John E. Brownlee, 50-year-old prime minister of Alberta province, faced a judge and jury of six men today, charged with seducing Vivian MacMillan, 22-year-old stenographer formerly employed by the government.

Brownlee already had entered a general denial and had filed a counter claim for $10,000 against Miss MacMillan and John Caldwell, her former fiancé, and the court was prepared to hear evidence.

The charge was brought by Miss MacMillan and her father, A. D. MacMillan, former mayor of Edmonton. They asked for damages without specifying an amount.

Seeks Confirmation of Reports England Plans to Increase Navy

LONDON, June 25.—(UP)—The United States government has presented an unwritten intimation to Great Britain that a clarification of the proposed big increases in the British navy would be welcome, it was understood today.

The oral request for further information, it was said, resulted from last week's disclosures that the British may embark on a tremendous building program involving all categories of warships.

These revelations were made at last Thursday's secret conference of the technical experts, and were said to have surprised and "shocked" the American delegates, who had had no previous intimation of the program.

Some hint of an increase was given, vaguely, by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, in Wednesday's session when he spoke of Britain's "vast responsibilities" in the far east and throughout the far flung empire.

Later it was divulged that the naval expansion was contemplated only if and when the Washington and London treaties lapse.

Today's request for more information, therefore, was presumed to be for the purpose of discovering the nature of Great Britain's intended increases.

Thursday's disclosures were considered to be the empire's maximum demands. Today's inquiry would appear to be a bid to find out her next best offer.

"DADDY" BROWNING IS NEARING DEATH

NEW YORK, June 25.—(UP)—Edward B. (Daddy) Browning, whose platonic and not-so-platonic love affairs made front-page news for years, was reported dying today in the hospital for joint diseases, victim of cerebral hemorrhage.

None of the young women he beneficently daddied through his flush years as an elderly man-about-town, not even Frances (Peaches) Browning, was present at the hospital door to inquire as to his chances of living. If they had been, he couldn't have recognized them, for coma shut down upon his brain two days ago.

Browning's chauffeur found him alone, lying on the floor in a room of his luxurious home.

Physicians admitted that his left side is paralyzed, and held out no hope of recovery. He is approximately 60 years old, although he always has claimed he didn't know his exact age.

COOPERATION IS PROMISED TO M'GRADY

NEGOTIATIONS START

Gov. Merriam Withholds Possible State Action as Peace Maneuvers Begin

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—(UP)—Offers of cooperation replaced threats of force today as representatives of employers and workers met with Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, seeking peaceful settlement of the Pacific coast longshoremen's strike.

McGrady, who arrived here by plane Sunday from Washington, settled down to "checking up the situation" before suggesting any settlement terms.

He was to meet the full joint committee of 50 members first today, then to confer with Thomas G. Plant, president of the Waterfront Employers' union.

The San Francisco Industrial association, which had announced completion of plans for concerted movement of freight from the waterfront, placed its arrangements "in abeyance" pending outcome of McGrady's negotiations.

Harry Bridges, chairman of the joint strike committee, said the longshoremen would give McGrady all possible cooperation. Previously, the union had warned that 10,000 men would parade the waterfront, seeking to convince employers "by sheer force of numbers" that forceful opening of the port would be unwise.

Chief of Police John Quinn said he "was ready" to furnish police protection should the Industrial association attempt movement of cargoes, but that he had received no notice to post his men along the Embarcadero.

A clash between the strikers and employees, however, seemed imminent if McGrady's negotiations do not progress rapidly. A. E. Boynton, managing director of the Industrial association, said enforced movement of cargoes would be started "within a few days unless federal authorities can bring about a quick settlement."

Gov. Frank Merriam also withheld possible state action toward enforced opening of the port pending outcome of the new federal mediation effort. He had announced that National Guardsmen might be used to open up state property impounded by the strike.

In Oakland 29 union teamsters refused to operate trucks of the Kellogg Express and Drayage company, charging the company had violated an agreement not to handle freight consignments unloaded by strikebreakers.

Lee J. Holman, organizer of a "conservative" longshoremen's union, announced that 80 members of the group now were working along the San Francisco waterfront. He said other members of the organization "had been given preference" in employment.

QUINTUPLETS FOUR WEEKS OLD TODAY

NORTH BAY, ONT., June 25.—(UP)—The Dionne quintuplets were four weeks old today. All babies showed weight gains.

Yvonne has now left her four smaller sisters and the two pound class and entered the three pound class.

Dr. A. R. Darce considers all babies are showing excellent progress and their chances to live are greater each day.

THREE POSTOFFICES FOR COUNTY OKAYED

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(UP)—Approval of 362 additional federal buildings projects and step to push 324 other such project in all sections of the country a combined cost of $110,000,000 was announced today by Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

FEDERAL O. K. GIVEN RELIEF WORK BUDGET

Consolidated projects submitted by the United Cooperatives of Orange county, representing units in Santa Ana, Newport Beach, Orange, Anaheim, Fullerton and La Habra, have received the stamp of approval by Washington officials. It was learned today at a meeting of the SERA committee.

Following the revelation that the government has agreed to extend a helping hand to the co-operators in their self-help program, the SERA board this morning immediately approved requisitions by the cooperatives for six trucks and 15 sewing machines.

These requisitions, accompanied by invoices, will be sent to the state SERA officials in charge of the cooperative division. The requisition for trucks amounted to $4748 for the purchase of six Dodge trucks. The total amount was $5348, but with a discount and through other means, the cost was reduced. The unemployed groups plan to send members to Detroit to bring the trucks back, thereby saving freight and handling charges.

The other requisition was for 15 Singer sewing machines at a total cost of $750 and three power sewing machines at $65 each, which, with the cost of two attachments, will make the total sewing project cost $955.50.

Last Thursday the local SERA committee approved requisitions for flour to make bread, for cans, sugar and salt.

The United Cooperatives budget for operation of their program was $39,000 when it went to Washington.

L.A. ARCHITECT LOSES LIFE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Santa Fe hospital in Los Angeles. Following a crash at Tustin and Walnut streets in Orange at 5 p. m. yesterday, Ernest E. Theurer, 23, Anaheim, was taken to the Orange County hospital, where he is confined with head wounds, lacerations on the right arm, bruised shoulder and a possible punctured kidney. His car collided with a machine driven by City Clerk T. S. Elijah of Orange, who was not injured.

Car Overtaken
Ed Kogler, 225 South Olive street, Orange, narrowly escaped serious injury at 10 a. m. today when a tire blew out on his car while rounding a corner at Santiago and Santa Clara avenues. His car overturned in a drainage ditch on the south side of the intersection but Kogler escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Three persons were hurt at 9 o'clock Saturday night when cars driven by Edwin C. Buzzell, 39, 423 1-2 South Ross street, and Mervin Smith, 29, 518 Spurgeon street, collided at Fifteenth and Main streets. Buzzell received a lacerated hand, Smith had an injured knee and Miss Lucy Holmes, 23, 1408 North Main street, received a cut lip and broken teeth. All were treated by a physician and taken to their homes.

Mrs. Lawrence Butler and Helen Hollingsworth, both of Los Angeles, were slightly injured at 11:30 a. m. yesterday when a car driven by Butler, 21, ran into a curb at Seventeenth and Sycamore streets.

Escape Injury
No one was hurt at noon Saturday when cars driven by Mrs. Nellie Brown, 33, 374 North Cambridge street, Orange, and Robert Williams, of the Broadway Cab company, collided near an alley on Bishop street between Orange and Cypress.

In a spectacular auto crash at Central avenue and Highway 101 in La Habra Sunday afternoon, two cars were wrecked, but none of the occupants was seriously hurt. ARMY OFFICER AND EDUCATOR TELLS BANKERS COMMUNISM HAS FAILED, MENACE GONE

LOS ANGELES, June 25.—"Communism has failed and its menace has largely gone," Dr. David Prescott Barrows, former president of the University of California, who has just returned from a year's residence in Germany, declared in a talk before group five of the California Bankers' association here Saturday night.

The speaker is a major-general in the Army Reserve corps, and served as chief of military intelligence in eastern Asia during the World war.

"Communism does not offer a satisfactory theory of society," he declared during his address. "I do not believe in class warfare as a theory."

"Communism has failed and consequently its menace to us has largely gone."

Commenting on what he said was the Europeanizing of America, the speaker criticized the "Young American brain trusters" and continued:

"From now on any effort of American cooperation with Europe should be on American terms. What concerns me is the Europeanizing of America. We are moving very rapidly today in the way of thinking along European lines. This is a mistake."

He declared American influence in Europe stopped just as soon as American money ran out, when European interest in America abated.

WILL ROGERS says:

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.—(To the Editor of The Register:) Lots of news today about that South American war. I was down there almost two years ago and they were going strong then. Now how can they fight that long without getting all their war materials from other nations. That's why there will always be war. You got every nation that's not in it boosting for it, for everybody makes money out of a war but the nations fighting. We used to think war couldn't last long because no or both sides had no money. Why there is no injury under the sun you can get credit as quick for as you can war. This war down there has been on credit since twenty-four hours after it started.

Yours,

Jury To See Pictures Of Fatal Crash

Superior Judge James L. Allen today ordered a special night session in his department of court in order for the jury members to see moving pictures George Peterkin, California highway patrolman, took of the car in which two women were burned to death and another was fatally injured and which resulted in murder charges being lodged against Al Brunner, 40, Long Beach fishing boat captain.

The night session will be held about 7:30 o'clock tonight in the courtroom in the courthouse. Judge Allen, with attorneys and other court officials, viewed the pictures in the highway patrol offices this morning to pass on whether or not they should be allowed to be entered as evidence in the murder trial.

It is likely that certain parts of the motion pictures, which show the skull and teeth of the charred bodies of the two women who were burned to death, will be omitted from the pictures, in the belief that they are too gruesome.

This morning, as the trial continued, Gilbert Sperry, who was second on the scene of the crash, Dr. Edward Thorstensen, interne at the county hospital, and James H. Pietscher, orderly at the hospital, were on the witness stand. They testified that they were unable to tell whether or not Brunner was drunk. Other officers who were on the scene previously had testified that Brunner was intoxicated.

Mrs. Jennie Orenstine, 45, and her daughter, Beverly Orenstine, 22, were burned to death in the accident on March 11 at Dana Point on the Coast Highway. Mildred Beckman Devitt, 26, wife of the driver of the car struck by Brunner, was fatally injured.

Dwyer Begins Debt Adjustment Work

J. J. Dwyer, prominent Anaheim rancher, who was appointed Orange county debt conciliator to succeed the late Lucien Filppen, now is officially on the job, after having taken his oath of office. It was announced today by R. D. Flaherty, secretary of the Orange County Farm Bureau.

Dwyer will maintain the same office in the Farm Bureau building at 618 1-2 North Main street that formerly was occupied by Filppen. Tuesday will be his day for interviews with farmers who wish aid in adjusting their debts.

It was requested that anyone who has been conferring with Filppen but who has not made formal application for debt adjustment consult with Dwyer at once, so that there will be no delay in adjusting the debts. The list of preliminary prospects used by Filppen cannot be found, it was stated.

LATE ATTEMPT GAS PRICES TO TAKE TWO CENT FOR CORONER BOOST TUESDAY

When Charles Ocan, president of the Orange County Humane Society, of 1337 West Ninth street, routed Deputy County Clerk Al Hitchcock of Orange out of his bath Saturday night at 10 o'clock and filed with Ocan's nominating petition for the post of coroner of Orange county, two points of law raised which have brought forth request for a ruling by the attorney general of the state, it was disclosed today.

The question was referred to the district attorney's office by County Clerk Jos Backs, and was in turn referred to the attorney general for interpretation of the law. It was learned.

One point upon which a ruling is asked is whether a petition filed out for the office of "coroner" shall be accepted when the office is filled by "coroner and public administrator."

The second point involved is the time at which the petition was filed. Under the state law Saturday was the last day for filing nomination petitions and the law says the time shall expire at "midnight" that day. The law also provides that the county clerk's office shall close at noon on Saturday.

The attorney general stated last week that the closing time for petitions would be noon Saturday, yet the county clerk's office at Los Angeles remained open until 5 o'clock to accept petitions.

Believing that midnight Saturday was the closing time, Ocan secured the necessary papers from County Clerk Backs at 11:45 Saturday morning, secured the necessary 30 signatures Saturday afternoon, and filed the paper, together with the filing fee, with Deputy County Clerk Al Hitchcock at his home in Orange Saturday night about 10 o'clock, after he was unable to locate Backs or other deputies from his office.

Filings have been accepted in the past after the clerk's office is closed, it is reported.

FINAL WEEK FOR TAX EXEMPTIONS

County Assessor served notice today to ex-service men and unsecured personal property owners that this is the last week in which to file claims for exemption. After this week, he pointed out, no exemption would be allowed.

Veterans of wars are allowed $1000 exemption on their property. If they own unsecured personal property not assessed at more than $100, exemption to that extent.

GAS PRICES TO TAKE TWO CENT BOOST TUESDAY

A two-cent per gallon price increase on third grade gasoline and two and one-half cents per gallon increase on ethyl and standard grades was announced today as effective tomorrow by the Standard Oil company as the first development in a new agreement made by oil companies.

The price increase will apply to both wholesale and retail quotations and is expected to be followed by all major and independent companies, it was learned here.

Branch offices of major companies in Santa Ana reported that no official word had been received by noon today from their San Francisco offices, but admitted that rumors indicated the price advance.

The new price schedule will be 19 1-2 cents for ethyl, 17 1-2 cents for regular grade and 15 1-2 cents for third grade.

The price increase was brought about by the acceptance of the Pacific Coast Petroleum agency agreement between the leading companies and Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes. Under this setup, the refiners will set the price for the retailers to use, and cutthroat competition will be eliminated, it is believed.

CHURCH GROUPS TO MEET TONIGHT IN PARK AT ANAHEIM

Warner, minister of the First Methodist church of Santa Ana, will present a resolution dealing with the moral crisis in Orange county.

Prof. J. B. Nield, musical director of the First Presbyterian church of Hollywood, will be in charge of the musical program, according to A. M. Robinson, executive secretary of the Brotherhood.

NEED ENERGY?

Here's the latest word from Science on increasing Vim and Energy... quickly!

Today we call attention again to important facts which were presented to smokers in a recent item in this paper. Perhaps you overlooked it. We repeat: You can release new vigor, when tired, by smoking a Camel. This comes from the "energizing effect" in

Camels as recently confirmed and described by a famous New York scientific laboratory. Everyone gets fatigued...cross...down in the dumps...when his energy is used up. But the way to turn on more energy has now been pointed out, by actual Camel smokers who tell of their own experiences. And by up-to-date research made in the laboratories of science. And so—"get a lift with a Camel!" Any time you want to enjoy yourself or restore yourself. Steady smoking need not concern Camel smokers, since the finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS in Camels never get on your nerves.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS — Turkish and Domestic — than any other popular brand.

"Get a LIFT with a Camel!"

CAMELS Costlier Tobaccos never get on your Nerves

Franklin D. Roosevelt, naturally, is the most queried of all. He is in the public eye, and all want to know a hundred different things about him.

Late News From Fullerton and Vicinity

MISS GAGE AND ROWE ROYER OF FULLERTON WED

FULLERTON, June 25.—Miss Lyfina Gage became the bride of Rowe Royer at high noon yesterday when the Rev. Francis E. Hawes read the single ring ceremony following the regular morning church service at the Baptist church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Gage, who reside northeast of Fullerton, and the bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Royer, of 506 East Commonwealth avenue.

Miss Mildred Gage, a sister of the bride, wearing pink satin tulle, went to the piano and played "Dreams of Love," while Eleanor Tate, wearing a simple flowered blue silk, stood at the altar.

The wedding party came to the altar to the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding march by Wagner. The bride was dressed in blue tulle with a pink sash and carried pink butterfly roses and ferns and baby breath in her bouquet. Her attendant, Miss Flora McVeigh, wore a green tulle dress and carried yellow and white sweet-peas and roses in her bouquet.

Guests at the reception were Mrs. E. A. Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tate, Miss Eleanor Tate and Miss Louise Tate, Mr. and Mrs. William McGimpsey, Mrs. Iva Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Van Way and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Royer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Keltner, Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Edmister, Mrs. Olga Wallace, Mrs. May Saine, Miss Betty Gamble, Mr. and Mrs. George Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. John McVeigh, the Rev. and Mrs. Francis E. Hawes, Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clark, Garden Grove; Robert Carter, Yorba Linda; Stee Clark, Occoana; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Gage and family, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Gage and family, of China, Mr. and Mrs. Christine Roseberry, of Vista; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chase and daughter, Shirley, of Alhambra; Mrs. Lucille Petnecky, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Siden and sons and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart and daughter, Rosemary, of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Decker and daughter, of Riverside; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hancock and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hancock and Mrs. Edna Hancock, of San Jacinto; Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson, of Sunset Beach; and Mr. and Mrs. E. Price, of Long Beach.

After the reception, Mrs. Royer dined at a pink and green silk ensemble, with white accessories, and the two went on a short honeymoon to Yosemite. On their return, they will reside at 226 East Commonwealth.

Reports point out that cars are usually bought with a down payment that comes out of savings while subsequent installments are generally met out of current income. During this process there is that much less money available for general merchandise, recreation, etc. It will be over a year on the average before the proud possessors of the more than a million dollar models already sold will be much up to department stores.

If any one industry has to be outstandingly prosperous at the expense of others the motor industry is the best from the recovery standpoint because of its heavy buying of steel, oil, rubber, wood, glass, etc. But general retailers can hardly be blamed for wondering when their turn will come.

There is still a noticeable time lag in the effect of higher payrolls on the consumer goods industry. Old debts still take precedence over new purchases. The banks reflect this condition while department stores show a smaller amount of sales, although almost all year to date volume because of increased prices.

KENNY SEEKS ELECTION AS ASSEMBLYMAN

Pledging his support of the Democratic candidates who may be nominated for state officers at the primary election August 28, and promising "fullest cooperation with the governor-elect, in effective plans to end poverty, remove fear, and provide security for struggling taxpayers," H. F. Kenny, progressive Democrat, has announced his candidacy for nomination and election as assemblyman for the twenty-fourth district, that portion of Orange county lying south and east of the Santa Ana river.

"The New Deal for all America, which is being engineered so wonderfully by our great humanitarian president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, must be supplemented by another Democratic achievement—the New Game, with a fresh clean deck, in California," he declared. Largely due to our favorable climate, California has and may always expect to have an unemployment problem distinctively and more acutely her own. Anyway, 120,000,000 people have no business sitting around waiting for the "Great White Father" in Washington to feed them and do just about all their thinking for them. It is time to start using our native American resourcefulness and ingenuity," Kenny said.

Kenny is the author of a book entitled "Human Credits," which he produced some two years ago. Critics have commented on the unusual clearness with which Kenny has analyzed the economic situation, and the sanity of his conclusions. He claims to be a champion of genuine American democracy and constitutional procedure.

"Born and educated in Canada, where he had years of experience in farming and business, and in public and social service, he has taken an active part in the public life of Southern California during the past 10 years, more than six years of that time being in Orange county," the announcement reads. He organized the Capistrano Beach Sanitary district and was its first assessor and manager. He was federal census enumerator for San Juan township and the city of San Clemente in 1930. He was largely instrumental in securing the widening and improving of State Highway 101 through Doheny Park. He was active in the Orange County Coast association. Last year he served on the staff of the state resident engineer on a half-million dollar highway contract north of Santa Monica. He resides at 1048 West Myrtle street, Santa Ana, with his wife and daughter, who has graduated from the Capistrano union high school and the Santa Ana junior college.

"Our first duty as a state is to take the unemployed off the backs of taxpayers and restore their confidence and self respect. A straight line is the shortest distance between two points; and the only direct way to put the unemployed back to work is to provide them with land, and factories, and equipment so that they can produce for themselves, and live in abundance instead of penury. We can do that in California and point the nation back to sane American prosperity," Kenny said today.

Other planks in Kenny's platform include:

"Reorganization and merging of our systems of state and local government for the reduction of overhead, the increase in efficiency, and the suppression of crime.

"A system of economic planning that will make a place for the school and college graduates and assure steady employment for all able bodied men, especially heads of young and growing families.

"Adequate pensions for the aged, the blind, and the widows.

"Revision of the public and private debt structure, and scaling down of interest rates.

"Revision of our tax system to protect the farmer and the small-home owner and assure basic production and social stability.

"Flood control and water conservation for all Orange county, and more public beaches, breakwaters and developments of our coastal area.

"An appreciation that the Golden Rule and the principles of Christian brotherhood are fundamental to successful human organization."

ARREST 18 ON DRUNK CHARGES OVER WEEKEND

Fourteen men were booked at the county jail over the week end on drunkenness charges, with an additional four being jailed for drunken driving. The total of 18 arrests is the largest week end booking for many weeks.

Of the arrests made on intoxication, six were by Santa Ana police, five by the sheriff's office, two from Placentia and one from Anaheim.

Deputy Sheriff James Musick, G. F. McKelvey and James Yorkman booked four men at the jail at 12:30 a. m. yesterday for drunkenness on the highway after being called to El Toro to quiet a disturbance. The men were Joe Silvers, 20, Frank Ramos, 19, and Chris Federico, 21, all of San Juan Capistrano, and Fred W. Burk, 34, El Toro, who gave his name as John Jones when first booked. He was later released on $25 bail.

D. A. Weaver, 39, Garden Grove, was arrested in a Garden Grove pool room Saturday and booked at the jail for drunkenness by Deputy Sheriff George Graupensperger.

Mike Monreal, 28, Delhi, was arrested at Fifth and Broadway late Saturday night and jailed for drunkenness by Officers Jess Buckles and F. L. Grouard. He was released without bail by Judge J. G. Mitchell late today.

Fred Flores, 27, 917 Logan street, was arrested at the rear of the Red Lantern cafe at Fourth and French streets, where he had been fighting, according to police reports. He was jailed by Officers William Heard and W. E. B. Sherwood at midnight Saturday.

Alejo Ros, 42, Costa Mesa, posted a $25 bond and was released from jail Sunday after being booked Saturday night for drunkenness. He was arrested by Buckles and Grouard at Fourth and Birch streets.

Frank Townsley, 37, 632 North Birch street, is in the county jail for drunkenness and violation of probation, following his arrest yesterday. Townsley was given a 60-day suspended sentence by Judge J. G. Mitchell last Monday for drunkenness and was taken to the Orange County hospital yesterday by Mrs. Townsley when he became intoxicated. He was later transferred to the jail by Officer C. W. Wolford and served with the bench warrant for probation violation.

Cecil K. Moon, 34, 823 North Birch street, was arrested for drunkenness at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in his car on West Fourth street between Birch and Ross. Officers Wolford and Roy Hartley booked him at the jail. Four hours later Ralph W. Moon, 32, of the same address, was booked for drunken driving following a wreck at Delhi in which no one was hurt.

Blaine Cox, 36, Fourth and Baker streets, was arrested at 8:30 a. m. today in the Otis building at Fourth and Main streets. Officer J. P. McWilliams jailed Cox after a humorous incident with the elevator in the Otis building. When McWilliams pushed the "down" button from the first floor, Cox pushed the "up" button on the second floor and the elevator kept going up and down. McWilliams finally used the stairs.

Cencio Caranza, 32, and Ygnacio Espinosa, 45, both of Placentia, were booked at the jail for drunkenness yesterday afternoon by Officers Gus Barnes and Ralph Pantuso of Placentia.

John D. Cunningham, 67, 820 East Fourth street, was booked at the jail Saturday by Anaheim police to serve a 25-day sentence for intoxication.

Civil War Story To Be Here Soon

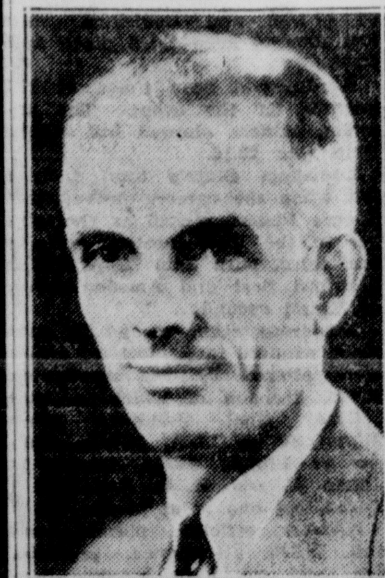

Marion Davies and Gary Grant are starred in "Operator 13," which will play at the Broadway theater soon. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The picture centers around the earlier years of the Civil War when the labors of spies, both Union and Confederate, provided many of the dramatic incidents of the strenuous times.

The spirit of the old South has been captured in the film, and is exemplified in a number of musical sequences, many of which are done by the famous Four Mills Brothers.

'HAP' WINTZ IS ANNOUNCER FOR AUTO PAGEANT

With the securing of "Happy" Wintz to act as master of ceremonies for the Mid-Summer Motor Pageant in the Municipal Bowl Wednesday night, American Legion and automotive association officials rushed preparations for the colorful outdoor show.

Wintz is well known here for his announcing and will be accompanied by a crew and loud speaker system. He will be at the microphone for the special program of midget auto races, parade of new cars and trucks, music by the Santa Ana band and fashion show of new styles by the candidates in the queen contest.

Final standings in the queen contest will be tabulated tomorrow and the winner will preside for the program. She will also receive a week's vacation trip to Catalina Island, with second and third place winners receiving jewelry prizes. Miss Martha Zaket and Miss Helen Lee, both of Santa Ana, are holding a slight lead over the other 13 contestants from all parts of the county.

plaintiff had received two broken ribs, torn ligaments and other injuries in the automobile crash. He asks that the court award him the $4975 damages to pay for his loss of time, loss of use of the car and damages to the car and himself, as well as for medical attention.

GILMORE PRODUCTS USED IN FORD RUN

Austin Elmore, nationally known automotive test engineer, whose reputation dates back to the World war days, when he was the youngest instructor in Uncle Sam's naval aviation forces, added another triumph to his long list of engineering achievements when he checked in here this morning after driving a stock Ford V-8 sedan from Los Angeles to establish a new gasoline economy record of 33.3 miles to the gallon for the 443 miles between the two cities. It was emphasized by Elmore that this high mileage cannot be expected by the average driver because this run was made under the most favorable road and weather conditions by an experienced automotive engineer. On his remarkable test run Elmore used Gilmore Red Lion "controlled power gasoline" and Gilmore Lion Head oil. He also used Gilmore products throughout, in the transmission, differential and on every working part. In establishing the record of 33.3 miles to the gallon, which breaks the former low gas-consumption mark of 24.45 miles to the gallon established by Elmore with a 1933 Ford V-8 last year, the engineer averaged 32.43 miles an hour, covering the 443 miles in 14 hours 55 minutes and consuming only 13.3 gallons of gas and 1 1/2 pint of oil.

Put a GARDENER to Work!

Thousands of strangers EVERY DAY pass through Santa Ana.

Their eyes are open, and they are looking to see all they can see of this city: its stores and factories; its homes and gardens.

They see many beauties of Nature, but too often man's neglect does not give Nature a chance to make the best impression.

Nearly everything will grow here, but human care is necessary to get the most satisfying effect.

In the wild places, let Nature have her way, unmarred by the hand of man.

But in our yards and cities, it is necessary that man combine with Nature, and this combination brings the wondrous beauties, which attract thousands of new residents to Southern California each year.

Lawns must be planted smoothly and kept mowed. Hedges must be kept trimmed. Weeds must be kept down. Trees must have their dead wood cut away.

All such operations represent LABOR, and the employment of available labor is one of the big questions before the country today.

The number of unemployed includes men from all walks of life, but nearly all can run a lawnmower or manipulate a spade. Gardening offers them quick and immediate outlet for their desire for honest work. PROVIDING those who own gardens will hire them!

Nature knows no year of depression, and weeds, shrubs, and trees have been growing, just as always, and must be attended to.

Do the gardening work yourself if you must, but hire a man and put him on it if you can. Perhaps a half day will fix up a corner of the yard, but it's that much, and some man in Santa Ana will be glad to get even a half day's work.

Call up the free National Re-employment service—phone 4471—and they will send a man for just the kind of work you need; or call the Unemployed Association, 4823 or 5610.

Or call up a tree trimmer or pruner or nursery or landscape gardener, and put him to work on your specialized jobs.

Plow up the vacant lots and plant them to something. Clean up the parkings. Get your home garden, both front and back, in first-class presentable shape, a joy to you and a credit to the community.

The following garden seed and supply firms are co-operating in the Renovize campaign, and will be glad to help you Put a Gardener to Work:

New
at no extra cost —

THE American Medical Association's official Journal recently said, editorially, that too many children still have rickets (faulty bone development) and would continue to have until some cheap, generally available, agreeable source of vitamin D is provided, suggesting that vitamin D milk offered promising possibilities of meeting those requirements.

To help meet that need, Pet Milk is now enriched with vitamin D by irradiation with ultra-violet rays—nature's method of creating this precious vitamin.

By using irradiated Pet Milk, you can now give your children—all your family—an extra supply of vitamin D—at no extra cost. The price of Pet Milk has not been increased because of the extra vitamin D.

Let your children have sunshine. It's good for them. Give them such other sources of vitamin D as your doctor may prescribe. Give them irradiated Pet Milk, too. All three sources may be needed to give them the vitamin D they need. All three together can't possibly do harm.

Many investigations have shown more than fifty per cent of young children suffering from rickets. Many cases exist that can be detected only by expert examination, but which cause faulty bones and bad teeth in later life.

ALICE MELLOTT, SAN DIEGO MAN WED IN CHURCH

COSTA MESA, June 25.—Miss Alice Mellett was married to Duane Cartwright, of San Diego, before a large group of friends and relatives in the Community church Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. The bride, attired in white silk and lace and carrying a bouquet of pink roses, was given in marriage by her father, W. B. Mellett. She was accompanied by Miss Ethel Kinley as bridesmaid and Miss Bernice Rathbun, of Santa Ana, as maid of honor.

The group marched in as the "Bridal March," by Lohengrin, was played on the organ by Mrs. Veda Thompson. Mr. Cartwright was accompanied by his brother, Donald Cartwright, and Walter Mellett. Little Miss Frances Wilcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Wilcox, the latter a cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl and little Mike Healey was ring bearer. The Rev. Russell Cartwright Stroup, assisted by the Rev. W. L. Lowe, performed the wedding ceremony.

Preceding the bride march Mrs. Thompson played "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," by Stuite, and "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond. Simon Plas played "Indian Love Call," by Rudolf Friml, and "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life," by Victor Herbert, on the violin, accompanied by Mrs. Thompson, and Mrs. Rose Kinley Mellett sang, "At Dawning," accompanied by Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. Thompson also played Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the party marched away from the altar. Walter Mellett, brother of the bride, and Harold Long were ushers.

Shasta daisies and pink gladioli were used in the floral decorations. Huge bouquets of the flowers were placed about the altar and clusters were placed on the end of each pew along the main aisle of the auditorium. A six pointed lighted candelabra was placed on either side of the altar. Mrs. George Merrick, assisted by Mrs. James Tallman, was in charge of the decorations.

The party retired to the home of the bride's parents on Santa Ana avenue at Magnolia street for light refreshments. Later the newly married couple left by auto for Crater lake, where they will spend their honeymoon. After the honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Cartwright will be at home in San Diego, where Mr. Cartwright is in business.

Reunion Staged By Two Brothers

BUENA PARK, June 25.—Two brothers who had not seen each other for eighteen years are having a pleasant reunion talking over boyhood days back in South Dakota, at the C. O. White home at 400 Darlington avenue, Buena Park. Mr. White is enjoying a visit from his brother, W. E. White, of Des Moines, Iowa, and his wife and two daughters. Mr. White has been a businessman of Des Moines for 25 years and is now the nominee of the Republican party there for county treasurer.

The Dakota visitor tells of turning on street lights at 11 a. m. during the dark storms, of fences being buried in piles of dust and other events of the year which California residents have heard about but not seen.

Car Wrecks Fronts Of 2 Beach Shops

LAGUNA BEACH, June 25.—Sliding tires on wet and slippery pavement coupled with an unsuccessful turn in the road in the downtown business section, early yesterday morning sent a large car crashing into the fronts of Bothamley's jewelry store and Neal's Barber shop, demolishing the front end of both establishments.

A small bootblack stand, operated by James Jones, was reduced to a heap of debris, strewn about the place. Wilbert G. Stewart, 44, connected with a bank in Perris, Riverside county, driver and sole passenger in the car, came out of the spectacular accident without a scratch, notwithstanding the fact that the front part of the car was badly damaged.

As a result of the impact, a good sized office safe, containing watches and jewelry repair work, located in Bothamley's store, was knocked out of place for about 10 feet. Damage to the building as well as to the two business establishments, not counting loss of time in operation, it was said, will run close to $600. C. H. Bothamley, who had made plans to move his store to another downtown location, said that it would be impossible to determine his loss until a careful check had been made of the store contents. No arrest was made by Officers H. D. Allanson and Paul Johnson, on night patrol duty, who witnessed the accident.

NEWPORT RACES TO START NEXT SUNDAY

NEWPORT BEACH, June 25.—The last day of preliminary racing in preparation for the summer yachting season, which will start next Sunday, saw both star and P. C. class boats racing over the eight-mile course off Newport and Balboa Sunday with a better enrollment than in any of the previous events.

Ken Simpson, piloting the "Star," captured first place in the star event, in the snappy time of 4:04, followed by Frederick Lyons in the "Vola," time 4:08, and Howard Ingersoll in the "Templair," a half-second later.

In the P. C. class races, H. Maffit sprung a surprise by beating out the veteran Billy Lyon for first place, sailing the new No. 12 in its maiden venture. The time was 4:01, with Lyon trailing in the "Nina," 15 seconds behind.

SPIDERS EXPECTED TO STAGE BATTLE

LAGUNA BEACH, June 25.—One of the numerous spider jars in the "black widow" display at the California serpentarium houses two "widows." Each has laid a nest of eggs.

According to C. M. Perkins, assistant curator, the spiders are cannibalistic and are being watched with interest. "Each spider," he explained, "has appropriated, as her territory, half of the twig placed in the jar, but apparently is afraid to pounce upon one of the male worms dropped in as food for fear of trespassing on the other's realm. One of these days, hunger will cause one to cross the other's territory and we expect a

NEWPORT BAY EVENT DRAWS LARGE CROWD

NEWPORT BEACH, June 25.—Several hundred spectators were thrilled Saturday night by the second of a series of Venetian nights fetes planned and sponsored by the Balboa Island Water Carnival association, which took place on Newport Bay off the island.

Ten gaily decorated floats carrying groups of performers toured the island in a delightful musical program lasting close to two hours. The audience was grouped at stations about the island for this event and thereby enabled to hear the entire program.

Among the entertainers were the Siegfried Chorus of 30 voices, under the direction of Harriet Siegfried Underwood, of Costa Mesa; the Terwilliger instrumental trio; Elinor Beckwith, well known piano-accompanist; Wintersburg vocal and instrumental quartet; Russell Briggs, flutist; the Pomona mountaineers, and Andi Mandel, soloist.

Much credit for the success of the affair is given to the music committee, under the chairmanship of Antonio Melillo, and the general committee, headed by A. S. Richardson, Conrad Shook, J. B. McNally and Joe Reek.

DONNA of the BIG TOP by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Donna Gabriel, circus performer, falls from the trapeze and is injured. To please her partner, Madeline Sidal, Donna goes to Madeline's home to recuperate, pretending to be the other girl. She is ashamed of the deception but keeps it up even when Bill Sidal, Madeline's cousin, asks her to marry him. Bill and Donna are married.

Mrs. Planter, housekeeper discharged by Donna, is her enemy. Amos Sidal, Madeline's grandfather, has a stroke. Meanwhile Madeline who has married Con David, the animal trainer, is killed. Con knows of Donna's deception and decides to blackmail her. He comes to the nearby town and Donna agrees to meet him. Mrs. Planter learns of this and writes Bill an anonymous letter.

Donna keeps her appointment with Con and he threatens to cause trouble for her. She reaches home just as Bill has finished reading the anonymous letter. Donna tells him she was at the neighbors'. He knows she was not.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLIII
Bill was sitting by the window, staring out at the falling snow. He did not turn when Donna entered. She crossed the room and slowly began to remove her dress. She said, "I told you a lie tonight, Bill."

"I know you did," "I want to know," "I know that too. Why?" "It didn't occur to me that you would object," she evaded. "I don't know that I did object. Not to your going to town."

"You deliberately tricked me into lying," she said hotly. "That was objectionable."

"Why did you lie?" He rose and came to her. How small she looked and how pale! The healthy bronze of her circus days was gone and her features looked pinched and tense. There were shadows under her eyes and a pathetic quiver about her lips that made his heart ache. If only she would offer some explanation—something that would convince him that jammable letter was a lie! But even as sympathy swept over him the staggering thought that perhaps she was suffering because she loved another man made his voice harsh and cold. "Why did you lie?" he repeated.

"Because—because I could see you mistreated me—and you had sworn nothing—nothing could ever make you doubt me again. I wanted to see—to see if you—"

His laugh cut like a rapier. "Testing me, eh? Thanks. After giving me a couple of rotten hours visioning you freezing to death in the snow, you think it's sporting to test my trust. Thanks!"

"Next time I won't waste my anxiety, but I would like to know what made you change your plans. Or didn't you intend to go to the Adames when you left?"

She did not answer. Slowly she

Nine Men Arrested By Newport Police On Drunk Charges

NEWPORT BEACH, June 25.—Newport police were busy over the week end, nine arrests being made on charges of drunkenness Saturday night and early Sunday morning. Chief of Police R. R. Hodgkinson said that prosecution of liquor law violators would continue to be vigorous and that no slacking up in the campaign to clean up rowdiness would be countenanced.

O. W. Martins, 26; Bill Lumir, 18, John Ball, 21; and Justen Olds, 24, all of Long Beach, were released on $25 bail each, pending trial for intoxication June 26. J. Wood, 18, of San Bernardino; B. L. West, 44, Anaheim; Bud Hildald, 23, Pasadena; John M. Sheridan, 23, Pasadena, and A. J. Ward, 30, of Riverside, were released on bail pending their trial on the same charges.

MILROY WELL AT H. B. FLOWS 500 BARRELS OF OIL

HUNTINGTON BEACH, June 25.—That good wells can be obtained from the tideland pool under the ocean is evidenced by the bringing in of the Milroy well yesterday when 500 barrels of oil and 2,000,000 cubic feet of gas were secured. The Milroy well located on the west side of Seventeenth street between Walnut and Olive, was drilled in three weeks ago but the production was not satisfactory and the well was killed and washed out and baled to bottom.

The oil shows no water and is about 25 gravity. The Milroy well was the subject of a legal suit by the state but a compromise has been reached and the well will be allowed to produce, paying the state a royalty of about 10 percent of the oil and 20 percent of the gas.

The first well was drilled into the ocean pool by the McVicar-Rood interests in February of 1933, creating an oil boom in the west and town lot field and resulting in the successful bringing in of 31 flowing wells. That the pool will produce flowing wells 17 months after discovery indicates the whiststocked wells may last a long time, probably several years, in view of the fact that the state authorities propose to prevent any further drilling into the pool.

BEACH CHURCH IN PROMOTION DAY EXERCISES

HUNTINGTON BEACH, June 25.—Promotion day for the Sunday school children of the First Methodist church was observed in all departments Sunday. Miss Mary Turner, for 17 years teacher in the beginners' department of the church, was presented with a basket of flowers by the students and her teacher associates in appreciation of her work.

When those whom Miss Turner had taught in the Sunday school were asked to rise and greet their former teacher, almost all the children at the promotion day ceremonies, from tiny tots to high school graduates, stood up.

At the Epworth league services in the evening 25 young people from the First Methodist church of Santa Ana were guests. A fellowship meeting followed the Epworth league program.

At the regular church services in the evening Henry Nagamatsu, member of the Wintersburg Presbyterian church and valedictorian of the high school graduating class this year, gave an address on the problems of the Japanese-Americans, young boys and girls born in the United States of Japanese parents.

Nagamatsu brought out that the Japanese children are in a peculiar position in that they are children without a country in a sense. Japan does not claim them and America only halfway accepts them, he said.

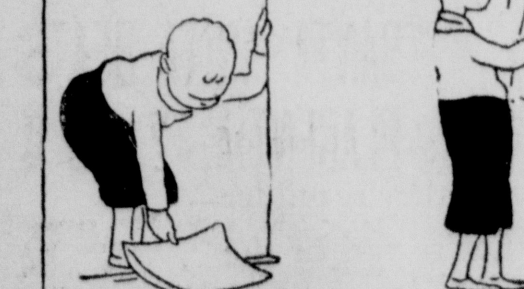

"We could not be happy in Japan," said Nagamatsu. "Their ways are not our ways. They would not understand us. They would not like us or associate with us. We would be unhappy in Japan, because we are brought up in America, have American ideas, learned in American schools and we are Americans."

"But America only half claims us. We are sort of social outcasts. We cannot enter the professions. Only the Japanese people would engage a Japanese lawyer or doctor. We ask our friends, and may I say countrymen, to bear with us for our lot is just as pleasant as you make it for us. We have no choice. This is our country by birth, you people are our people and never can we have any other."

WAYS TO GAIN GOD RULES MEN. SALVATION IS NOT LUCK, SAYS SERMON TOPIC S. A. ARMY MAN

Salvation will come by holding, even to the point of the supreme sacrifice, the way of the life of Jesus; by achieving the quality of life that following His program will release; by accepting the challenge of the principles that He espoused.

This message was brought to the congregation of the First Methodist church in a sermon by Dr. George A. Warner, minister of the church, yesterday morning.

Text used by Dr. Warner in the sermon was taken from First Corinthians 2:2, "I am determined to know nothing among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified."

The sermon, in part, follows:

"St. Paul, centered his ministry in this thought," he said, referring to the text. "He, however, did not hold that God was angry with mankind. He knew that man's immaturity, his perversities, even his viciousness caused the Heavenly Father suffering, but never anger. His interpretation was that God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself. God never needed to be reconciled to man, but man to God."

"Three thoughts are immediately apparent."

"First, the crucifixion was kindled in a deep seated conviction. An adage has come down through the years. 'The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church.' Wherever worth is to be found it grows upon the plant conviction."

"Jesus could easily have missed being Saviour of the world by turning aside in the testing experience of Gethsemane. But Jesus thought that the way of life He proclaimed was worth dying for."

"Second, the crucifixion prophesied a quality of life."

"Eternal life as taught by Jesus was not synonymous with the idea of immortality of the Greeks. They felt that life would be forever prolonged. The content that they read into the type of life beyond death was not fascinating. It was a rather poor, miserable existence."

"The idea of Jesus was that His followers attained into a special quality of life here and now that might be abundant. Death made no real change. It gave the possibility for unhindered development until all of the life's potentialities were realized."

"Third, the crucifixion is a challenge. Jesus had no misgivings about the supreme excellence of His program for the individual and for society."

JESUS' GREAT COMMISSION OUTLINED AT UNION CHURCH SERVICE HERE LAST NIGHT

Those who would take part in Christ's great commission must be ready either for service or sacrifice, the Rev. Samuel Edgar, minister of the Reformed Presbyterian church told a large audience at the union church services last night in the First Christian church. He discussed the subject, "The Message of Jesus for the Church and the World." The sermon, in part, follows:

"Let us keep in mind some things that concern the setting of the text. Note the authority of Him who gives the command. 'Go ye.' It was given by Christ Himself. He claims all authority, who but He dare make such a claim? Matthew's gospel sets Him forth as King. Mark sets Him forth as the Servant. Luke presents Him as the Son of Man and John declares He is the divine Son of God. So behind His claim for authority are these things that assure us of His power and glory."

"Then as to those whom He sends forth. They were chosen men, sifted men, transformed men, frail men. Then as to the surety of their success he declares, 'Lo I am with you always even unto the end of the days.'"

"Keep in mind that these words of the 'Great Commission' are indefinite as to rules, but definite as to fixed principles of action. We have here privilege, responsibility and promised power. And between these boundaries we have abundant assurance of success."

"In translating this message of the Jesus for the church, we would see three great forces that must ever be our propelling power as we carry His message to the uttermost parts of the world."

"First—The church must ever see and feel the dire need."

"The world is always in need."

"And time and experience has proved that there is no satisfaction for that need apart from Jesus Christ. If we have failed at home or abroad it is because we have not given Him a chance. When the Master was on earth during those days of His public ministry, He was ever striving to minister to those who needed Him. And this was His example for those who were to carry out His plan throughout the days. 'Go ye.' It was given by Christ Himself. He claims all authority, who but He dare make such a claim? Matthew's gospel sets Him forth as King. Mark sets Him forth as the Servant. Luke presents Him as the Son of Man and John declares He is the divine Son of God. So behind His claim for authority are these things that assure us of His power and glory."

"Then as to those whom He sends forth. They were chosen men, sifted men, transformed men, frail men. Then as to the surety of their success he declares, 'Lo I am with you always even unto the end of the days.'"

"Keep in mind that these words of the 'Great Commission' are indefinite as to rules, but definite as to fixed principles of action. We have here privilege, responsibility and promised power. And between these boundaries we have abundant assurance of success."

"In translating this message of the Jesus for the church, we would see three great forces that must ever be our propelling power as we carry His message to the uttermost parts of the world."

"First—The church must ever see and feel the dire need."

"The world is always in need."

"And time and experience has proved that there is no satisfaction for that need apart from Jesus Christ. If we have failed at home or abroad it is because we have not given Him a chance. When the Master was on earth during those days of His public ministry, He was ever striving to Jesus Christ as his Saviour he wants then to tell somebody else about his wonderful find. Missionary annals abound with that which has drawn men and women into the uttermost parts of the earth for the sake of the lost and to be obedient to this last command of their Redeemer. No money could purchase the devotion and the loyalty and sacrifices that have been rendered in every land that the love of Jesus might be made known and that lost won to the Saviour. Men and women have left homes and luxuries and places of wealth compelled by the one great purpose to seek and to save that which is lost."

"Third—The church must be ready to serve and sacrifice in carrying out this commission."

"Kagawa, that great Japanese evangelist to the slums of his native land, was told that he could not live very long because of the dread disease that was already at work, then he replied, 'I must do all the more if I have only a short time to live.' And what a service for his own land. The Diet of Japan voted him twenty million yen to abolish the slums of the six principal cities, but he cries 'money is not enough—only boundless love and sacrifice.'"

"Mrs. Leslie, a missionary of the Congregational church in Turkey at the beginning of the war, at the grave of her dead husband in Urfa consecrated her life to her Lord who had called her. Handing over her new-born child to the care of an old Armenian mammy, she rolled up her sleeves and turned to the serving of the thousand Armenian refugees that were lying around her there. Women young and old who had been driven from their homes without food or clothing or shelter; driven out by the Turks and left to die. To serve and sacrifice for them, she was glad her Lord had counted her worthy."

"On the Waldenian coat of arms are these figures engraved—an ox, an altar and a plough. Underneath are written these words: 'Ready for either.' The ox ready for service or for sacrifice. This is the attitude of those upon whom Jesus lays the 'Great Commission', and they enter into that glorious ministry glad to be country worthy to suffer for His sake."

"Second—We need a passion for souls."

"Wherever you find the Missionary of the cross, you find those who have been driven forth by this divine power. I say divine, for it is not in us naturally. But as soon as a man finds terday at the Santa Ana First Church of Christ, Scientist. The subject of the lesson-sermon was, "Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?"

One of the citations in the lesson-sermon included the verses from Genesis: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. . . . And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were of the sixth day. Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them."

A passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated, "The scientific fact that man and the universe are evolved from spirit, and so are spiritual, is as fixed in divine science as is the proof that mortals gain the sense of health only as they lose the sense of sin and disease."

"Life is not a lottery. Life is not made up of 'bad luck', or 'good luck'. It is wisely ordained by God, and ruled for moral and spiritual welfare of the human race. Man is a morally responsible being, and is accountable for the good or evil he does. His duty is to be saved. It is the unchecked operation of the law of sin which brings the sinner to his doom, and the accepted laws of salvation which bring the saved to Heaven."

"To believe in luck ruins one, a chance in this world and in the world to come. Everywhere men despise honest toil, because they imagine they may some day by a happy turn of fortune become rich. "But they live in a fool's paradise. What is gold without the blessings of God? What would you think of a farmer who went out into his field to plow not for any purpose to sow grain but in the hope of turning up a buried pot of gold? A builder, who sits on the site of a house waiting for a fairy to wave a hand and erect a palace. The gambler scanning the sporting papers for the winners, to the neglect of his employment and his character. Nothing—not even the misfortunes of life—are attributable to chance. Better to be a Lazarus, to pass from the street into heaven, than be a Dives to pass from a banquet hall into hell. Blessed are ye poor, for yours is the Kingdom of God."

"The peril of gambling with the fortunes of your own soul. Those who believe in the doctrine of chance, as applied to this world are very likely to trust their luck for the next. Without a doubt this is one of the main reasons why so little is being accomplished today because the professing Christians have allowed themselves to believe that they can partake of the things of this world and still by chance get to heaven. But they will be like the foolish virgins whose lamps had gone out, and the door will be shut against them, and with no chance of its ever being opened."

"They who sow poppies do not reap roses; nor do those who sow good wheat harvest tares. Be not deceived, God is not mocked. Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. Men may call evil good, and good evil; But there are no moral confusions with God, who in the judgment, will render every man according to his works. As certain as sin is punished, salvation is sure."

"The way of the cross leads home, it's a narrow way; we read in the word of God, 'An highway shall be there and a way, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein'—Isaiah, 35-8. "Let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith"—Hebrews 12, 1-2."

"As certain as sin is punished, salvation is sure. They who build on the rock will not suffer the fate of those who build their house on the sand. It is not an open question as to whether there is mercy for you, for 'Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out.'"

WAYS TO LOWER COSTS OF WATER PUMPING TO BE SHOWN
ORANGE COUNTY RANCHERS

Two demonstrations to show how lower pumping and water costs may be secured by many pump operators in Orange County will be held tomorrow and Wednesday, according to announcement from the Farm Advisor's office.

Two pumping plants will be tested by efficiency engineers at each demonstration meeting, one plant having been previously overhauled, and the other without any changes made. Besides testing the pump and power units at each plant, methods will be shown how to measure the water produced by the plant.

A recent survey made by the water committee of the Farm Bureau and power engineers indicates that many of the older installations can be made more efficient by adjustments and changes at a nominal cost which can be liquidated in a short time by reduction in the resultant cost of water, according to Harold Wahl-

Following a basket lunch, the afternoon was spent in reminiscing over the "good old days." Old timers from many distant points attended the reunion. There was no set program for the event.

Meantime, the swimming pool is carefully watched, and every effort is made to keep the water in absolutely safe condition. All who are interested in the swimming work are requested to call or telephone the Y. M. C. A. office for detailed information."

Mining Machinery
Damage Action

Tom Teighland today had filed suit in superior court against S. Findley, seeking a total of $1701.50 in damages allegedly suffered through failure of Findley to make a mining mill operate and failure to construct the mill in the time specified in the contract.

The suit is based on a contract entered into on November 22, 1933, whereby Findley was supposed to construct an ore mill of a 100 daily tonnage capacity. He failed to do this, the complaint alleged.

When finally the mill was completed on January 1, 1934, the complaint said, it would not operate and would not separate the milled ore from the gangue and allowed both to go over into the tailing pile. After January 20, 1934, the defendant turned over the mill and equipment to the plaintiff, it was stated.

The plaintiff is seeking $1200 damages for delay and waste and $501.50 for board, use of a truck, and advance of $310 in cash which is included in the $501.50, and for lumber.

The mining claim is located in the Clark Mountain district, San Bernardino county. A Thomas Teighland is listed in the directory at Huntington Beach, and a Lewis S. Findley is listed in Anaheim.

URGES WALNUT
AGAINST PEST

Roy E. Black, deputy agricultural commissioner, today called the attention of walnut growers to the increasing manifestation of aphids in walnut orchards of Orange county and to the need for control measures against this troublesome pest where it occurs in sufficient numbers.

This past spring, he said, at the time treatment was given for killing moth worm control, aphids was hard to find in most orchards. However, inspections of walnut properties the last few days have shown infestations building up to such a degree that the heavy infestations may be expected to develop in many orchards.

"It must be remembered," he pointed out, "from past experience that heavy infestations of aphids can reduce the grade and value of the present crop and also weaken the trees for future production."

"The control of walnut aphids is somewhat different from that of other pests in that control measures have to be applied when it appears, and in many cases quick action is necessary before injury occurs."

"The standard control material for years for walnut aphids alone has been nicotine sulphate 40 per cent in dust form. Dusting with a three per cent dust before infestation becomes heavy will, in most cases, effectively and economically control this pest."

"In conclusion, we wish to urge all walnut growers to watch closely the development of walnut aphids in their orchards and to apply treatment before a heavy infestation occurs."

Speech Classes

She invites the consultation of parents in connection with speech improvement for their children who are being handicapped in their school work.

STUDY AT OPENING MEET OF DISTRICT LUTHERAN SESSION

Delivering the inspirational sermon at the opening service of the fourth annual convention of the Southern California District of the Missouri Synod Lutheran church, in Zion Lutheran church at Anaheim last night, Vice President Frederick Randt of St. Paul, Minnesota, stressed as "the paramount duty of the Church to search the Scriptures." His text was John 5:39, "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me."

The venerable speaker referred briefly to the 400th anniversary of Luther's translation of the entire Bible into the German language and the influence of his monumental work upon other subsequent translations of the Scripture, particularly the English translation.

"Modernism," he said, "is not modern at all, but ancient lies, dressed in new garb; it has left the safe moorings of God's inspired and infallible word to sail out on the treacherous wastes of man's wisdom."

"The church needs pastors and teachers and members who are well versed in the Bible, who are mission minded, who will carry the flaming torch of a divine salvation into the world of spiritual darkness and death."

The choir of Zion Lutheran church, host to the convention, sang the anthem, "Lift up Your Heads, O Ye Portals," with Mrs. Olive Kumpin at the organ.

The following committee chairman were appointed by the Rev. G. Smukal of Los Angeles, president of the district:

Chaplain, Rev. O. Henkel of Fontana; organist, Teacher E. E. Wunderlich of St. John's church, Orange; registration, Rev. H. Fisher, Belvedere Gardens; program, Rev. Newspaper Extra Tells Autumn Wedding Date To Party Guests

Quite in keeping with the vocation of one and the interests and avocation of the other, was the manner in which Miss Velma Bishop and John Dunlap chose to acquaint friends with their betrothal and plans for an autumn wedding, by issuing a newspaper "extra" as a feature of the tea-musical presented Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Holmes Bishop and her daughter, Miss Velma Bishop, in their Fairhaven avenue home.

Each guest, upon arrival, received one of the clever little "extras" from the hands of Master Dick Newcom, son of the R. B. Newcoms. This miniature newspaper bore the widely known logo type of the Santa Ana Daily Register upon which Mr. Dunlap is employed as police and city hall reporter. It carried the banner, "Velma and John To Wed," and bore in addition to pictures of the two well-known young people, the announcement of the wedding plans, an account of their school, Junior college and U. C. activities and the manner in which their romance started on Santa Ana Junior college campus when both were members of L'Hotel de Rambouillet, the French society.

Miss Bishop is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Holmes Bishop, Fairhaven avenue, and Mr. Dunlap is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dunlap, 2143 North Main street. Mrs. Dunlap was present Saturday afternoon to assist Mrs. Bishop and Miss Bishop in receiving their guests. Each of the three wore pretty afternoon frocks of some one of the varying tones of blue, with corsage bouquets sent by Mr. Dunlap. He had chosen deep rosebuds for his fiancée, and planned to send sweet peas for his mother and Mrs. Bishop.

Increasing the charm of the lovely big home, were the gladioluses and dahlias used in colorful profusion in the dining room where Mrs. Robert Northcross and Mrs. John A. Tessmann presided at the beautifully arranged table, all the colors of a summer garden seemed gathered. Feathered asters and other smaller blossoms were placed in the center of the table from which coffee and tea were dispensed with the ices, cake and other dainties of the tea menu. Serving was accomplished by the Misses Mary Nalle, Ruth Dunlap, Evelyn Fairley and Minnie Mounier, while assisting through the rooms were Mrs. Charles Nalle and Miss Ethel Nyer, the latter from Los Angeles and a houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Bishop.

Several close friends assisted in the delightful program given at intervals during the afternoon. Mrs. Charles C. Brisco, in her various groups, sang such appropriate songs as "Why I Love You," "Sweetheart," "You," "Last Night the Nightingale Woke Me" and "Comin' Through the Rye." Miss Adelaide Proctor was her accompanist. Mrs. M. E. Gettling gave several entertaining readings, including some of the famous "Cutler Family" stories and an amusing English sketch relating the romance of "Young Travers and Miss Peacock."

Miss Thelma Glasscock added both vocal and instrumental numbers, and for her songs was accompanied by Miss Esther Vogt. The solo included "April, My April," Miss Glasscock's own arrangement of "My Love Is Like a Red Red Rose." For her piano solo she chose Chopin's "Revolutionary Etude."

Among guests invited to share this pleasant afternoon and hear the romantic secret which it revealed, were Mrs. George Effinger and Miss Inez Effinger, South Pasadena; Miss Ethel Meyer, Los Angeles; Miss Adelaide Proctor, Mrs. S. D. Andrews, Miss Lucille Reich, Mrs. Roy Bishop, Mrs. E. J. Brubaker, Orange; Mrs. Lewis Moulton, El Toro; Mrs. J. B. Morrey, Culver City; Mrs. Alfred Knight, Anaheim; Miss Minnie Mounier, Newport Beach; Mesdames Robert Northcross, John A. Tessmann, J. Parley Smith, Mac O. Robbins, R. H. McArthur, Carl Brock, E. B. Newcom, Frank Henderson, Terry Stephenson, Nellie Y. Shuey, E. E. Gowen, Charles Nalle, Earl Morrow, M. E. Gettling, Baxter Gettling (Corinne Nelson), O. H. Barr, Charles C. Brisco, O. H. Egge, Arthur Lyon, J. H. Metzgar, E. B. Sprague, Emmett Elliott, the Misses Gertrude Montgomery, Evelyn Fairley, Elizabeth Rinkler, Eunice Bright, Lella Watson, Ruth Dunlap, Thelma Glasscock, Esther Vogt and Mary Nalle.

Dinner Party Honors Summer Travelers

Miss Mildred McCullough and Miss Bernice L. Bronson, who are leaving soon for the east, were complimented charmingly the past week at a dinner party given by Miss McCullough's uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Nida, in their Garden Grove home.

It was an all frolic affair, and diners were interested in the setting afforded by the lovely garden of the home.

Those sharing the hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Nida included Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McCullough, the Misses Mildred and Eleanor McCullough, Earl McCullough and Master Earl McCullough, Mrs. Maud Bronson, Miss Bernice Bronson, Mrs. Ida Sides, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Potter, M. S. Potter, Santa Ana; Mrs. Lister and Miss Lister of Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Hawks of Illinois; and Messrs. Eugene and Clarence Nida.

Mother and Daughter Sailing Wednesday For Pago Pago

An interesting experience awaits Mrs. E. W. Spruance, 2215 North Ross street, and her young daughter, Eloise, who are sailing Wednesday from Los Angeles harbor on the S. S. Mariposa to spend the summer months in Pago Pago, guests of Lieutenant Commander H. C. Lowry and Mrs. Lowry, now stationed in Samoa.

When Lieut.-Com. Lowry sailed last November to take his command, he and Mrs. Lowry were guests here in the Spruance home. At that time they extended invitation to Mrs. Spruance and Miss Eloise to come to them for this summer which will be the finest season in Samoa, as in that south equatorial clime, the seasons are reversed so that northern summer months correspond to their so called winter season. Mrs. Spruance and her daughter will remain with them until late September and expect to include a trip to Auckland in their pleasures.

The voyage on the Mariposa will consume eleven days, with one day to be spent in Honolulu where Mrs. Spruance will renew old associations and friendships. Miss Eloise is anticipating the voyage with special pleasure, as she plans to spend the greater part of the trip in the big swimming pool of the steamer.

Orange County Friends Are Among Guests At Wedding

Santa Ana and other Orange county residents motored to Los Angeles Thursday evening, June 21 for the marriage of Miss Louise Crockett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Crockett of Los Angeles and Ralph S. Lindsay of Buena Vista, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Lindsay of Southern, Ill., near Sparta.

The ceremony took place in the Los Angeles home of Mrs. Crockett's close friends, Mrs. Carrie Sloan and Mrs. Donald McEwen, 270 Third avenue. There were two officiating ministers, the Rev. Samuel Edgar, pastor of Santa Ana Reformed Presbyterian church, and the Rev. George N. Greer, of Anaheim, friends of the young couple.

Daisies and gladioluses had been arranged effectively to conform to a yellow and white decorative theme observed in all details of the occasion.

The bride wore white organza and her maid of honor, Miss Edna Litten of Huntington Beach, wore yellow. Each carried a colorful French bouquet. Frank Sloan of Santa Ana was best man.

Miss Geneva Payne of Los Angeles was at the piano for a program of love songs and for Loehengrin's Wedding March as a processional.

Wedding cake was served with an elaborate dessert, candy, tea and coffee. Appointments were in yellow and white.

Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Shidder and children, Jacqueline and Elizabeth, 1129 South Garvey street, and their week end guests, Mrs. Shidder's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. Miss Bertha Briney, 626 North Ross street, with her aunt and her niece, Mrs. R. B. Briney and Miss Elaine Briney of San Pedro, left today for the east. They will visit in Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska, continuing to Chicago for the exposition. They will stop at Niagara Falls en route to Boston where they expect to visit relatives. Miss Bertha Briney will return about September 1 via New York, Washington, Chicago, Salt Lake City, Bryce Canyon and Zion National park. Mrs. Briney and Miss Elaine Briney will remain in Boston for several months.

Miss Helen Lutz has resumed her duties in the circulation department of The Register following a vacation. She spent the past week at Balboa Beach in company with her mother, Mrs. G. Lutz, 1126 East Seventeenth street and Mrs. T. E. Rasmussen and sons, Douglas and T. P., of Visalia.

Mrs. J. E. Stephenson and sons, Bill, Martin and Gene, of Des Moines, were in Santa Ana today visiting with their daughter and sister, Mrs. Edmund West, en route to spend about a month. They will spend about a month. They will visit with Mrs. Stephenson's son-in-law and daughter and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cooley and Mr. and Mrs. James B. Stephenson. Both Mr. Stephenson and Mr. Cooley are temporarily established in Idaho while carrying out their duties with the U. S. forestry service.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crowell and children, Patsy, Dickie and Benny, 2028 Greenleaf street, took up residence Saturday at their home on West Central avenue, Balboa Beach, for the summer.

Surprise Party Comes As Compliment to Honored Queen

Arranged as a surprise compliment to Miss Ruth Dohmer, retiring queen of Santa Ana Bethel Job's Daughters was a party given last week when two of her cabinet members, Miss Frankie McDonald, senior princess and Miss Audrey McDonald, junior princess, joined as hostesses.

Tables had been arranged with floral centerpieces surrounded with corsage clusters and boutonnières for all participants. Combination tally and place cards indicated places where guests were to start the bunco contest and where they would return for the refreshment hour. Decorations then were removed from the tables so that the guests of the evening could be started.

Prize winners at bunco were Mrs. Marjorie Shepherd and Miss Marion Doty, scoring high and low. Special gifts were presented to Miss Dohmer, to Mrs. William Dean, guardian and to Frank Sawyer, associate guardian.

The hostesses spread the tables with linens and replaced the original bouquets for the serving of refreshments.

Present for the event with the hostesses, Miss Frankie McDonald, and the honor guest, Miss Dohmer, were Mesdames and Mesdames Frank J. McDonald, L. W. McDonald, John Dohmer, William Dean, Frank Sawyer; Mesdames George Wheeler, Leslie Pearson, Claude McFarren, Marjorie Shepherd; the Misses Eloise Schrier, Lorraine Wheeler, Dora Perkins, Fern Anderson, Mary Alice Russell, Dorothy Carlson, Sylvia Combs, Charlotte McCausland, Lenore McFarren, Mary Crowe, Fern Farmer, Marjorie Doty, Nadene Pennington, Evelyn Shepherd, Jean McClay and Helen Pierce.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Breakfast
1-2 cantaloupe, or 2-3 cup raspberries or similar berry with 1-2 tsp sugar, no cream 1-egg puffy omelette 1 slice toasted bread, dry 1 cup coffee with 1-4 cup hot skim milk, no sugar. Calory total, 265.

This calory total is made with cantaloupe as the chosen fruit. If berries replace the melon, add 50 calories to the total.

Puffy Omelette
Separate yolk and white of 1 egg. Beat the white to a stiff froth, and beat the yolk with 2 tbsps. of milk, a pinch of salt, and pepper. Combine the two, and slide into a hot skillet in which is quickly melted a scant tap. of butter. Brown the bottom, then transfer the skillet to a hot oven to finish baking the top of the omelette. Fold over, dust with salt and pepper and serve at once.

The Milk and Orange Juice Diet

Numerous inquiries have come in, asking for particulars about this diet. Replies have been held up until I was quite sure about its results, with myself as a clinician of -one. My interest in the diet was not as a reducing agent, although it may be used as such. Long and painful attacks of neuritis induced me to try it. On the first morning, getting out of bed was somewhat of a problem, due to the crippling pain, but the day started with 1 cup of coffee with 1-4 cup hot skim milk, and 1-8 ounce glass of orange juice (7:30 a. m.). At 9 a. m. I had 3 oza. of whole milk. At 10:30, 6 oza. of orange juice. At noon, 1 glass of milk and 1 cup of coffee with milk (no sugar), at 2:30, a full glass of orange juice. At 5:30 a glass of milk and a cup of coffee. At bedtime a full glass of orange juice, and so to sleep.

And was I hungry! Miserable! My feelings as low as the proverbial snake, due to the removal of stimulating starch foods. But, the extreme pain was somewhat less and that was something gained. (Continued tomorrow.)

TODAY'S RECIPE

Buttermilk Mayonnaise Dressing Part I.

2 cups boiling water 6 tbsps. cornstarch mixed with 1-2 cup cold water

Part II.
4 egg yolks, whipped 1 tbsps. prepared mustard 1 tsp. of salt and same of sugar 2 tbsps. paprika 3 cups salad oil 1-2 cup vinegar

1 pint, or more, buttermilk. —Ann Meredith formula.

Put ingredients of part 2, except the vinegar and buttermilk, into a mixing bowl and beat until smoothly mixed, adding the oil in small amounts as the beating proceeds. Always have this part mixed and ready. Stir the mixed corn starch into the rapidly boiling water and cook until it thickens and clears—a matter of half a minute—but the mixture must be stirred every second or it will lump. Turn this hot thick starch into the oil and beat hard until it merges, then begins to separate. At this stage start adding the vinegar, a spoonful at a time, beating constantly. The beating and the acid vinegar will soon whiten and smooth the dressing. Let it cool, then beat in thick buttermilk (icy cold) in small amounts. The cold dressing will take a pint and possibly more of food buttermilk. The point to stop is when the dressing is just thick enough to drip off the spoon tip like very thick cream. Chill but do not freeze. It separates when frozen.

This salad dressing has a calory value of 45. Full oil mayonnaise is valued at 125 calories per tbsps. It is less expensive to make and a boon to the woman who loves salads even though she is overweight.

Tuesday: Chocolate Peppermint Cake. ANN MEREDITH.

CHURCH ADDS 20TH ANNIVERSARY NEW MEMBERS AS YEAR ENDS

ORANGE, June 25.—Reflecting the substantial and consistent membership growth which has featured the past year, the First Methodist Episcopal church received nine new members into the church yesterday, which was the closing Sunday of the conference year. Sixty-five new members have affiliated with this congregation during the past 12 months.

Dr. James Edwin Dunning, the minister, preached yesterday morning on the question, "Did Anyone Ever Mistake You for Jesus?" "What kind of impression do we give folks?" asks Dr. Dunning. "Do they ever mistake us for Jesus?" "Paul declared that it was his prayer for the Ephesians that they should 'know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye may be filled unto all the fullness of God.' Again, speaking of Jesus, he wrote, 'It pleased the Father that in Him the whole fullness should dwell.' All that God is in Christ; the organic whole of divine attributes and powers that constitute deity dwells permanently in Him.

"Is it not evident that a process of growth for Christians is to be expected? Can we any more hope to maintain a healthy spiritual life without growth than a healthy physical life without growth? Have not Christians been too content to begin the Christian life without expecting anything special to happen, or that the Christian life should make any significant difference?" "When Jesus said 'Be ye perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect,' did he not clearly imply that there is a richness and abundance of life that his disciples may enjoy far beyond anything they have ever experienced or dreamed of? And does not his teaching and examples show that this abundant life must be utterly selfish, eagerly seeking to interpret God's love in terms of human interest? How can we share the fullness of God and not have the love of God for men, his passionate desire for justice, mercy and righteousness?"

PARTY PLANNED

FULLERTON, June 25.—The High school league of the Methodist church is sponsoring a "hard times" party for Friday at the church lawn. All young people of high school age of the church are invited.

Exchange Houses To Ship 224 Cars Fruit This Week

ORANGE, June 25.—Valencia orange shipments this week will be reduced from the high quotas of recent weeks, according to grapefruit figures made public here today. Several reasons are given as responsible for the reduction, including the national holiday next week with its reduced fruit sales, and recent lowering of prices on the Eastern market which made it advisable to curtail shipments to some extent.

Total prorate shipments for this week for Southern California are given as 1200 cars, as compared with 1400 cars last week. Houses affiliated with the Orange County Fruit exchange will ship 224 cars of fruit this week, a reduction of 73 cars from last week's figure of 307 cars.

'JESUS' WAY OF LIFE' IS TOPIC OF DR. MCAULAY

ORANGE, June 25.—"If we practice the teachings of Jesus, we will find many of our social problems solved," the Rev. Robert Burns McAulay declared Sunday morning at the Orange Presbyterian church, when he gave another of his series of sermons on great beliefs.

The topic of Sunday's sermon was "I Believers in Jesus' Way of Life For Me," with the Scripture lesson, Matthew 25:31-45. "Anyone who has done anything worth while of a social nature has had his life first touched by the Spirit of God," said Rev. McAulay. "Prison reform, homes for the insane, help for underprivileged children were all movements started by people who were following the teachings of Jesus." Continuing, he said in part: "Many do not believe in the way of Christ for themselves; some because they say He lived so long ago He has no knowledge of life today. Others say it is impractical, if it were an ideal world it would be all right, but His teachings are not practical in every day life. Yet He says, 'love your enemies, and are people to have enemies in an ideal world?' He talked of a world such as we have today.

"A young person may say 'It cannot apply to me unless I apply it. But the beginning of the problems of Christianity begin with the personal life of each of us. If our friends have doubts, perhaps it is because they have been led astray by our lives. Our Christian life is a matter of each one's attitude and personal experience. To be a Christian in 1934 is not a matter of rules, but our own attitude. Christ says He will give us a new heart.

"For 40 years Jeremiah stood before the people and urged economic reform, yet his secret power was the personal relationship he had with God. 'The value of personal religion is shown when we lose our temper, become jealous, show an evil spirit. Other people are repelled by these things, so we see how a Christian spirit can attract.

"Modern missionary work started about 100 years ago. They had to translate the Bible into the various languages. This called for schools to teach them to read, then disease must be fought and lives saved. These lives must be maintained, so the missionary became interested in the economic and social lives of the people, that they who knew Him not may have a wholesome happy life in Christ. Because Jesus inspires us to live a life of service. I believe in Him for me."

WANT-AD SECTION
NOW . . .

The Knave of Hearts was filled with fright as little Coppy Tyny mite cried. "Now I have you down, young man. Don't try to get away. One move and you will get a whack. We told the queen we'd bring you back. Till you agree to go with us, right on the ground you'll stay."

"Oh, please have mercy," wailed the knave. "I know the queen will want and rave. I'm sorry that I stole her tarts. I'll do it never more."

"That's what you say," snapped Scouty. "Gee, you're just as tricky as can be. This time you should be punished, 'cause you've stolen tarts before."

And then they pulled him to his feet. "Twill pay you, lad, to be discreet," said Coppy. "Walk along now. To the castle we are bound."

"When you have learned what's wrong, and right, you'll not get in to such a plight." The knave, by now, was quite subdued. He didn't make a sound.

They shortly reached the castle door and from the entrance came a roar. "Ah, ha, you have the culprit!" Twas the burly king who spoke.

"Just bring him in and you will see me put him right across my knee. For once and all I'll teach the knave that stealing is no joke."

"Oh, please be lenient with the lad. He's sorry and he feels real bad," said Doty, as the frightened knave was led off by the king.

"All right," replied the royal man. "I'll be as lenient as I can, but he'll be spanked at least until he howls like everything."

The spanking didn't last so long, but taught the knave that he'd done wrong. The Tynies, in the meantime, to the palace kitchen ran.

The queen gave them fine tarts galore, and said, "Eat those. Then have some more." Soon Goldy said, "Oh, goodness me, I've eaten all I can."

If you think horseshoe pitching is something to high-hat, read this piece by the head man and you may change your tune

By Theodore Allen

World's Champion Horseshoe Pitcher.

YOU may not have suspected it, but a great many of your swanky neighbors have been slipping off at odd moments during the past two years and joining the boys for a little harmless horseshoe pitching. At least 1,000,000 Americans are in organized clubs, and probably 2,000,000 more "just pitch," without the formality of organization. The membership of both groups is increasing at an amazing rate.

In fact, the time has about arrived when your tilt-nosed neighbor, who used to affect golf knickers and polo shirts, can openly admit and boast of the fact that he now pitches horseshoes. It is a new sport, originated only about 5000 years ago; shame on us for not having popularized it sooner.

At this writing I am the head man of horseshoe pitching. I'm the world's champ. My pride in that fact is, I think, justifiable, because I have worked hard for my position and I believe that I can relinquish it with good grace when a better pitcher comes along. Several fellows are crowding me already.

And we are not "hicks." The yokels who formerly pitched shoes (off real equine feet) at a buggy axle stuck in the ground, out back of Sweeney's Livery Stable, are no longer representative of the growing new army of horseshoe sportsmen.

Many of us who are in the "upper brackets" of horseshoe pitching never set foot on a farm, never shod a horse, would not recognize a single tree if we saw one. I am an exception to that rule; I was born on a Kansas farm and grew up on one in California, but this fact is just a coincidence.

Horseshoe pitching is no longer a sport for the senile hayseeds, to be regarded with a sort of contemptuous grin. Strictly speaking, it never was.

IF you doubt that, come on out to the courts with me sometime.

In 20 minutes I will make a fool of you. I will have your arm aching, your back sore, your head swimming, your inferiority complex doing hysterical somersaults.

Not as violent as tennis or as spectacular as football, my sport nevertheless approaches perfection. Any competent physician or physical trainer will inform you that the ideal exercise is one that combines long, leisurely outdoor activity with a spirit of competitive play. That's horseshoes.

I have thrown 56 shoes, each weighing about what a brickbat weighs, the 40 feet from stake to stake and made a ringer every time. A ringer is a perfect throw—the shoe cleanly looped over or around the stake.

In 100 throws I have a score of 92 ringers. One of my good friends, and the one who seems most likely to knock me off my championship pedestal, has a record of 94 ringers in 100 throws. He is Jimmy Lecky, of Phoenix, Arizona, a boy of 21.

Incidentally, Jim has a crippled foot which forces him to reverse all the normally correct positions of throwing, to ignore the theoretically perfect stance. A right-handed pitcher, he miraculously throws with his right foot forward, instead of his left. Try it just once and you'll know what I mean.

MY world's championship was won last summer at the international tournament in Chicago, where I was fortunate enough to take the crown away from Blair Nunemaker of Cleveland, Ohio, a pitcher whose shoe goes at the stake like a bullet, and whose mouth meanwhile does the most astonishing contortions you could imagine!

I have laughed many times at Blair's mouth. But when I have to pitch against him he is not funny. He is a menace.

It has taken me 12 years to win the highest prize.

I started pitching when I was 13. In school, the teachers used to tell us that "Rome was not built in a day," that success came only after years of concentration and purposeful endeavor, but that there is always plenty of room at the top of the ladder. (You know what I mean, you remember all that old copybook stuff as well as I.)

Well, the copybooks and the teachers were wrong on just one point—there is not always plenty of room at the top!

When I got within sight, so to speak, of the horseshoe championship, the competition was still keen. A lot of other fellows evidently had used the same copybooks or had the same teachers, back in the pre-war days. But no matter; my point is that skill in horseshoe pitching, just as in boxing or banking or sailing or singing, comes only with patience and pains.

This new-old sport of horseshoes just verifies for the many-millionth time the fact that we cannot have something for nothing. Trite as that is, I have profited from the tremendous moral lesson in it. The good old world can stand a few trite copybook maxims now, I'm thinking.

HORSESHOE pitching deserves the high-ranking place it seems about to claim in the category of American sports. The main reason is that it is much better as a game of participation than as a game of exhibition.

Baseball or football is fine for the players. But the proportion is very bad: 18 or 22 players to 18 or 22 thousand spectators. The latter get only synthetic exercise and vicarious thrill.

But horseshoe pitching is just mildly sensational to watch. The great and good fun in it lies in doing it yourself, and any man, woman or child of 10 or over, who is not actually in a wheel chair, can go onto the court and start right into the game!

One of the best horseshoe pitchers I know is clubfooted. I know at least two fellows who pitch but who have only one arm. And many, many a good fellow suffering or convalescing from some mild form of tuberculosis, asthma or other malady can and does pitch horseshoes, to his infinite betterment, especially in freshness and peace of mind.

Middle-aged mammas whose exercise is limited to shuffling the cards would save millions in doctor bills if social custom did not preclude their active participation in horseshoes. Even pot-bellied men can be rejuvenat-

ed at the horseshoe pits. (And I have no sign-the-coupon course to sell!)

I MENTIONED that horseshoe pitching had only limited exhibition value, but I do not mean that spectators cannot enjoy horseshoes.

Just a few days ago my friend Jimmie Lecky challenged me to an official set-to. That kid can drop two heavy horseshoes around the stake from 40 feet as nonchalantly as most boys his age light their cigarettes. To lick him I had to give my very best; I warn you ambitious pitchers everywhere—it won't do any good to drop poison in my coffee unless you put some in Lecky's too!

11 straight "four deads," that is, pitches in which both contestants made two ringers. (In which event nobody scores.) Eleven straight double ringers, ladies and gentlemen, is plenty excellent, and I don't care who you are. Whenever you can beat it, let me know.

That showing made a fine exhibition for the grandstand, and I have never heard more enthusiastic applause than those fans gave us. Therefore, after the official games were over, Lecky and I volunteered to show them some of the "fancy" stunts we like to do just for our own fun.

I can (and did) put my $50 watch six inches in front of the iron stake, stand on the platform 40 feet away and toss four straight ringers, leaving my watch unharmed. Sometimes I ask a friendly spectator to lend me his watch, but that takes faith!

WE amazed the crowds, however, with another spectacular trick, really very simple if you can pitch shoes.

A pretty girl friend of ours (certainly we have 'em!) placed her dainty chin right on top of the stake, while Jimmy and I stood in the opposite pitching board, 40 feet away, and threw ringer after ringer under her nose. The crowd was agitated, but even the young lady's make-up was quite unharmed.

Either Lecky or I can make a loop of our arms about four feet in front of the stake, while the other tosses a half dozen or so ringers right through. For added interest we sometimes have the pitcher blindfolded.

I can stick four or five matches, heads up, in the ground by the stake, back off 40 feet and light them with the first shoe, which falls also as a ringer; then, with the second ringer, put the blaze out. This is extremely hard to do, I assure you. Sometimes Lecky or I combine this match stunt with the watch, for an added hazard.

Either of us can sit on the ground in front of the stake a few feet, wearing a dunce hat or a common paper sack which absolutely hides the stake from the pitcher's view, while the other throws a shoe that becomes a ringer and also knocks off the hat. Or, either of us can throw over a blanket which hides the stake completely, including the pit around it, and still make ringers.

These tricks of horseshoe pitching are good fun, but they have little to do with the game itself. They come only after years of intensive practice, so that handling a horseshoe is as simple or simpler than handling your knife and fork.

Of course, I have kept no record, but as nearly as I can estimate it I have thrown a total of 2,500,000 shoes during the 12 years since I first started pitching. You try anything 2,500,000 times and you are likely to become expert at it.

FOR the last few years, during which I was consciously aiming at the championship, I have taken especial pains to keep myself in perfect physical trim, have done extensive training in addition to the daily practice I do on the courts.

Like prize fighters, I do "road work." I do gymnastics, shadow boxing, bending exercises, leg strengtheners, everything I can to keep myself graceful and supple. I don't do it to show off before the girls, as some of the old cronies of the horseshoe courts accuse me, but to maintain my high percentage of perfect throws. That 20 minutes on the courts to which I invited you would also prove that leg muscles are about as important in horseshoe pitching as arm muscles and patience.

A baseball pitcher, for that matter, throws with his legs almost as much as he does with his arms. His fine control depends on grace and litheness and steady nerves—mortal enemies of dissipation and constipation. The same is true of me, or of any other skilled horseshoe pitcher.

THE BOGEY MAN AND THE REAL

Dr. David Prescott Barrows, former president of the University of California, addressed some 500 bankers in Los Angeles Saturday.

Dr. Barrows is a conservative and would be called a "sane thinker," and in common with many of that group, he criticizes the so-called "Brain Trust." But in the midst of that talk to the bankers he declared this: "Communism does not offer a satisfactory theory of society. I do not believe in class warfare as a theory. Communism has failed, and consequently ITS MENACE TO US HAS LARGELY GONE."

There is no question but that Dr. Barrows, in referring here to "Communism," was thinking in terms of Communism as illustrated in the Russian plan, and not a program of the substitution for our democracy a dictatorship of the proletariat or worker.

Dr. Barrows would have to declare this in regard to Communism, if he were going to have the approval of his own self-respect intellectually. The truth is that there never has been the remotest danger of that kind of government or social program in this country.

It was superimposed upon Russia because of the character of Russia's government, and her society during the many decades of Czarist rule. The people of Russia were accustomed to the rule of a dictator. They were not trained and have never yet been prepared for a democracy.

Kerensky bridged the gap between the dictatorship of the Czar, which was cruel and inhuman and the dictatorship of Stalin, which was equally destructive of democracy, and which had to at the same time destroy religion, for real religion breeds democratic expression.

It would be utterly impossible to saddle such a regime upon the United States. The ones who have advocated it are small and insignificant in numbers, and fantastic in their ideas.

Dr. Barrows knows these facts and he was talking to a group which is equally aware of them. We will still hear about them. There will be an attempt to produce this scare of the "bogy man," but it is being produced always for a purpose.

Some big financiers are shaking this "bogy man" before the eyes of the public with their left hand, while their right hand is in the pockets of the public, filching their money from them by one process and another.

Candidates for public office, who are hand in glove with the criminals who prey upon society, while they cannot declare to the public that they are going to fight the law violators, do declare that they will protect the public from the "ravages" of the "Red menace."

The public officials and candidates who are in league with forces that ought to be driven out of society, are wonderfully patriotic and enthusiastic in their declaration of how they are going to protect society from "menaces" and "evils" and "dangers" which are simply figments of the imagination.

We have a picture in our mind of this kind of man, like Don Quixote, fighting the "windmills of the Red Menace," with the criminal class, through bootlegging and gambling and prostitution, robbing the people and breaking down the standards of society.

We one time saw a cartoon, in which the so-called "liberty-loving man" was holding before the citizen a glass of liquor marked "liberty," and was fascinating the man with that kind of "liberty." With the eyes of the man fastened upon the beer glass, the performer had the hand which was not holding the glass in the other man's pocket.

Beware of all people who will draw "the red herring across the trail!"

Look out for those who are trying to get you off on a false scent!

We are menaced by a number of things in our country, but not seriously by any means, with the man with disheveled hair, with a red bandana around his neck, with a cutlass in his teeth, a bomb in one hand and a torch in the other.

This is not the way that the real menace to America works. The real menace works under the guise of destroying that other fellow, and he is slick and smooth and fastidious. He may wear spats and carry a cane, dress in the latest style, and have the ablest lawyers to tell him what he can do and avoid jail and get away with it.

He may even act as a judge at an oratorical contest of which the subject is "The Constitution." No, society is well prepared to take care of the so-called "red menace," if there were one. But the real menace comes frequently like an "angel of light" and it is more dangerous because it is so angelic.

PROFIT SHOULD BE TAKEN OUT OF WAR

Bernard M. Baruch, who was head of the American War Industries board during the war, speaking at Washington before the army industrial school, declared that the nation should take the profit out of bloodshed.

Mr. Baruch emphasized to the graduating class that anything beyond a "reasonable" profit in the manufacture of munitions and arms and armaments should be confiscated by the government.

We do not have before us the full text of the address by Mr. Baruch. But we would like to suggest that if the idea is that this should only apply during the period when the nation is at war, it is entirely inadequate as any remedy for the terrible condition which now exists.

The sentiment and spirit for war is initiated, fostered and developed by ammunition and armament makers during the period between wars, when they are reaping the great profits through frightening various nations and selling their products to all of the nations.

To suggest that during the period of conflict they be limited to "reasonable" profits is utterly ridiculous. Their damnable work is done in times of peace as well as in war. Again, the profits that Mr. Baruch has made would suggest that the word "reasonable," providing he claims to have made reasonable profits, is such that most of the munitions makers would agree with Mr. Baruch and say: "Why surely, we ought to have only reasonable profits."

The truth is that the president and most of his present advisors insist that only reasonable profits should be made out of any concern, that no group or institution should be permitted to go into the markets of the people and make "unreasonable" profits, because "unreasonable" profits are unconscionable profits.

Why should men engaged in the production of material for wholesale murder, which can only be committed by act of nations, make any money out of such a terrible traffic? If we have to do these things, why should the government itself not do them?

The government possesses the army; it owns the navy; it pays the soldiers and it pays the marines. They all are part of the government. Why should the whole element of war, including the manufacture of the poisonous gas, the deadly bomb, the destructive torpedo, the machine gun and all the rest of it not be a part of the government's outfit and made and possessed by nobody else?

We have reached certainly a point in our civilization where private enterprise should not profit one soumarquee out of either the production or the propaganda for international slaughter. Mr. Baruch started on the right road but he didn't get past the office of the ammunition makers, it seems to us.

THE NEW AIR MAIL LAW

The new air mail act recently signed by the president is an improvement over the act which was responsible for the contracts cancelled by presidential order in January. In the first place, there is to be a reduction of two cents in air mail postage. Secondly, there is to be a huge saving of millions of dollars for the government in the lower charges for carrying the air mail. Thirdly, every company has been given a chance to bid on the contracts to carry the air mail, and no one company can hold more than three contracts. And fourthly, no official of any of the carrying companies is to be paid a salary over $17,500 per year. In other words, the public at large and all airplane companies have been given a just break.

Those interested in the public welfare will be grateful to the administration for this new deal. In times past the government has been giving too many subsidies to the few. It was about time that the public at large should become the recipients of the nation's bounty. That makes it what it was intended to be—a government for the people, and not a government for the benefit of a few favorites.

This new act is a new deal indeed. When we recall the lavish gifts given to the promoters of the transcontinental railroads following the Civil war; those given to the people who benefitted so greatly from the star route contracts in carrying the mails when the country was yet undeveloped; those given to the ship-building industry to keep an American merchant marine upon the seven seas; and the high protective tariffs which were real subsidies to a comparatively few, and to some extent still are—recalling these, we can realize what a new era has been ushered in by the new air mail law. It was Mr. Carnegie who said that had it not been for the protective tariff he never could have created his huge fortune. Mr. Carnegie was a frank Scotchman. Many to the manor born have not been so frank.

Speaking of Tomatoes

The best salesman the greengrocer ever had, it seems probable, is that most colorful of all his commodities, the tomato. If it be a good tomato, well and soundly ripened, it entreats the passerby, "Stop and buy me." And on this transaction other commerce depends, as the purveying of lettuce and cucumbers, or radishes and mustard greens. But it is the tomato that beguiles the customer to enter the premises of trade—the tomato with its scarlet blandishment. We scarce would know what to do without the tomato nowadays.

Like its cousin, the potato, the tomato, which also has the deadly nightshade for a relative, was the gift of the South American wilderness. Tomatoes were first tamed and grown as garden curiosities, and for the hue of the ripened fruit against the deeply green foliage—and your colonial grandmother would have threatened to swoon away at mention of eating one. For they were called "love apples" then, though why they were so christened is lost to record, and there was a popular belief that they were as baneful as they were beautiful.

It seems probable that the kinship of the tomato to the belladonna, that "fair lady" of lethal effect, may have given rise to this misunderstanding of one of the best vegetables that ever gladdened a soup or soothed a salad. But in time people began timidly to partake of them, praise be, and then the practical gardeners took up the improvement, for the tomato was a diminutive fruit at the first. This country alone packs more than 10,000,000 cases annually now, and you will find the abandoned tomato can in the remotest scenic sanctuary, as proof that others have taken refuge there before you, and have gone their ways refreshed.

Tobacco, pepper and eggplant are also cousins of the tomato, and it is very evident that the scarlet ones spring from a most distinguished family. Now and again there are reports of cousinly alliances between romantic potatoes and equally sentimental tomatoes, to such effect that the one vine bears fruit above the ground while producing tubers beneath. But whether these reports be true or otherwise, nothing ever seems to come of them at length, and it is quite as well. When a vine has borne a bushel of scarlet tomatoes, each with the sunshine in its heart, it has done quite enough for humanity and is deserving of retirement.

ADVENTURE

You needn't have a shiny boat,
A dinky scow will do,
Just big enough to keep afloat
And run the riffles through.
The scent of June is in the air,
The swallows skim and soar,
And lilacs blossom here and there
Along the quiet shore.

Sometimes a loon goes zooming by,
Lithe, nimble-winged and strong,
Or yonder in the cloudless sky
An eagle sails along.
Sometimes, surprised and stiff with fear,
Though far beyond your reach,
A little dappled, nursing deer
Stands trembling on the beach.

Again the minnows, timid souls,
Like flecks of glistening foam,
Leap up in swiftly moving shoals
And then dart off for home.
Or, deep among the border grass
You see a rush and rise,
And know that some great hungry bass
Is breakfasting on flies.

Wherever shines the June-tide sun
Upon a quiet creek,
And ripples sparkle in the sun,
That spot you will may seek.
And by and by, in waking dreams,
When troubled or oppressed,
The memory of the sparkling streams
Will lull you to your rest.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

LO! THE POOR COLLEGIAN

I have just come with a heavy heart from the handing of diplomas to some fifteen hundred university graduates. With the handing of a diploma to every one of these fifteen hundred I was stabbed by a sense of the baffling difficulties this mass of young men and women will face as they seek to find a foothold in the enterprise of their time.

I did not have it in my heart to speak to them with a trumped-up optimism.

They, and multiplied thousands like them who in these days are being graduated from the colleges and universities of the nation, are heading into a phase of profound uncertainty.

Industrial uncertainty!

Individual uncertainty!

On the face of affairs there is not much that can be said to them. And yet, for such encouragement as it may carry, I remind every young American who must this year seek a beginning for his or her adult career that the ages of greatest progress have always been ages of uncertainty.

It was out of the womb of want and risk and challenge that the more virile qualities of the American stock were, in pioneer days, developed.

A race of beachcombers, content to salvage a slim subsistence from what comes their way, never achieve greatness.

The college breed should thrill to the challenge to effect such changes in the broad policies of our time as will once again provide a chance to adventure in a fair field.

Our Children
By Angelo Patri

WANTING

DEAR CHILDREN: Do you know the difference between wanting and needing well enough to work with the idea of one and the other? Or do you want everything you see just because you see it? Children are a bundle of wants in the beginning but as they grow older this wanting, this greediness to hold and keep and hoard ought to be leaving off a bit.

When you go into a store can you keep your mind on the few things you need and buy them and go? Or do you look at everything in sight, handle them, sigh for them, and even buy some of them although you know you shouldn't and that you have no real use for the things?

I saw a 12 year old child do just that the other day. He needed a hard pencil, just one. He went into the shop with his week's spending money in his pocket. "I want a hard lead pencil, please, for mechanical drawing. An eraser on the end. Yes, thanks."

While the pencil was being delivered he looked about. He fingered another pencil, a nice shiny one with a nickel attachment. They he saw one of those silver ones with a screw top and a neat little cartridge full of leads. A bit further on he found some colored ones, very gay and attractive. He spent his allowance on pencils and walked out of the shop almost in tears. He knew he had wasted his money but being such a child what could he do but cry?

When you go shopping with grown people do you want all you see? Do you make the grownups uncomfortable by your wishing and longing for this and for that until they try to satisfy you by buying you some childish toy? If you do, remember you are behaving like a child, an infant crying for the moon. Try to grow up.

Want these things that are necessary, and want no more. Piling up things that you will outgrow, to buy more than you need, coveting what others have and for which you have no use, is wasteful in many ways. Things will not make you rich nor powerful. The valuable things are those you cannot carry home from the shop. You earn them by learning how to live happily with other people, how to work and play, how to earn and spend sanely and justly. Self discipline, that is teaching yourself to know what you want, will make you powerful in spirit, and the strong in spirit rule the world.

Don't make the common mistake of imagining that happiness and success depend upon your getting all you see and all you think you want. Success does not lie there. It is a thing of the spirit and the spirit discriminates in its wants and makes them real needs.

You need intelligence, temperance in all things, consideration of others, industry and ambition. You need the love of others and you need to love them. You need to work, to wait, to endure while you work and wait for the things your soul needs. You need an aim in life. You need spiritual and physical health for upon them all else depends.

You do not need all the things you see. You need very little of what you call wealth. You need all you can possibly gather of spiritual riches such as the leaders of men have achieved since the beginning of time. Suppose you go into training for spiritual growth right now! Do without a lot of things and clear the road for real needs. That would be a long stride toward growing up. Toward leaving childish things behind you.
